BRITAIN PROTESTS MACKENZIE KILLING; ALL CHINA SEETHING

YANGTSE SITUATION GRAVE

Strike Starts at Swatow and British Sloop Goes There—Chang's Troops in Peking.

BORAH WANTS US OUT OF IT

Senator Answers Cablegram From Americans and Says We Have No Quarrel in China.

SHANGHAI, June 16 (AP).—The British Consul General here vigorously protested today to the Civil Governor, and also to the Foreign Commissioner, over the killing of William W. Mackenzie, a British subject, who was shot by Chinese agitators.

One foreign life for every Chinese life taken in the Shanghai riots was the slogan adopted by Chinese in posters distributed today after the killing yesterday of Mr. Mackenzie.

Otherwise the situation remained unchanged, a seething city of indignation and unrest.

Foreign officials expressed the opinion today that the circumstances surrounding the assassination of Mr. Mackenzie indicated a deliberate attempt to interrupt the progress of the negotiations with the Chinese Government and to revive waning animosities.

They emphasized the necessity for the Chinese authorities to control the lawless agitators operating around the borders of the foreign settlement.

Grave Situation on the Yangtse.

Reports received up to 11 o'clock tonight from Chiung-king, Kiu-kiang and Nanking (ports on the Yangtse River) described the situation at those points as increasingly grave.

Foreigners at Nanking are considered in danger. Chinese employed there by Japanese and British firms are on strike. The British Consul and his family are reported to have taken up their residence at the American Consulate. The principal menace at Nanking, however, lies in the possible cutting off of water and food supplies.

The British Consul at Swatow, a port to the northeast of Canton, telegraphed to British authorities here yesterday that a general strike had commenced at Swatow and naval protection was required. The British sloop Bluebell was ordered to proceed from Hongkong to Swatow.

The British cruiser Hawkins arrived at Nanking and landed marines to protect the cold-storage plants there.

At Kiu-kiang the American destroyer Stewart has landed marines. The situation was reported quiet at Kuling.

Japanese reports from Mukden, headquarters of General Chang Tso-lin, the war lord of Manchuria, say precautions are being taken there to prevent anti-foreign demonstrations. Schools controlled by Europeans and Japanese are closed and Chinese schools are being conducted under the supervision of selected groups of Chinese police.

Says British Labor Is Misinformed.

SHANGHAI, June 16.—The questions asked in the British Parliament and telegrams from the Independent Labor Party and Trades Union Congress expressing sympathy with the workers in China in their struggle against capital betray a total misconception of the origin of the present crisis. It is safe to say that not 2 per cent. of the original dispute was due to dissatisfaction on the part of labor with the conditions in the foreign mills, which, though doubtless capable of improvement, unquestionably are far superior to those in the Chinese mills.

In regard to the disturbances at the Japanese mill, overwhelming evidence has accumulated that they were the direct result of work by political agitators. They have not been reproduced in other mills.

The child labor question involved is exactly the reverse of what is believed abroad. The foreigners' offense is not that they employ children, but that they do not propose to employ them any longer. Agitators have persuaded the parents that the employers are plotting to turn out the children and sweat the parents to save wages.

Apart from the usual student demonstrations, the Yangtse Valley has been quiet the last two days, but Chinese of the better class are becoming increasingly nervous owing to the yielding of the Peking Government to the extremists.

The forces at the disposal of the powers, it was stated in the Commons today by Mr. Samuel, Parliamentary Secretary for Overseas Trade, were sufficient for the protection of foreigners on the coast waterways of China in any contingency reasonably to be foreseen.

The Association of British Chambers of Commerce has forwarded to Premier Baldwin a resolution stating their satisfaction at the steps being taken for an agreement of the powers to bring about a peaceful solution of the present troubles in China, and urging an immediate conference with representatives of the different Chinese provinces to that end.

The present outbreak is regarded in business circles as more serious than many previous outbreaks.

Dealings in Chinese Government railway securities were almost entirely a matter of negotiation today. Selling orders predominated and the prices of the leading securities showed a decline. Owing to the fact that service customs

Scanty Ascot Outfit Weighs Little More Than Hat of 1910

LONDON, June 16.—The scantiness of women's costumes at Ascot today is widely commented on. One smartly dressed woman made the admission that the hat which she wore at Ascot as a débutante fifteen years ago weighed only an ounce less than the entire outfit she wore today.

The woman, whose name is withheld by an evening newspaper, said she recalled weighing the hat at the time because it gave her a headache. This morning she put her chiffon gown, silk undergarments, hat, shoes, stockings and handbag on the scales and found they weighed only an ounce more than the hat of 1910.

SMITH SEES LEADERS ON MAYORALTY ISSUE

Olvany and McCooey Discuss the Situation With Him in Executive Chamber.

UP-STATE MEN ALSO MEET

Second Conference Is Held With Them on Plans to Elect an Assembly Majority.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 16.—For several hours today Governor Smith talked over the New York City Mayoralty situation with George W. Olvany, leader of Tammany Hall, and John H. McCooey, leader of the Democratic forces in Kings County and political sponsor for Mayor John F. Hylan on the two occasions he has been nominated for the office he now holds.

The two powerful New York City leaders came to the capital in response to a summons from Governor Smith. Their secluded talk, held at the Executive Mansion, where they were Governor Smith's guests at luncheon, and at the Executive Chamber in the Capitol, where they were practically all the afternoon with the Governor, it is expected, will have a momentous bearing on the effort now being made by elements opposed to the renomination of Mayor Hylan, who are at present attempting to effect his elimination as a candidate for re-election to his present office.

When questioned this evening regarding the conference with Messrs. Olvany and McCooey, Governor Smith gave evasive answers, and the two New York leaders were decidedly reticent when approached by newspaper correspondents.

"Every political subject in the United States was discussed," said the Governor. Messrs. McCooey and Olvany said nothing.

The Kings County leader, who up to the present has refrained from taking any decided stand either in favor of or opposition to Mayor Hylan's third term aspirations, it was surmised, had been informed of the result of a quiet survey of sentiment within the Tammany district organizations which is said to have revealed an astounding falling off in the strength of Mayor Hylan with the voters and to have fully borne out the contention of Governor Smith that, even should he receive the regular Democratic nomination for Mayor, Mr. Hylan could not be re-elected.

Conference With Other Leaders.

The talk between Governor Smith and Messrs. Olvany and McCooey, who, besides being leaders of the Democratic organizations in the two biggest voting units in New York City, hold positions of great influence in the Democratic State organization, preceded a conference of Democratic leaders from different parts of the State which was held this evening at the Hotel Ten Eyck, with Governor Smith in attendance. In fact, the conference had been called by the Governor for the purpose of discussing the following topics:

Ways and means to conduct an aggressive campaign for the election of a Democratic Assembly this Autumn.

Plans for a fight to insure the ratification by the voters in the general election of the three constitutional amendments advocated by the Governor providing for the consolidation of State departments and the short ballot; for the $300,000,000 bond issue to defray the cost of eliminating dangerous grade crossings throughout the State, and the $100,000,000 bond issue for permanent public improvements, which of late has come in for such a vigorous attack from the Republicans, although at the recent legislative session it had won the approval of

McCRAN RUNNING SECOND

Doremus, the "Bone Dry" Candidate, Is More Than 40,000 Behind the Leader.

He Had Predicted McCran Would Capture Nomination for Governor Easily—Moore Democratic Choice.

Senator Arthur Whitney, Anti-Saloon League candidate, had apparently won the Republican nomination for Governor of New Jerseyon the basis of incomplete returns of yesterday's primary election in that State tabulated early this morning.

With returns in from 1,569 out of the 2,776 election districts in the State, Senator Whitney had an actual lead in the triangular contest for the nomination of 9,642 over former Attorney General Thomas F. McCran, the candidate of the Republican organization and United States Senator Walter E. Edge, and of 42,485 over former Judge Cornelius Doremus, who ran as a "bone dry" candidate. On the same ratio, Senator Whitney's indicated plurality was about seventeen thousand. It seemed likely that, except in the unexpected event of a decided overturn, he had won the nomination and would run in the election against Commissioner A. Harry Moore of Jersey City, who was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

Senator Whitney, at his headquarters in Morristown, refused to comment upon his apparent victory in view of the incompleteness of the returns. He expressed some concern over the lateness of the returns from Hudson County.

Mr. McCran at 2:30 o'clock this morning refused to admit defeat, and said he would have nothing to say until he had received more complete returns.

Returns on the Republican contest for the nomination for Governor from each of the twenty-one counties of the State follow:

With 1,669 of the 2,776 election districts having reported, the vote stood:

Blow to Senator Edge.

Senator Whitney's victory, if confirmed by the full returns, as expected, will be a serious blow to the prestige of Senator Edge, whose alleged domination of the Republican State organization was attacked by Senator Whitney in his campaign.

The prohibition and religious issues also figured in the campaign, Mr. McCran being a Roman Catholic. The Ku Klux Klan is said to have taken an active, although for the most part a secret, part in the campaign and some of its leaders this morning were claiming at least part of the credit for Senator Whitney's apparent victory.

Predictions were made that the religious issue would be continued at the election in November, and such bitterness over the result was expressed by some of Mr. McCran's supporters that the chance of Mr. Moore, the Democratic candidate for Governor, of carrying the State next Fall was believed to have been increased by the result of the primary election.

PLAN A CONFERENCE ON NATION'S TAXES

Senator Smoot, Mills and Other Republican Leaders Would Fix Federal and State Fields.

WANT COOLIDGE TO CALL IT

But It Is Said at White House That He Knows of No Program and Sees Difficulties in Way.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Administration leaders, headed by Senator Smoot, Chairman of the Finance Committee, and Representative Ogden Mills of the House Ways and Means Committee, are laying plans for a tax conference between the Federal Government and the States, to be held in Washington early in the Winter, if possible in December.

President Coolidge has been urged to take the lead in such a move, but it was stated at the White House today that he knew of no definite program as yet, and that he appreciated the difficulties of getting the States and Government together to discuss proposals whereby one or the other might have to relinquish cherished fields of taxation.

Nevertheless, tax leaders in the Republican Party are convinced that a conference of this character would be most advantageous and would clear up some of the conflicts and overlappings now existing. Senator Smoot declared this afternoon that he desired to see the Government control the income tax field, while the States should be allowed to have full sway in imposing inheritance taxes. According to a speech Mr. Mills made in Rochester last Sunday, the Federal Government is now taking the cream of taxation and leaving the States to struggle along with what they can avail themselves of.

While the whole field of taxation would be covered at the proposed conference, the main subjects discussed would be the gift and inheritance taxes, Senator Smoot said, and he again expressed the view of the Administration that the inheritance taxes now levied by the Government should be either wiped out or greatly reduced.

Tilson Favors Tax Reduction.

Another Administration leader who pleaded today for the same course toward the inheritance taxes, and also for a drastic cut in the higher surtaxes, was Representative John Q. Tilson of Connecticut, Republican leader of the next House. In an interview just before he left for his home Mr. Tilson said that the President's economy program, if continued, would warrant a substantial tax reduction.

Although Congress does not open until December, the House Ways and Means Committee will meet in October, and Senator Smoot announced today that the Finance Committee would hold meetings in November. The Senator went to the Treasury today to talk over the general situation with Secretary Mellon, but because that officer was away the conference was postponed until a later occasion. No definite Administration program has yet been drafted, according to Senator Smoot, who said that sounding the sentiment of the country was the principal task at present.

Asked about his recent statement that men of $4,000-$5,000 incomes who did not wish to pay taxes were not good Americans, Senator Smoot said he stood by his guns, and added that it would not be possible to exempt all incomes below $5,000 as has been advocated by Senator Cousens of Michigan and is favored by Representative Garner. Too large a reduction in governmental revenues would be brought about, the Senator stated.

As Senator Smoot arrived in Washington last week just a day or two before the President declined to lower the tariff on sugar, Democratic politicians have connected the events and have made slighting remarks about the Senator's natural interest in the beet sugar of his State of Utah. Mr. Smoot said this afternoon that the President was entirely justified in his course, and added that the sugar interests who wished the duty lowered would not be pleased to have $125,000,000 collected in duties imposed on them as taxes in order to make up the deficit.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi, who has been one of the Democrats most anxious to have the duty lowered, is expected in Washington tomorrow and will doubtless have something to say on the President's findings.

Washington Awaits Green.

CRISIS FOR TRANSIT PLAN

GUIDER LEADS THE FIGHT

Is Joined by Connolly of Queens—Brooklyn Taxpayers Assail Assessment Scheme.

Mayor Hylan lost control of the Board of Estimate yesterday and there was every indication after its meeting that his $542,000,000 subway construction program was on the rocks unless an agreement on routes could be reached between Joseph A. Guider, Borough President of Brooklyn, and John H. Delaney, Chairman of the Board of Transportation, which Mr. Delaney said would be impossible.

Although the discussion centred upon the routes proposed by Mr. Delaney for Brooklyn and Queens, it was made evident that a majority of the board was likely to be against the Delaney plan for paying 25 per cent. of the cost of new subways by assessments, which Mr. Delaney said was necessary to enable the city's proposed independent subway to be operated at a five-cent fare. An agreement was reached to take up the Brooklyn and Queens routes at another meeting on July 1. In the meantime Mr. Delaney will confer with Mr. Guider, Maurice E. Connolly, Borough President of Queens, and residents of those boroughs in an attempt to reach some sort of an agreement.

Revolt Almost Complete.

The revolt of board members against the Mayor was almost complete. Mr. Connolly, who has announced that he favored the renomination of Mayor Hylan, declared that he was dissatisfied with the routes proposed for Queens and that he would stand with Mr. Guider for the latter's alternative Brooklyn routes on the theory that the President of a borough was the official who should know what its people wanted. Mr. Connolly also declared he was against the assessment plan.

Julius Miller, Borough President of Manhattan, who has always been friendly to the Mayor, indicated that he, too, would stand with his fellow Borough President. Henry Bruckner, Borough President of the Bronx, and William T. Collins, President of the Board of Aldermen, let it be known that they would side with Mr. Guider and the only member of the board who did not indicate an intention of deserting Mayor Hylan was John A. Lynch, Borough President of Richmond.

Because of the agreement to take up the question of routes later, there was no division of the board, but if there had been, the indication was that Mayor Hylan could only have mustered four votes out of the sixteen votes on the board, his own three and Mr. Lynch's one. Against the Mayor and Mr. Delaney were Controller Craig and Mr. Collins with three votes each, Mr. Guider and Mr. Miller with two votes each and Mr. Connolly and Mr. Bruckner with one vote each.

For practically the first time in seven years Mayor Hylan found himself in a hopeless minority on the board, the policy of which he has dictated for the greater part of his administration. He seemingly realized his predicament, for he said comparatively little, and when he did interject a word or two it was for the purpose of attempting to get harmony between Mr. Guider and Mr. Delaney.

Many Sharp Interchanges.

The entire session of the board, which was held both in the morning and afternoon, with a recess for luncheon, was marked by sharp verbal interchanges with frequent interruptions from several hundred taxpayers present, some of whom shouted at intervals for the board "to get busy and act."

After more than an hour of bitter wrangling at the beginning of the morning session, Mayor Hylan tried to send the Brooklyn and Queens routes to a conference between Mr. Delaney and the five Borough Presidents. Mr. Delaney said he was willing to go into such a conference, but declared that he would not change his opinion regarding the routes.

"I am opposed to the Delaney routes," Mr. Connolly said on his arrival at the meeting. "I don't think Queens got enough in these routes. I want the Long Island City route to go through Steinway Avenue instead of Jackson Avenue, and I do not think that details

39 KILLED, 48 HURT IN LACKAWANNA WRECK; CLOUDBURST WASHED SAND OVER TRACKS; VICTIMS ON EXCURSION BOUND TO GERMANY

Trainman, Sole Survivor of Crew, Sent Alarm And Set Flares, Although Dazed and Hurt

SCRANTON, Pa., June 16 (AP).—Dazed and semi-conscious, but still retaining his railroad instinct, after being thrown heavily to the floor of the coach when the Lackawanna special was wrecked at Rockport, N. J., this morning, Barney Judge of this city, flagman of the ill-fated train and sole survivor of the crew, extricated himself from the wreckage, grabbed his red lantern, flares and torpedoes, groped his way through the darkness and crawled down the step to protect the train from a rear-end collision.

His senses partially revived on leaving the train, Judge hurried along the tracks and threw a flare, which gives a blazing red light for ten minutes and acts as a signal for an emergency stop to an oncoming train. Walking further, waving the red lantern, he came to the telephone booth at the Rockport siding. There he ignited another fuse, placed torpedoes on the rails and sent in his call. Within a few seconds a dispatcher answered and in simple railroad language Judge gave him the wreck story.

"Extra East 1104 at Rockport wrecked. Both east and west bound tracks blocked. Many killed and injured. Am flagging about 200 yards west."

Judge remained on duty with his flag until relieved. He then boarded a westbound train and arrived in this city this afternoon. Although badly unnerved and suffering from shock and bruises he did not wait for medical attention but hurried to his home, where his wife and seven children, the eldest a boy of 12, awaited him.

MISS POPE ADMITS DEAL FOR FORTUNE

Testifies She Will Share "Fifty-Fifty" in McClintock Estate if Will Is Broken.

SHEPHERD DEFENSE ELATED

She Declares Youth Not Fond of Shepherd—His Letters Forecast an Early Break.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Two little words at the end of Miss Isabelle Pope's testimony today did more than all the other efforts of the defense to break down her story of her disinterested love for "Billy" McClintock, which led her to want to marry him on his deathbed.

"Fifty-fifty" were the words, covering the agreement as to her share in the McClintock fortune which she had made with the heirs, when they determined to try to break young McClintock's will leaving everything to William D. Shepherd, now on trial for causing "Billy's" death.

Up to that moment Miss Pope had been poised and charming, choosing her speech with care, and showing a well-bred repression of her emotion, which made a marked impression. But the vernacular of money-splitting fell on the ears of those in the court room with the definiteness of a shock, and William Scott Stewart, attorney for Shepherd, turned from her with a smile of satisfaction and announced that he was through.

This was the first reference to the McClintock money, which has hung over the case like a sinister cloud, both sides presenting it as a motive. It came unexpectedly. Mr. Stewart brought out the girl's knowledge of the will, and then her admission that she knew of a contest by some cousins in Iowa.

"And you have made an agreement through the representatives, I take it, of yourself and of those heirs so that you will get some money in case the will is broken; is that right?" asked Mr. Stewart.

"I made the agreement after the inquest with the heirs," she said, slowly.

"And how much are you to get in case this will is broken?" he asked.

"You can find out from my attorneys on that," answered Miss Pope, who obviously had not expected this question. She hesitated and appeared embarrassed.

"Don't you know?" Mr. Stewart persisted.

"I know something about it. I don't know very much," was the reply.

"Well, I am just asking you the amount. How much do you get?" asked Mr. Stewart suavely, leaning confidentially toward her.

"Well, it is ——."

"No, it is a fifty-fifty proposition."

"Yes," said Miss Pope.

"You get half of it then?"

"Except for $100,000 that I asked them

GUILTY OF TORTURING UNWELCOME SUITOR

Father and Son-in-Law Convicted of Beating and Using "Twisters" on Victim.

VERDICT REACHED IN 1 HOUR

W. S. MacClymont and R. M. Stelle Turned Over to Sheriff for Sentence This Week.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 16.—A verdict of guilty was returned here this afternoon by a jury in the cases of William S. MacClymont, a real estate broker of Yonkers, and Randolph M. Stelle, a broker living in Plainfield, N. J., who were charged by William Holland of Howarth, N. J., with having tortured him in an effort to make him cease paying court to MacClymont's daughter, now Mrs. Stelle.

The defendants were charged with second degree assault, a charge that carries a maximum jail sentence of five years. County Judge William F. Bleakley said that he would pronounce sentence either Thursday or Friday of this week. The two men were remanded to the custody of Sheriff Arthur S. Maudlin to await sentence.

The trial, which attracted much attention, opened yesterday, when Holland told his story of having been beaten and kicked in the office of J. Romaine Brown & Co. in Yonkers, where MacClymont was manager, by MacClymont and Stelle on the evening of June 25, 1924. After he had been choked almost unconscious, he said, a chain was twisted around his left wrist and the chain turned until the links cut into the flesh and the blood spurted from the wounds. In several places the chain cut to the bone, Holland charged.

His story with regard to the wounds was confirmed by Dr. William Schoonover of Yonkers, who said he had attended Holland on June 25 last and that the wounds seemed to have been caused by the links of a chain. Holland lived in Yonkers at that time.

Admits Using the Chain.

Admitting that he had used the chain "to protect himself from assault," MacClymont on the witness stand today denied that he or his son-in-law had inflicted torture upon Holland. He said that he had called Holland to his office to question him about a letter that his daughter had said Holland had intended to write to Stelle, which, he feared, would belittle her character. While questioning Holland about the letter, Stelle came to the office. Words followed, and Holland was asked to take off his coat, so that it might be searched for the letter. No letter was found, and it was then, he said, that Holland struck him.

MacClymont said he grappled with Holland and they fell over on a desk, and later to the floor. While in this position, MacClymont said, he got one hand free and reaching in his desk took out the chain and wrapped it around Holland's left wrist.

The chain, which is known to the police as "twisters" or "comie alongs," is of the type used by the police to subdue refractory prisoners. MacClymont said he carried it in his desk as a means of protection, as at one time three gypsy women had endeavored to rob his office.

Assistant District Attorney John W. Holsworth asked MacClymont, when he made the statement, as to his intended use for the chain: "What did you expect to do, scare them by shaking this in their faces?"

Tells of Fight in Office.

After he had subdued Holland by means of the chain, MacClymont said he got to his feet and then Holland started to fight again. At this time MacClymont said that he called to Stelle, who had been a witness of the fight, and asked him to hold Holland for a minute as he was getting winded. After a further tussle MacClymont said that Holland agreed to remain quiet and that Holland put on his coat and hat, straightened his tie and left the office.

DERAILED IN BIG STORM

MOST OF DEAD SCALDED

MANY STRICKEN IN SLEEP

Special to The New York Times.

HACKETTSTOWN, N. J., June 16.—Thirty-nine persons are dead and 48 are in hospitals, as the result of the wreck of a special train early this morning on the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad near here, and about sixty miles from New York. A heavy electrical and rain storm caused the wreck by washing sand and gravel upon the tracks. Thrown off the rails by this obstruction, the engine turned over and carried with it four of the seven all-steel cars.

Almost all the dead succumbed to burns received when the locomotive boiler exploded and flooded the derailed cars with scalding steam. Eight persons died at the scene of the accident, and thirty died during the day in hospitals. More deaths are expected. The death toll may be increased by as many as sixteen.

Except for seven members of the train crew, all the dead and injured were German-Americans bound from Chicago to Hoboken, whence they were to have sailed this morning for Bremen. The survivors were taken to Hoboken on another train. They sailed on the steamship Republic of the United States Lines, which was held for two hours to receive them.

The party consisted of American citizens of German birth or descent participating in an excursion arranged by Leopold Neuman, a Chicago steamship agent. Neuman has held such an excursion every Summer for several years, bringing the travelers back in September.

Train Carried Excursionists.

The train left Chicago at 6 P. M. Sunday with 182 passengers. The two coaches, four Pullman sleepers and dining car were decorated with banners reading "Neuman's Party. S. S. Republic, Bremen, Cologne, Munich, Vienna." The party spent Monday in Niagara Falls, leaving Buffalo at 6 o'clock last night. It was due in Hoboken about 7 o'clock this morning.

Between Delaware Water Gap, Pa., and Lake Hopatcong, N. J., the train traveled over the old main line of the Lackawanna instead of taking the shorter cut-off built several years ago. It had traversed more than half of the loop at the time of the accident.

The wreck occurred about 3:25 A. M., Daylight Saving Time, when virtually all the passengers were asleep. The train passed Washington, N. J., at high speed, in accordance with the custom of locomotive drivers, who try to pick up momentum on the downgrade known as Rockport Sag, in order to mount the upgrade leading into Hackettstown more easily.

In this part of New Jersey the electrical storm earlier this morning had been accompanied by rain which was almost a cloudburst. Five miles east of Washington and three miles west of Hackettstown there is a road known as the Mansteel township and Rockport Highway crossing. A slide of dirt and mud had been washed down the hill over this crossing during the night. Sand and gravel washed in around the planks between the rails and built up a little hill on the tracks.

Derailed by Dirt Piles.

The pony truck of the engine, supporting the small wheels at the front, was evidently thrown off the track by the dirt piles, according to the railroad company's investigation. The company found that the small wheels, after bumping along for 100 feet, struck the frog of a cross-over switch known as Rockport siding.

Smashing the switch, the locomotive bumped along a few feet and then dived off the track and plunged into a twelve-foot embankment along the right of way. The engine tipped over on its side. Two day coaches and the Pullman cars Sirocco and Northland followed it off the rails. The first two cars behind the locomotive were day coaches, but people were sleeping in them as well as in the Pullmans. The first coach tipped over on its side next to the locomotive, and the second coach was thrown crosswise on the track, one end on top of the engine and the other end on the bank. One Pullman toppled over on its left side, the other on its right. The last three cars of the train did not leave the rails.

The engineer, two firemen and the head trainman were killed instantly. A few passengers also died immediately, one woman being decapitated. These were the most fortunate of those who died, for the others suffered terribly first.

Scenes of agony, and at the same time of the utmost heroism, occurred in the first few minutes after the wreck. The derailment of the locomotive and the

Vandals and Drought Menace Park Trees, Says Gallatin, Offering Plan to Save Them

Park Commissioner Francis D. Gallatin in a statement prepared yesterday for THE NEW YORK TIMES told how he thought Central Park might be saved from vandalism and its trees preserved. The Commissioner said:

"The four crying needs of our parks are protection, cultivation and fertilization, planting and a sufficient water supply.

"The most flagrant forms of vandalism are rife. It was reported to me the other day that two 8-inch trees had their entire bark stripped from them. A pine tree was girdled and other trees seriously injured, if not destroyed. The money value of the damage done in that one evening would easily be $1,000.

"Not only are trees deliberately destroyed, but the constant tramping around them hardens the ground, and prevents the penetration of water and breaks the minute hair roots by which the trees live.

"Protection may be afforded in two ways, by fences and by a sufficient force of especially trained police.

DENTISTRY BY SPECIALISTS. UNIQUE organization of twenty-six members, specializing in seven dental branches. Send for booklet. Dr. Cady, 346 Fulton St., Brooklyn.—Advt.

"A large area of the park each year should be plowed and fertilized. By this means our trees would receive their proper nourishment. On account of the great recent mortality, our parks, in many places, are quite bare. Trees of a medium size, from four to five inches, of hardy varieties, should be planted in large numbers. Some trees of larger size might also be placed in the park.

"One of the great causes of the mortality of our trees is lack of sufficient water. Since there is no underground supply, the trees are literally parched during the long droughts of the Summer months. An extensive water system should be installed.

"The report of Mr. Davey, the tree surgeon, indicates that the quantity of noxious gas in the atmosphere is so slight that the death of our trees cannot be attributed to it. This being accepted, I believe that if the measures I have listed are taken our parks can be restored to their former beauty."

Leopard Mauls Stewart Edward White; His Party Killed Five Lions With Arrows

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

NAIROBI, June 16.—Stewart Edward White, the American novelist, has been mauled on the shoulder by a leopard in the Tanganyika territory. A native gunbearer was also injured on the head.

Mr. White, who is recovering from his injury, had been hunting with bows and arrows.

Reports state that he and his party have killed five lions with arrows, although in many cases they had to use rifles.

Stewart Edward White sailed from New York on March 7 for a hunting trip into the heart of Africa to last eight or nine months. He was accompanied by Dr. T. Saxon Pope of the Department of Surgery, University of California, and by Dr. Arthur H. Young, motion picture director. Dr. Pope and Dr. Young are expert archers, but Mr. White at the time of his departure explained that he was a novice at the sport. It is the author's third trip to Africa. On his earlier expeditions he shot thirty-seven lions and two elephants.

The bows and arrows carried with the party were similar to those used in the Battle of Crecy on Aug. 16, 1346, when the French were routed by English bowmen. The arrows were 28 inches long and will penetrate an inch board. They have a steel head 3 inches long. The bow is 5½ feet long and its pull weight is 80 to 100 pounds.

four cars, the explosion of the boiler, and the escape of the steam among the just awakened and stunned occupants of the derailed cars came almost simultaneously. To make the terror worse the lights on all the cars went out immediately, the intense suffering from the steam, the fight to escape from the overturned cars, and the attempts of the first rescuing parties to carry the victims out, all were wrapped in a blanket of darkness.

Only once in the early part of the rescue work was there any light. But this was only a threat of another danger, for it came from a fire started by the hot coals from the locomotive. For a few seconds the rescuers had to turn their attention from the victims, in order to seize hand extinguishers and put out this blaze.

The first rescue parties consisted of persons from the three rear Pullmans, which kept the rails. Shaken and dazed by the sudden halt, the uninjured passengers ran out without waiting to dress. Accompanied by Pullman porters and one or two trainmen who were not badly hurt, the pasengers rushed up to the front of the train, where they were horrified by the sight of the riven locomotive and cars.

Steam Drives Them Back.

At first the escaping steam made it impossible for any of the rescuers to enter some of the derailed cars. Therefore they broke windows to let the air into the steam-filled cars, and helped those injured passengers who were able to crawl out of windows and doors.

Several men and a woman trained nurse headed rescue parties, ordering their companions to carry blankets and mattresses from the rear car to the front. As soon as possible a few rescuers got into the stricken cars. They carried blankets in which they wrapped the victims, pushing them out of the windows to other rescuers. Stretchers were improvised from mattresses and car doors, and some of the injured were carried back to the undamaged Pullmans at the rear.

Every attempt was made to alleviate the suffering but there was a tragic lack of soothing oils and ointments with which the burns might have been treated. Moreover, the darkness made it impossible for the rescuers to handle the victims without increasing their pain so that the suffering and the cries of anguish were heartrending.

Outside of the uninjured members of the excursion train the first rescue work was performed by farmers living in the vicinity of the railroad. Survvors of the wreck praised the work of the famers very highly, not only for the assistance they gave in getting victims out of the train, but for the rapidity with wkhich they called help from the outside world despite the fact that most telephones in the vicinity were useless because of the storm.

A Farmer's Swift Help.

Joseph Snyder, a farmer living near the crossing, had been awakened by the storm and was sitting at his window. He saw the accident and heard the roar of escaping steam and the screams of the passengers. Running to the scene, he saw men and women, frenzied with pain as the steam flooded the derailed cars, fighting in the darkness to escape. Passengers struggled out, shrieking with agony. Some begged Snyder to kill them and others asked him for morphine or anything else to ease their pain. One man offered a thick roll of bills to any one who would kill him.

Snyder ran to his house and tried to telephone for help, but his telephone had been put out of use by the storm. He and his wife then gave first-aid treatment, taking some of the injured into their home and bandaging their burns. They aroused Lyman Gulick, a farmer living near-by, who drove up and down the country roads in his Ford car, awakening farmers and telling them to rush to the scene of the wreck. Elmer Clayton, another farmer, drove to Hackettstown to give the alarm.

Superintendent Duncan Bunn of the State Game Farm, near Hackettstown, was the first to get word of the tragedy to the outside world. His telephone was working and he called up every physician and every hospital he could reach within a radius of thirty miles. Physicians jumped into their cars and drove from all directions, while ambulances came from hospitals in Morristown, Dover and Phillipsburg, N. J., and from Easton, Pa.

Relief Work in Darkness.

For the first half hour after the accident farmers, trainmen and uninjured passengers from the rear cars worked in darkness to rescue those caught in the derailed cars. Guided by screams, the rescuers groped inside the unlit cars, risked the danger of scalding and carried the victims out. The dead and injured were laid on blankets and mattresses taken from the sleeping cars.

Russell B. Flumerfelt, a young farmer, was credited by witnesses with almost superhuman feats of rescue work. He smashed car windows, broke down doors and twisted pieces of iron as he fought his way into the worst of the cars. Then he carried out victims, keeping up the work until the car was empty and the ambulances, physicians and nurses arrived.

The physicians gave hypodermic injections of morphine to about fifty persons, nearly all of whom were suffering from burns. According to the physicians, they could have saved the lives of many who died later in hospitals had proper oils and dressings been available at the scene of the wreck.

Approximately sixty persons, about half of whom died subsequently, were taken to hospitals. The three Pullman cars which stayed on the rails were turned into a special relief train. With an engine sent from Stroudsburg, Pa., they took about forty of the injured to Easton. Ambulances took others to Dover, Morristown and Phillipsburg. The bodies of those who died at the scene were taken to a morgue in Hackettstown later in the day. The bodies of the engineer and firemen were not recovered from the wreck for several hours.

Special Train for Survivors.

Another special train, run to the scene of the wreck from Morristown, took the survivors, some of whom had slight burns and wounds, to Hoboken, where they boarded the Republic. Wrecking crews were sent to the scene from Hoboken and Stroudsburg, but it took them until after 3 o'clock this afternoon to clear the tracks, both of which were blocked by the wreckage. Meanwhile all Lackawanna trains were routed over the new cut-off between the Water Gap and Lake Hopatcong.

E. M. Rine, Vice President and General Manager of the Lackawanna; H. H. Shepard, General Superintendent, and J. J. Pierce, Superintendent, came here this morning from their offices in New York and Hoboken, and spent the day investigating the accident and trying to clear the tracks for traffic. Railroad police arrived at the scene early, and kept everybody off the right of way except railroad employes, public officials and doctors and nurses.

Hundreds of automobiles from near-by parts of New Jersey visited the wreck.

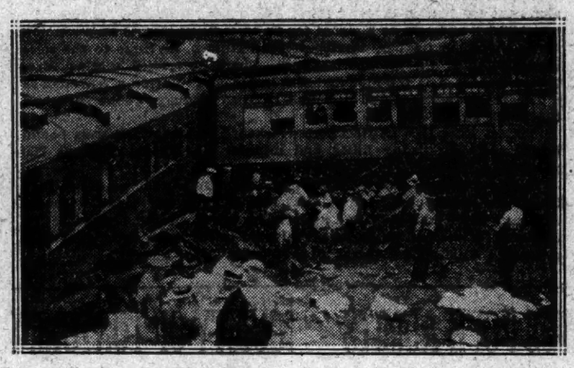
TWO VIEWS OF THE LACKAWANNA WRECK.
These two photographs were taken from opposite sides of the wreck at Hackettstown. The steel cars were not crushed, most of the fatalities being due to clouds of steam which enveloped the wreckage when the locomotive boiler exploded.



The second coach swung over the wreckage of the first, then turned at right angle up the embankment.

blocking the highway at one time for a mile and a half. The State police, arriving from their headquarters at Netcong, finally stopped any more automobiles from going toward the scene of the accident.

Investigations Are Begun.

The New Jersey Board of Public Utilities began an investigation in Trenton this morning and sent James Maybury Jr., chief of its Bureau of Railroads, to the scene. Newark reports said that a preliminary report on the wreck sent to the Newark office of the board by Robert White, Superintendent of the Morris & Essex division of the railroad, indicated that it might have been caused by lightning hitting the rails. This was not born out by subsequent investigations. Railroad men and public officials agreed that the slide of dirt on the tracks was the cause.

Two Coroner's inquests were in prospect tonight. Justice of the Peace E. J. Wildrick of Hackettstown said he had been empowered by Dr. G. W. Cummings of Belvedere, N. J., County Physician of Warren County, to hold an inquest tomorrow or Thursday. Dr. Cummings also said he had directed Justice Wildrick to do this. Justice Wildrick empaneled a Coroner's Jury tonight and after viewing the eight bodies in the morgue here adjourned the inquest pending arrangements for witnesses to come here and testify. He said he would probably continue his inquest here some day this week.

Coroner William Fisk of Phillipsburg, who was here this afternoon, also prepared to go on with an inquest. He said it was impossible to proceed because witnesses and records had been taken to Hoboken, that he expected to hold an inquest on Monday.

Neuman, who arranged the excursion, was a passenger in one of the Pullmans. He was uninjured. He said that the 182 passengers on the wrecked train were part of a party of 250 German-Americans from Chicago, and that the others came to Hoboken on other trains. The travelers, he said, were prosperous middle-class folk. Many of them had several thousands of dollars with them in money belts.

The members of the train crew all came from Scranton, Pa., and had long records with the Lackawanna. They had taken over the train from another crew at Scranton to bring it into Hoboken. Fred Loomis, the engineer, was found with his hands still on the throttle. One of his firemen, Carl Haen, was sitting beside him. Nathan J. Banker, conductor, was badl yscalded and died in a hospital in Easton. Among the other dead men of the crew was James Scanlon, head trainman

Railroad Issues a Statement Blaming Wreck on Storm.

"About 2:25 A. M. (Eastern Standard Time) today passenger extra 1,104 East, consisting of engine 1,104, steel coaches 38 and 23, and five steel Pullman sleepers, handling steamship passengers from Chicago, Conductor N. J. Banker, Engineer Loomis, had passed Washington 2:17 A. M., and at a point five miles east of Washington, at what is known as the Mansteel Township and Rockport Highway crossing, the engine struck a slide of dirt and mud which had washed down the hill over the road crossing during the heavy thunder shower last night. This evidently threw the pony truck of the engine off the track, and on striking frog of cross-over switch, 100 feet east of road crossing, the engine and four cars derailed.

"The engine tipped over on its side, as well as coach 33 and coach 28, being thrown off its truck and crosswise on track, one end on top of the engine, the other on the bank. Pullman cars Sirocco and Northland derailed and tipped over. The engineer and fireman were killed and are still under the engine, and Head Trainman James Scanlon of Scranton also killed. Conductor N. J. Banker was seriously injured.

"So far as can be learned there are five other passengers dead and eighty or more who are more or less seriously injured and who have all been removed to hospitals at Easton, Phillipsburg, Dover and Morristown. There were 182 passengers on the train, and those that were killed were badly scalded by steam escaping from the engine. Both tracks are blocked and it will take all day to clear wreckage."

The statement was issued on the basis of the first deaths which occurred at the scene of the wreck itself and did not take into consideration the many deaths which occurred later. In the later afternoon the company made public a list containing twenty-eight dead and forty-two injured. Other deaths occurred still later.

NURSE A HEROINE IN WORK OF RESCUE

Mrs. E. B. Heaker Rushes Out of Car in Her Nightclothes to Aid Suffering.

Survivors of the wreck described the scenes during the accident to reporters yesterday afternoon in Hoboken, where the uninjured boarded the S. S. Republic for Bremen, and in the various hospitals to which the injured were taken.

Many witnesses joined in praising the rescue work of Mrs. E. B. Heaker of Park Ridge, Ill. Mrs. Heaker is a trained nurse, having been graduated from the Illinois General Hospital. She was traveling on the special train with her husband and her seven-year-old daughter, Marie. None of her family was injured.

Awakened in one of the rear cars by the first crash of the wreck, Mrs. Heaker rushed out in her night clothes and took charge of the early work of administering first aid to the injured. She directed her husband and another man to act as stretcher bearers and remove the injured from the steam-filled cars to the ground outside and to the rear Pullmans. Then she supervised the work of tearing sheets for bandages and applying first aid treatment to the most seriously burned.

Mrs. Theresa Ebsen of 830 Castlewood Terrace, Chicago, helped in the rescue work. "I was asleep when the crash came," she said, "and would have been thrown from my berth had I not clung to the curtain rod. I rushed to the forward end of the train, where I heard some one say the accident was not serious. But a second later I heard piercing cries coming from the forward end of the train, and I jumped off the train, only to land in several feet of water at the foot of the embankment. I kept on, and in a moment distinguished in the darkness the forms of men, women and children writhing on the ground, groaning and moaning. I dashed back to the rear cars and carried out blankets and sheets.

"I cannot conceive of a scene of more horrible suffering. One man kept moaning 'Won't some one help my wife?' A little girl with face and arms burned was crying feebly for her mother. A tiny boy of 6 said to me: 'Don't bother about me. Help Jimmy first.' Jimmy was his 5-year-old brother. The older boy died later."

Frank H. Murphy, District Passenger Agent of the United States Lines, who was aboard the train, said that never in the most trying times at the front during the war had he seen men undertake the work of rescuing the injured with a more reckless disregard of their own safety. He spoke particularly of the negro porters, two of whom, uninjured, had gone back into the steam-filled cars and suffered burns from which both are expected to die.

"One old woman," he said, "was crying for a rosary. I had one and gave it to her. One little fellow with his face pressed against the hot glass of a window was crying for someone to save his younger brother. I have been through one bad wreck as well as some bad times at the front and I have never seen a crew behave so well as that one last night."

Christian H. Oberheide of the Oberheide Coal Company, 1,335 Bradley Street, Chicago, took charge of much of the rescue work before the arrival of relief trains with doctors and nurses. He calmed the excited passengers who were unhurt and directed them in the work of preparing the rear coaches as temporary hospitals.

Farmers' Wives Helped.

"I had two cars filled with those badly burned and dying," he said, "and then had others placed on blankets near the cross-roads where we expected the ambulances. We had great difficulty in getting sufficient water, which was brought from farmhouses when the tanks were exhausted. Some of the farmers' wives brought lard and olive oil, for which there was the greatest need, as practically all the victims were suffering from burns. I saw very few who were crushed or mangled from the impact." Mr. Oberheide also paid a tribute to the efficiency and bravery of the porters and the rest of the train crew.

Mrs. Anne Jollie of 4,743 Kilbourne Avenue, Chicago, and Mrs. Mary Spitzer of 1,061 Addison Street, Chicago, and her daughters, Dorothy and Eleanore, said they were asleep when the wreck occurred.

"I dreamed I was sliding downhill and that I suddenly stopped," Mrs. Jollie said. "Then I woke up and found I was on the floor of the car. We went out and saw the wreck and heard groans and moans and shrieks. I helped Mrs. Spitzer get her children out.

"Farmers, with their wives and sons and daughters, came and started rescue work quickly. They were barefooted and in their night clothing, but they did wonderful work."

Mrs. Spitzer said she was approached by a woman more than 70 years of age whose hand was smashed. A physician saw the woman and treated her, Mrs. Spitzer said.

One woman who was pinned beneath a steel beam waved rescuers aside, although her left foot was severed at the ankle.

"Don't bother about me," she said, "my husband is in that wreckage. For God's sake get him out." Five minutes afterward she was dead.

A large German woman with her face badly cut ran frantically up and down the top of the embankment where the injured had been placed on bedding taken from the sleeping cars.

"Greta! Greta!" she screamed, and then disappeared in the darkness.

Dr. W. G. Cummins, Warren County physician, said:

"This is the most horrible tragedy I have ever seen. When I arrived I found everything confused. Those who were not hurt were poking into the wreckage trying to help. Women were shrieking hysterically and men hurried about, many of them in a daze and not knowing what to do. Those who were scalded were in a pitiful condition. Some had skin burned from their faces, arms and legs and others were groaning with pain from their burned bodies. The bodies of the engineer and the firemen were mangled beyond recognition when they finally were recovered from the wrecked engine."

Harry Anderson of Washington, N. J., said:

"When I was told of the wreck I was at a fire in Hackettstown. A friend and I went right over to Rockport, which is only half a dozen scattered houses, without even a general store. Lackawanna Railroad trains do not stop there. To get to the scene of the wreck we turned our maching off the Hackettstown road onto a dirt road. It was sand from this dirt road that was blanked from the wreck.

"When we stopped our car 200 feet from the wreck, about 4:30 A. M. Daylight Saving Time, we heard men and women moaning. It was dark, and the rain had stopped and there was only a little lightning. There was no steam in the wrecked coaches at that time. Three Pullman coaches that had staid on the rails were being got ready to take the injured on board and an engine was soon attached to them.

"They were taking people out of windows of two wrecked cars. Both of them seemed in the darkness to be Pullmans. All those taken out were scalded and were lifted out in blankets. We started to help the injured in any way we could. A man asked us to get a blanket for a scalded man lying on the wet ground. They had just brought some one out from one of the cars, and had dropped a blanket. We took it to the scalded man, who was groaning and was in too much pain to say anything.

"We got some blankets and tore them up for bandages. Then we went up a steep, low dirt embankment at the side of the tracks and at the top a dozen men and women lay groaning on the grass. All were terribly scalded. From there we could look into the first car, a day coach, which was split open all along the top. We could see the head and feet of a man's body which could not be got out because wreackage was wedged over it.

"The twelve people lying near us were on blankets and pillow cases and sheets. An uninjured woman was trying to stop another woman, one of the twelve, from getting up. 'I want to walk to the train,' the injured woman said. She knew that the three intact cars of the train were going to be taken to Easton. But her companion wouldn't let her go, for her feet were scalded.

"Close by a man was taking care of a friend who had been badly burned on the chest. The unhurt man had succeeded in making his companion comfortable and was helping people as much as he could. Several men came with a mattress, to be used as a stretcher. They put one of the worst injured on it and went to the improvised hospital cars. Some more men came with a door. All were taken to the train on these.

"State policemen arrived about 5 A. M. All the dead and injured had been taken out, so they gathered together the scattered baggage and put it in one place under guard. We went into one of the Pullman cars. It was an awful place.

"Some one brought a hearse from somewhere and it was used as an ambulance.

"A small fire that broke out in the front end of the train soon after the accident was put out by hand extinguishers sent on a fire truck from Hackettstown.

"The first relief train to arrive brought hospital supplies, including many cans of olive oil to ease the pain of the burns. Supplies put on the train when it was made up were supplemented by Red Cross supplies put on by the Hackettstown Red Cross unit."

William Horn of 2,830 Walters Street, Chicago, lost his wife and small son, George, in the confusion, although none was injured. After getting out of the train he left his wife and child and went to Easton on the relief train with a friend who had been injured. It was not until he reached Easton that he remembered his family. Then he took the first train to the scene of the wreck, but was turned by railroad men that his wife and son had gone on to Hoboken. He learned nothing about them last night except that they probably had sailed on the Republic.

Other families and groups of friends were separated during the confusion after the accident. In such cases, those left behind are expected to sail on the Berengaria today, and to rejoin their relatives and friends on the other side. Leopold Neuman, who arranged the excursion, said in Hackettstown after the accident that he might sail on the Berengaria.

EXCURSION STEAMER SAILS.

The Republic of the United States Lines, in which the 182 members of the Neuman excursion from Chicago and the Middle West had been booked to sail for Germany, was scheduled to leave Pier 2, Hoboken, at 11 o'clock yesterday morning for Queenstown, Plymouth, Cherbourg and Bremen. The remainder of the passengers were all on board with their baggage when the news came of the wreck of the special train sixty-two miles away. The officials of the United States Lines got all the available men from their pier at the foot of West Forty-sixth Street with the men from the Hoboken pier to rush the passengers and their baggage to the ship directly the relief train arrived. Everything possible was done to hurry things up, but it was 2 o'clock in the afternoon before the Republic started away from the pier.

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, June 17—Blazer stripes were borrowed from the jacket of the English cricket player and also from the punter on the Thames. To punt is to propel a flat-bottomed boat with a long pole. Blazer stripes, than which no pattern is more youthful and colorful, have now been applied to madras shirts of the smarter sort. The collar and cuffs of these garments have vertical stripes, instead of the usual horizontal design. Exclusive, but not expensive.

3 CHILDREN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

TROLLEY CRASHES INTO CAR

Two Slightly Hurt—Boy Suffers Fractured Skull as Driverless Vehicle Knocks Him Down.

Chasing a ball yesterday from the sidewalk in front of his home at 335 Stockton Street, Brooklyn, 4-year-old Perry Goldner was knocked down and instantly killed by a motor truck. Max Ostrow of 360 Bristol Street, Brooklyn, driver of the truck, employed by the Triangle Farms Company, 778 Hart Street, was arrested on a technical homicide charge by Policeman Jomasek of the Clymer Street Station.

Lois McFarland, 6 years old, of Bergenfield, N. J., was on her way to the last session of school when she ran in front of an automobile and was killed. Several other children saw the accident. They told the police that the car had been driven by a woman, who, after stopping and viewing the body of the victim, had become unnerved and had driven off.

One of the boys, Lloyd Bleckman, copied the number of the license plate and turned it over to Policeman George E. Bauer, who lives near the home of the McFarland family. He had begun a search of schools in neighboring communities when Mrs. Marjorie Winken, 22 years old, a teacher in the school at Old Tappan, N. Y., who lives in Bergenfield, drove to the scene of the killing in her car, accompanied by her husband, whom she had summoned from his office in New York after driving as far as Bogota. Mrs. Winken admitted that her car had killed the little girl, and explained that she had driven off to get her husband, because of the effect the accident had had on her.

"I was paralyzed with fear when I saw the child in front of my car," Mrs. Winken explained to the police. "I drove to the curb and stopped after the accident. I became hysterical when I saw the body of the little girl. My only thought was to drive to New York and get my husband. How I got to Bogota, I hardly know. I managed to get Mr. Winken on the telephone and went to the office of a physician and waited for him."

Mrs. Winken fainted while telling her story. Witnesses said that she had been driving slowly at the time the child was knocked down. They added that little Lois had run ahead of the other children and into the path of the car. Later, when Mrs. Winken was arraigned before Recorder Paul S. Towne, she was released in $3,000 for the action of the Grand Jury on a technical manslaughter charge.

Dominick Micalizzi, 10 years old, of 86 Second Street, New Rochelle, N. Y., died shortly after dawn yesterday in New Rochelle Hospital of injuries received the night before when he was knocked down by an automobile in front of 65 Franklin Avenue. George W. Crawford, 27 years old, of 11 Morris Street, driver of the car, was exonerated at a hearing later before Coroner Fitzgerald. Witnesses said the victim had run in front of the car from between two parked automobiles.

Miss Olive Gillis, 27 years old, an actress, of 365 New York Avenue, Brooklyn, and Douglas Goodwin, 34 years old, of London, England, manager of the bank of the steamship Berengaria of the Cunard Line, were slightly hurt last evening when the sedan in which they were riding was struck by a southbound surface car at Columbus Avenue and Eighty-fifth Street.

Miss Gillis was driving the car. She started to turn west into the side street when the surface car, operated by Frank Snyder, struck the sedan and pinned it against an elevated pillar. Fragments of glass cut Miss Annie Rorke of 208 West 128th Street and several other passengers on the surface car, the forward truck of which was torn from the body and thrown across the rails to the northbound track.

Policeman Thomas J. Henry of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station and several civilians had to rescue the actress and Mr. Goodwin from the wreck of the automobile through the front window. Miss Gillis and Miss Rorke were attended at the scene by Dr. Goodman of Knickerbocker Hospital. Goodwin had received severe bruises about the back and deep cuts on the right arm. He had to be taken to the hospital for treatment. A wrecking crew worked half an hour before it could separate the automobile and the surface car and replace the latter on the forward truck. Traffic was blocked on north and southbound tracks.

Samuel Jacobitz, 8 years old, of 501 West 124th Street, was playing with other boys last evening near his home when he was knocked down by a driverless automobile and received a possible fracture of the skull and internal injuries. He was removed to Knickerbocker Hospital. The car was owned by Frank Rugliese, 2,436 Wallace Avenue, the Bronx. He had left it standing in front of 520 West 124th Street, near the top of a slight incline, but said he had clamped on the brake.

Persons in the neighborhood said they had noticed several small boys playing about the automobile. It was believed that one of the boys had released the brake and had thus started the car down the street. Dr. Hamilton, who took the boy to the hospital, said his condition was serious.

PALESTINE BODY SPLITS.

Assembly Is Rent on Question of Woman Suffrage.

JERUSALEM, June 16 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—The third session of the National Assembly of the Palestine Jewry split today over the question of woman suffrage. The progressive elements demanded that women have the right to vote and to be elected to the National Assembly, which is recognized by the Government as a body dealing with the internal affairs of the Jewish community.

The demand was opposed by the Orthodox Jews. The entire Right Wing of the Assembly, including the Mizrachi organization, the Yeminite Jews and the Sephardim, left the Assembly Chamber.

Later at a meeting the seceding groups passed a resolution calling for a separate Orthodox Jewish National Assembly which will not admit women.

SHAW BACKS EPSTEIN IN ART CONTROVERSY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—George Bernard Shaw today entered the heated Epstein controversy which has been raging in the press and on the platform here for some weeks, and, in a letter to The London Times, comes out whole-heartedly on the side of the sculptor's Hudson Memorial.

Mr. Shaw's letter followed a special visit paid to Hyde Park.

"I found the way by an eloquently tramped path to the crowded railing where I confronted a very remarkable sample (I use the word advisedly) of great art in the monumental wall of sculpture which we rather feebly call a bas-relief," writes Shaw. "It was unquestionably the real thing, with all the power of stone, all the illusion of strenuous passion, even movement, that live design can give. But it was a sample ridiculously small.

"It reminded me of a Quaker cloth merchant of my native Dublin, famous for his imperturbability of temper. A young English officer, after making him take down every roll in his shop, at last selected a cloth and gravely said he would take a halfpenny worth. Unmoved, the Quaker cut the piece the exact size of a halfpenny, wrapped it neatly in a paper and handed it respectfully to the customer.

"It is evident that the Hudson memorialists, having collected what they could, were compelled to go to Epstein and say, 'Please, sir, Mother England wants four yards of your best monumental wall sculpture to put in the park for one of her famous sons.'

"Epstein solemnly delivered four yards which bear about the same proportion of what is needed as the Quaker's halfpenny worth of cloth bears to a suit of clothes.

"That's what comes of ordering your monument when you've only money enough to pay for a Christmas card.

"We get monuments to our national meanness in matters of high art. If it had been at Wembley now! Next time, if we cannot afford to give Epstein carte-blanche, we'd better get the job done in Euston Road in a thoroughly commercial manner.

"I've a great deal of sympathy with the people who hate the Epstein sample. Some feel the reproach of its inadequacy, for which they innocently blame Epstein. Some don't like the monumental wall sculpture and are in the grievous position of people who want a fox-trot and get a Beethoven symphony thrust in their ears.

"Why should not these people, who have a perfect right to their own tastes, have a monument bird sanctuary all to themselves? There is plenty of room in the park. Both need not cost much. There is a process called photo-sculpture, by which pretty reliefs can be made by a camera. If Fay Compton or Gladys Cooper would pose as Rima with a stuffed pigeon on each wrist, the artist who touches up the photo-sculpture could throw in a few swallows, a robin, a holly branch and the result would be exactly what is wanted by honest folk whose sense of beauty is outraged and mocked by Epstein's powerful proceedings. Why not please everybody when it is so easy?"

ASKS $53,175 ALIMONY.

Former Mrs. J. L. Dodge, Now Married Again, Demands Back Payments

Trial of a suit brought by Mrs. Fanny Stanton Eichelberger of Los Angeles against her former husband, John L. Dodge, President of Bell & Co., manufacturers of a proprietary medicine, for $53,175, claimed to be owed her on a divorce agreement, was begun yesterday in the Queens Supreme Court before Justice Dike and a jury.

Mrs. Eichelberger, who married and divorced Mr. Dodge twice, claims she was to receive $12,000 yearly after their divorce in 1915, but that payments ceased on Feb. 1, 1919. Mr. Dodge admits there was such an agreement, made in 1914, but declared his wife obtained it by threatening not to go through with the divorce, and contends that her marriage to Frank Eickelberger made the agreement void.

Senator Whitney led in Bergen County, home of Judge Doremus, getting 330 votes in the first ten districts to report, to 245 for Judge Doremus and 236 for Mr. McCran.

State Senatorial candidates were nominated in seven counties, but there were only five contests and these all on the Republican side. Only one of the present Senators seeking re-election was unopposed, Alexander Simpson, Democrat, of Hudson County.

The Republicans had contests for the Assembly nominations in eleven out of the twenty-one counties, as compared with four Democratic contests for Assembly nominations. The Republicans put forward no candidate for the Assembly in Sussex County.

Nominations also were made in one Congressional district, the Third, composed of Middlesex, Monmouth and Ocean Counties, to fill the vacancy caused by the death last December of Representative Teodore F. Appleby, Republican. Frederick Schneider of New Brunswick, a member of the Republican State Committee, and Stewart Appleby of Asbury Park, a son of the man whose place is to be filled, were candidates for the Republican nomination. J. Lyle Kinmouth, publisher of The Asbury Park Press, was unopposed for the Democratic nomination.

The Voting is Light.

The vote throughout the State appeared to have been unusually light. It was thought that the change in the law, fixing the date of the primary election in June instead of September, might have had something to do with it, but reports from practically all the counties indicated that the Republican voters of the State took comparatively little interest in the election.

A light vote was reported from the centres of population like Newark and Jersey City and scattered returns from the rural counties failed to indicate that the voting had been heavier there.

One place from which a comparatively heavy vote was indicated was Ocean County, and this was due, not to the contest for the Republican nomination for Governor, but to the contest for the Republican nomination for Senator between Captain Thomas A. Mathis, the incumbent, and Mrs. Lila W. Thompson, a member of this year's Assembly. The assignment of Mrs. Thompson's husband, the employe of a State department, outside the State, and his return after her charge that he had been ordered away to prevent him helping in her campaign, made her a dangerous contender for the nomination, although incomplete early returns did not indicate that she would defeat Senator Mathis.

Vote Until Late in Evening.

The polls opened at 8 o'clock in the morning. Daylight Saving Time, and did not close until 9 o'clock in the evening, Standard Time, or 10 o'clock, Daylight Saving Time. Voting was slow in the early part of the day but became brisker toward evening. Because of the late hour of closing the polls, few returns were available at 1 o'clock and little definite news on the Republican Governorship contest was expected before midnight.

In Atlantic City and County the vote was the smallest in years. Not more than 15,000 votes were cast in the entire county.

Isaac Nutter, negro leader, was unsuccessful in his effort to obtain the Republican nomination for State Senator from Emerson L. Richards, the incumbent. Nutter polled a large vote in the negro quarters of the city and is said to have received the support of the Ku Klux Klan, members of which attended the formal dedication of a negro church at Pleasantville, near here, a few nights ago. Senator Richards will have two opponents at the November election. They are Robert L. Warke Jr., who was unopposed for the Democratic nomination, and Samuel Leeds, President of the Atlantic City Chamber of Commerce and a wealthy hotel owner, who has announced that he will run independently.

WHITNEY AN EX-BANKER.

Leader in Jersey Primaries Has Had Wide Financial Experience.

Arthur Whitney, who early today apparently had won the Republican nomination for Governor of New Jersey, was born in Morris Plains, Morris County, N. J., on July 5, 1871, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Whitney of that town. He attended the Morris Academy and St. Paul's School in Concord, his education being interrupted at the age of 17, when he went to work as an iron handler in the Central Iron Works at Harrisburg, Pa.

A few years later he gave up this work to enter the newly organized Fifth Avenue Trust Company in New York, and in 1902 he became a partner in the banking firm of W. H. Goadby & Co. For thirteen years he remained with the Goadby Company, retiring in 1915 to enter political life.

Mr. Whitney was first elected to office in 1916 when he was a candidate for the Assembly. He was reelected the following year and in 1918 went to the Senate to fill an unexpired term. In 1919 and again in 1922 he was returned with increasing majorities. His financial experience has caused him to take an active interest in the State's business affairs. He has introduced and passed several financial measures, and served on numerous committees on appropriations.

Woman Defeats Woman Mayor.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 17.—The village of Estelle Manor was created by the New Jersey State Legislature in Trenton last Winter. Mrs. Rebecca Winston, a Democrat, was elected Mayor in February for a short term. She was defeated for re-election today. She received 15 votes, losing the race by 3 votes to Mrs. Ida Farrell.

Lightning Shatters Equitable Building Cornice; Leaves Wake of Damage in 3 Eastern States

Bolts of lightning shattered a part of the cornice of the Equitable Building early yesterday morning, smashed a water main in Jersey City, burned a barn at Bedford, N. Y., and entered a sitting room in West Orange. It did damage over New York State, Connecticut and New Jersey.

After four hours of occasional flashes lightning became active, over a wide area of the East. For two or three hours it played incessantly over all boroughs of New York City, and the thunder crashed and rolled with never more than a momentary pause.

For two hours it was a dry storm. Then came hail, followed by heavy rain. For a few minutes it blew a twister, rattling windows and slamming doors all over New York, stripping trees and and damaging buildings in the country.

The bolt hit the Equitable coping near the top of the thirty-seven story structure at 2:25 A. M. and strewed Nassau Street 485 feet below with granite fragments.

Smashing the water main in Jersey City, the lightning caused the flooding of the basement at 6 Tonnele Avenue, from which Mrs. Minnie Conklin and her two sons escaped with the aid of a policeman.

Four hundred patients of the Montefiore Home in Bedford Hills, N. Y., saw a wooden stable connected with the home burned to the ground after being struck by lightning.

LOS ANGELES DENTIST INDICTED FOR MURDER

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 16 (AP).—An indictment charging the murder of his wife, Grace Grogan Young, former widow of Patrick Grogan, millionaire, was returned by the County Grand Jury here today against Dr. Thomas W. Young, dentist, who confessed slaying her with lethal gas.

A search for a "certain young and handsome woman" was announced by Edward King, investigator for the District Attorney's office, who added that she "is believed to have aided the dentist in administering the lethal gas."

During the investigation by the county Grand Jury of the killing of the woman, whose body was found embedded in the cement of a cistern beneath Young's cabin in Beverly Glen, near here, last Saturday, other investigators were given new leads to other deaths said to have been related to Young's past life.

One of these was furnished by Bryan C. Braden, a former schoolmate of Katherine Leonard Young, who was married to the dentist at Washington City, Pa., in 1905 and who divorced him in 1909.

Mr. Braden informed the District Attorney that he had information which led him to believe that Young was implicated in the killing of a woman in a Los Angeles hotel prior to his marriage to Grace Grogan Young, two years ago.

A telegram also was sent today to John Leonard, father of Katherine Leonard, asking him if he had given $100,000 worth of Liberty bonds to Young.

These bonds, investigators say, were found in Young's possession after his arrest. He explained their presence by saying he had received them from Leonard. Young had told officers he had given this amount in bonds to his wife before she disappeared Feb. 2 last.

Several thousand dollars worth of jewels and approximately $10,000 worth of Liberty bonds belonging to Mrs. Young are being sought by District Attorney Asa Keyes. He announced that he intended to have alienists examine Young in an effort to forestall an insanity plea at the trial.

SLAYER GETS LIFE TERM.

Somerville (N. J.) Man Convicted of a Murder Committed in 1918.

Special to The New York Times.

SOMERVILLE, N. J., June 16.—Pasquale de Pierro, 40 years old, was convicted here today in the Court of Oyer and Terminer of the murder in the first degree of Paul Andonio Denedetto. The jury, which was out an hour, recommended life imprisonment, and Supreme Court Justice Charles W. Parker immediately imposed this sentence.

Denedetto was killed March 24, 1918. De Pierro was arrested last March at Richmond Hill, Queens. The trial was begun yesterday. Part of the evidence today included a letter written by de Pierro to a relative in which he said, "Yes, I have done this. It was not my fault. They forced me * * * and they wanted to kill. It is better to see people die than to die."

LONGWORTH IS GUEST AT PARIS LUNCHEON

Tells Distinguished Audience That Friendship of France and America Will Persist.

PARIS, June 16 (AP).—Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, Speaker of the House of Representatives, was the guest of honor today at a luncheon of the Inter-allied Club over which Marshal Foch presided. Mr. Longworth pleased the distinguished gathering by beginning his speech of thanks in French.

"I have sworn ten times before two portraits to defend the Constitution of the United States—those of Washington and Lafayette," he said. "The intimate union for right and justice, of which these two portraits are symbols of the past, cannot fail to persist in the future."

Marshal Foch recalled the wartime role of the United States. During his trip to America in 1921 he said he found "the spirit animating the fighters multiplied from one end of the country to another in numbers and enthusiasm."

He alluded to the Longworth family's connection with France, pointing out that General Count de Chambrun, Mr. Longworth's brother-in-law, was now in command of the French forces at Fez.

GILDA GRAY GETS HER SON.

Special to The New York Times.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 16.—Gilda Gray has gained the custody of her son, Martin, aged 11, in order to give him a university education. When she obtained a decree from John Gorecki, former Milwaukee bartender, on Jan. 29, 1923, the court gave the custody of the boy to the father, with the understanding that the mother or her parents were to have him one month each Summer.

An affidavit by Mrs. Gil Boag, which is now Gilda Gray's real name, was filed here several days ago with Judge Otto H. Briedenbach with a stipulation between Gilda and Gorecki. Mrs. Boag asked the court to modify the terms of the divorce decree to give her custody of her son. It was apparent from the stipulation that Gorecki imposed no barrier.

Gilda's affidavit sets forth that she now earns ample to provide an education for Martin, that she is worth in excess of $100,000 in her own right, that it is doubtful if Martin could go further than the eighth grade of the school in his father's custody, whereas she plans to enter him in a boarding school and later in a good university.

FIND A JERUSALEM WALL.

Excavators Believe It Is "Third Wall" Referred to by Josephus.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, June 16.—An important discovery of what may prove "the third wall of Jeruselam" was made a few days ago by the Jewish Palestine Exploration Society. While excavating the area between the English Cathedral of St. George and the Italian hospital they uncovered long stretches of a wall of Herodian masonry with characteristic frames, large bosses and a thickness of twelve feet. This confirms certain suppositions as to the line of Agrippa's wall, the third wall referred to by Josephus.

In the vicinity has been discovered a mosaic floor of a late Byzantine chapel, having geometrical ornament and funerary inscription.

The discovery of this third wall has no bearing on the controversy as to the site of the Holy Sepulchre, which turns on the position of the second wall. Work is progressing under the supervision of Dr. L. A. Mayer of Government Department of Antiquities and E. L. Sukenik of the Jewish Palestine Exploration Society.

apparently uninjured. At the door MacClymont said that Holland admitted his annoyance of Miss MacClymont and asked that nothing be said to his mother about his actions.

Stelle, on examination by Ralph E. Prime, counsel for the defense, confirmed the statement of MacClymont and said that he had kept out of the argument at his father-in-law's request.

Mrs. Stelle testified that she and Holland had worked in the same office, and that after she became engaged to Stelle Holland had annoyed her on several occasions, and that finally his actions became such that she resigned her position. His last efforts to annoy her, she said, were invitations to go auto riding at night with him. If she did not do this, she said, he declared he would write a letter to Stelle belittling her character. She told her father and Stelle of this, and then resigned her position.

Stelle admitted that he had telephoned to MacClymont early on the afternoon of June 25, telling him he would be at the latter's office about 6:30 o'clock, but was a little delayed.

Holland testified that he went to Mac Clymont's office, at the latter's request, about 6:30 o'clock. Stelle said that he never had seen Holland before he met him in Mac Clymont's office, and in response to the prosecutor's questions, although Holland was accused of having insulted his fiancée, he said he did not feel any particular animosity against him.

Must Remain in Custody.

"Then Mac Clymont said to you, 'Rand, here is the man that has been annoying Marion, and he denies all about the letter,' why didn't you punch Holland in the eye instead of simply looking on as this old gray-haired man fought with him!" Mr. Holsworth asked.

"Why, that would have been assault and a criminal thing to do, and I wanted to keep within the law," Stelle replied.

In summing up the prosecutor said that he had been unable to find any justification for the actions of Mac Clymont and Stelle, and that they had committed "an act utterly devoid of any reason to excuse it, an act of deliberate premeditated torture on a youth weighing about 100 pounds."

The jury deliberated for an hour and then returned a verdict of guilty on the charge of assault in the second degree. Attorney Prime made a motion to set aside the verdict, which was denied by Judge Bleakley. He then asked permission to file briefs on a question of law as to the nature of second degree assault, which was granted. Judge Bleakley saying that he would impose sentence within a day after the receipt of the briefs. He refused to admit Mac Clymont and Stelle to bail, saying that the law required prisoners to remain in the custody of the Sheriff after the case had gone to the jury until sentence was imposed.

CRAIG TWITS HYLAN ON SINNOTT EXPOSE

Offers to Give Him Information He Desires if Mayor Will Explain 86 Messages.

ENLIVENS ESTIMATE BOARD

Charges City Was "Stuck" on Claims by Inadequate Defense—Mayor's Move for Inquiry Beaten.

Mayor Hylan and Controller Craig engaged in a spirited colloquy at yesterday's meeting of the committee of the whole of the Board of Estimate. The Controller twitted the Mayor with the disclosures of relations between his office in the City Hall and the bonding firm of Sinnott & Canty.

The exchange of repartee began over Mr. Craig's request for funds to meet a settlement made by him of a claim for $425,000 by the Mason & Hanger Co., Inc., which built the Fourteenth Street Eastern subway. The claim was for increased costs and expenses. The Mayor accused the Controller of engaging to pay out this money "without saying anything to anybody."

"We want more information," declared the Mayor. "We want to know why this $425,000 of the city's money is recommended for expenditure without any explanation."

"That is the Controller's business," replied Mr. Craig tartly. "The Mayor cannot settle a claim; if he did, it would be matter for an inquiry."

Mayor Hylan moved that this request for an appropriation be put over pending investigation by the Commissioner of Accounts. He spoke with some heat. Controller Craig retorted that the Corporation Counsel had been "stuck" for $900,000 on one claim, for $240,000 on another and another large sum for a third. He declared that his settlement for $425,000 was really a settlement on a basis of 30 cents on the dollar.

"Do you mean the Court was wrong?" interrupted Borough President Maurice E. Connolly of Queens.

"No," replied the Controller. "I mean the case was inadequately defended."

Again the Mayor declared the people wanted to know more about the $425,000 expenditures. The Controller countered the insinuation by asking:

"Tell us something about the eighty-six Sinnott & Canty messages that passed between your office and Sinnott & Canty's, which you wanted the people to pay for through the Controller's office. If you don't tell that, we won't tell anything about the $425,000."

"We will get the information," responded the Mayor. "And we'll find out about those eighty-six messages before everybody is finished with you," the Controller shot back.

The spectators roared. One inquired audibly, "What was that—a draw?" The board voted favorably on Craig's request.

The other tilt came when Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, interrupted the meeting to demand: "Why has not Controller Craig already invested the $8,600,000 fund of the City Employes Retirement System in 4½ per cent. municipal bonds? I understand he is empowered by the statute to do so."

"Ask him," suggested the Mayor.

Smiling amiably, the Controller drawled slowly, "I'll answer all of Mayor Hylan's friends during the campaign, and you'll be included in that bunch."

Members of the board glanced significantly at each other. Maurice E. Connolly, Borough President of Queens, who was sitting for the first time since his return from Europe, remarked: "That is interesting information."

Several months ago Mayor Hylan criticized the investment of retirement funds by the Controller and started to devise means of having the board make the investment, but the action of the board yesterday was a complete surrender and recognition of the Controller's prerogative in the matter.

NEW REJUVENATING THEORY

Dr. Steinach Is Said to Get Results by Stimulating Circulation.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, June 16.—A stir has been caused here by the report of the latest discovery of Professor Steinach, a treatment by chemical rays, said to have a wonderful rejuvenating effect.

The new process, it is declared, is applicable to everybody without risk of harmful reaction. The effect is said not to be permanent, but the process may be repeated any number of times.

Asked about the truth of the report, Dr. Steinach refused a statement pending the perfection of the new process, but admitted that his work was progressing. It would seem that the new treatment is based on acceleration of the blood circulation.

BORAH WANTS US OUT OF CHINESE TROUBLE

Replying to Cablegram From Americans, He Urges Abandoning Extraterritorial Rights.

REJECTS POWERS' QUARRELS

He Says "It Is Not to Be Presumed We Will Be Drawn Into Any Controversies."

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—No reason exists why the United States should be drawn into any conflict with China, and on the other hand the American people desire to see China's national rights and interests entirely respected, declared Senator Borah, Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, in a reply this afternoon to a message cabled to him from Americans now in China.

Withdrawal of this country's extraterritorial rights at the earliest moment was advocated by Senator Borah in the same cablegram, and later it was learned that he considered such a move, together with the adoption of a policy that would give full recognition to the nationalistic ambitions of the Chinese and to the territorial integrity of their country would act quickly in solving the present situation.

The cable message of the Senator follows:

I see no reason why the United States should be drawn into any controversy or conflict with Chinese authorities or the Chinese people. Doubtless the situation, as you say, is serious, but not serious by reason of any acts or policies of the United States, and it is not to be presumed that we will be drawn into controversies of other powers.

The United States has not evinced any imperialistic designs in China, and I venture to believe the American people as a whole would like to see the national rights and interests of China fully respected. Personally I would favor the withdrawal of extraterritorial rights in China as speedily as practicable and a policy adopted by all which would respect the territorial integrity and national rights of a great people. BORAH.

Neither the message which elicited his response nor the identity of the Americans in China was revealed by Senator Borah, who merely gave out the copy of his message with the comment that he believed the course he indicated to be the proper one, and that he favored withdrawal of American extraterritorial rights from every country as a basic principle. He has expressed himself vigorously on this point before, notably when the yet unratified Lausanne Treaty of 1923, between this country and Turkey, was before the Foreign Relations Committee.

Without light on the matter from Senator Borah it is difficult to know if he had any special intimation when he stated that it was not to be presumed that this country would be drawn into the controversies of other powers. There have been mysterious hints in Washington that some of the other powers desired America to participate in an intervention program, and that the State Department was hearing of these proposals, although not committing itself.

While the message from China was addressed to Senator Borah as an individual, the presumption is that he was approached as the Chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. However, it was ascertained that he replied purely from an individual standpoint and did not undertake to express the views of the Administration.

Killed on Way to Son's Graduation.

EUROPE IS DISCUSSED ABOARD SHIP AT SEA

International Commerce Chamber Delegates Prepare for Brussels Conference.

STEAMSHIP GEORGE WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP) (by radio).—Members of the American delegation to the International Chamber of Commerce which will meet at Brussels next week are holding a series of meetings on this ship to discuss their position upon the subjects to come up at the Brussels meeting. The George Washington left New York June 10 for Plymouth and Cherbourg carrying 160 members of the American delegation.

A. C. Bedford, Chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company and head of the American delegation, asked John H. Fahey of Boston and New York at the first meeting to lead the discussion upon the economic restoration of Europe. The discussion emphasized the opinion that the next two or three years would be the critical period in the working out of the Dawes plan. It was pointed out that the transfer of large sums from Germany to allied countries under that plan would be of direct importance to the United States as a creditor nation.

Much attention was given by the delegates to a suggestion that Germany be encouraged in the exportation of capital and goods for the construction of public works in undeveloped countries.

Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, the new American Ambassador to Germany, was an interested spectator at this meeting, with W. A. Bullard, Vice President of the Merchants National Bank of Boston.

Questions of double taxation, unification of banking laws, international exchange and credit information were presented in a discussion led by William P. Sydney, Vice President of the Western Electric Company.

Another discussion, led by Judge Edwin P. Parker of Washington, umpire in the German Mixed Claims Commission, considered international protection of patents and trade-marks.

SOVIET REMOVES EDITOR.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MOSCOW, June 16.—Yury Stekloff, editor of Izvestia, the official organ of the Soviet Government, was removed today from his post. He was editor from the first day the Bolsheviki seized power and was regarded here and abroad as the official mouthpiece of the Government, and his dismissal when officially announced, will cause surprise among Communists and non-Communists alike.

M. Stekloff, who is an ardent Communist, was found by the party controlling commission guilty of breaking party discipline and living in greater style than the average party standard. His suite was shared by several other members of the editorial staff. M. Stekloff rejoined Lenin's group after the overthrow of the Czar and gave Bolsheviks great support during the campaign against provisional Government.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, arrived today at Southampton on the Aquitania for a three months' holiday.

The relations between the United States and Great Britain, the Ambassador told a Morning Post interviewer, were excellent. He said there might have been trouble if the twelve-mile limit agreement had not come into operation, but that measure obviated the possibility of any pinpricks or stirring up of strife.

Asked whether there was any new arrangement for a disarmament conference, Sir Esme said there was little chance until the European situation had cleared. If the security pact proposals worked satisfactorily, he thought it possible President Coolidge would interest himself.

ROYAL ASCOT OPENS IN A RIOT OF COLOR

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—Royal Ascot began today in a blaze of sunshine. Never had its green lawns, crowded with women in smart gowns and men in gray tall hats and correct morning dress, looked more lovely. The attendance was enormous and the victory of the King's horse in the Queen Mary Stakes added just the touch of sentiment that always appeals to an English race crowd's heart.

The big event on the program, the Ascot Stakes, for £2,000, was won by Lord Derby's Mandelieu, an 8 to 1 chance.

The scene on the gay lawn of the royal enclosure was especially attractive. The enclosure is reserved for those who have been presented at court and a large number of American society women enjoyed the privilege. A party of them who occupied benches and filled in the time before the royal procession by writing postcards to friends across the Atlantic attracted much attention.

Royal Procession Arrives.

The King and Queen, accompanied by Princess Mary, the Duke and Duchess of York and Viscount Lascelles, arrived for the historic procession in seven open carriages. They drove from Windsor and as the scarlet clad coachmen and grey horses were seen against the green foliage of the trees as the carriages came at a sharp trot down the centre of the course there were cheers from all quarters.

The men of the royal party all favored light gray morning coats and gray tall hats. The Queen wore pale mauve embroidered with silver and a mauve toque embroidered across the front in shades of cyclamen mauve. Princess Mary favored a pink dress and a mat of golden tinsel straw trimmed with pink roses over the crown. The Duchess of York chose rose pink chiffon patterned with flowers of darker shades and had a rose pink crinoline hat.

Lace and a flutter of ribbons characterized the majority of dresses in the paddock, and the parasol came into its own again. The latter varied from enormous unbrella-like creations of waxed cloth with bold designs on the surface to dainty creations of light chiffon. Some were trimmed with flowers, some with ribbons and one had a curious design of a colored starfish as border.

Away from the abode of fashion, where the great public disports itself at Ascot as at any other race course, the effect of the heat was shown in less charming fashion. Even the bookmakers bowed to the hot weather and floppy Panama hats, Oxford trousers of wonderful hue and the fanciest of fancy waistcoats adorned the stands from which they cajoled the public to hand over its money.

Gay Scenes in Enclosures.

A refreshing breeze made the bright sun bearable and laughter, the rattle of teacups and chatter of the latest gossip filled the enclosures. Princes of India resplendent in turbans and jeweled buttons, diplomats from the ends of the earth, royal Princes and hundreds of Americans strolled about laughing with the prettiest débutantes of the season and exchanging tips on betting.

Altogether it was a splendid start of the greatest open air society function of the year, which will last till Friday.

This year Ascot has an extra attraction. Many from the numberless house parties in the country houses nearby are going to the great military tattoo at Aldershot, where British soldiers of the present day of grace are garbing themselves in uniforms of 110 years ago to fight once more the battle of Waterloo.

loans are under foreign control and the coupons have always been regularly met, these securities have rarely been much affected by internal disturbances, but on the present occasion the prices have fallen several points.

Troops Guard Foreigners in Peking.

PEKING, June 16 (AP).—The Minister of Communications has ordered special protection for all foreign employes in the Ministry and for foreign travelers on Chinese railways. Efficient police have been assigned for their protection.

Responding to representations from foreign legations, the Peking Government today brought detachments of General Yu-hsiang's troops into the city for guard duty, and also posted pickets outside the principal offices of foreign firms and foreign residences.

Several companies of General Chang Tso-lin's troops alsoarrived in Peking this afternoon, but it is doubtful whether they will be able to cooperate with General Feng's men.

The contingent of Chang Tso-lin's troops from Tientsin has established headquarters north of Peking. Because of the order maintained at Tientsin, where Chang Tso-lin is in control, the arrival of his troops here has given a feeling of reassurance to the people.

The barricades around the Legation quarters of Peking were guarded by increased forces on Sunday night, and barbed wire entanglements were erected in view of the reports of possible anti-foreign riots that night. No trouble occurred, however, but the same precautions were continued yesterday in view of the demonstrations held throughout the city.

Last night the entanglements were removed and the number of guards reduced.

Students of the normal schools are promoting a nation-wide rally for June 25, which is the "Dragon-boat Festival" or midsummer settlement day, when all financial accounts should be squared.

RIGA, June 16.—The Red trade unions have sent to the Chinese revolutionaries another £5,000, and the Society for Assisting Distressed Communists Abroad has sent to the Shanghai strikers a further £3,000.

RED EXECUTED AT HANKOW.

Plot by Agitators to Cause Fighting Is Frustrated.

HANKOW, June 16 (AP).—The Chinese authorities executed a Bolshevist agitator this morning. He was one of seven arrested by the Chinese for inciting to disorder.

Many agitators of the Kuomintang, or People's Party (communists), have been arrested and a quantity of arms and ammunition seized as the result of the discovery of a plot, which did not materialize, to cause fighting at the foreign concessions on Sunday night.

The American consul and Chinese officials conferred regarding evidence of Kuomintang connivance to bring about a clash between Chinese troops guarding the foreign concessions and the foreign guards, also stationed there. The Chinese garrison commander admitted he had received information that agitators with bombs and guns intended to approach the concession lines and fire upon both the Chinese and foreign forces, intending to create the impression that each was being attacked, and thus to cause the two forces guarding the concessions to commence fighting each other. Each side was warned and evaded the trap.

Quiet prevailed here today, with local volunteers and naval forces from foreign ships still standing by in readiness for any emergency.

The British light cruiser Despatch arrived this afternoon with marines.

Reports of unrest have been received from Foochow and Amoy, ports in Fukien Province, between Shanghai and Canton.

COMMUNISTS RULE CANTON.

Disarm Last of Yuman Troops—Russians May Be Sent Out.

CANTON, June 16 (AP).—The last stand of the Yunnanese troops, who surrendered Canton on Saturday after a week of fighting with Cantonese troops, was made yesterday.

About 3,000 of the men from Yunnan returned from the east to Canton and occupied Kenkyum Hill, on the outskirts of the city. There another battle took place. The Kwangtungites finally defeated and disarmed them.

Evacuation of soldiers from the city proper is expected soon. It also is reported that Russian Bolshevikl now in Canton will be required to leave.

WUHU, China, June 16 (AP).—Anti-foreign meetings are being held here, but so far without disturbances.

Wuhu is a treaty port with a population of more than 100,000, on the Yangtse River, about fifty miles southwest of Nanking.

HONOLULU, June 16 (AP).—China will never be greatly influenced by Soviet Russia, said S. T. Wen, a Chinese delegate to the Pan-Pacific Relations Institute, who told a group of church workers that "practically everybody in China owns something."

China, he said, was suffering from the pressure of modern industrialism, but "no matter whether the Government is good or bad the country will not be affected, because the Chinese are a patient, tolerant people, not a warring people."

AMERICAN ENVOY REPORTS.

Charge in Peking Says President Assures Protection.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Ferdinand L. Mayer, American Chargé d'Affaires in Peking, cables:

"The senior Minister called upon the Chief Executive on the 15th in order, categorically, to request from him a guarantee of protection of life and property of the foreign residents in Peking. Tuan Chi-jui gave such assurance in emphatic terms, stating that he had ordered one division of the Minister of War's troops to Peking to assist in maintaining law and order. These troops, belonging to Feng Yu-hsiang's forces, were stationed about the city on the morning of June 15, especially at the approaches to the legation quarter, for the purpose of lending support to the police.

"The general strike scheduled to take place on the 15th was postponed to the 25th at a meeting of representatives from many educational, commercial and labor organizations; the plan apparently being that on June 25 governmental, commercial, industrial and educational activities throughout the country will be stopped from 6 o'clock in the morning until noon; amusements of all kinds suspended; flags flown at half-mast and demonstrations to take place throughout China.

"Representatives of the Shanghai students interviewed the American Chargé d'Affaires, as well as the Italian, French and Belgian diplomatic representatives. The students declared that the student body realized the difficulties of the present situation, the importance of the absence of anti-foreign incidents and the necessity for a calm atmosphere, in which the Foreign Office and the heads of the legations concerned could solve the present situation.

"The assistance of the United States was requested to see that justice be done. The American Chargé d'Affaires expressed his gratification on learning the point of view of the Shanghai students, and assured them of the desire which the United States Government, as well as all the Governments concerned, had to see justice done; the great regret over the Shanghai incident, no matter who was to blame, and his personal feeling that the hope of China lay in the new generation of students, upon whom, therefore, grave responsibility rested for producing a state of affairs in China which would permit the powers concerned at the earliest moment practicable to carry the aims of the Washington conference to their logical conclusion."

A dispatch to the State Department from Consul General Jenkins, at Canton, dated June 14, said:

"The Police Department is beginning to function and it now seems likely that order will be restored shortly.

"Anti-foreign agitation continues and there is considerable uneasiness in Canton and other cities. During a student demonstration in Fuchow on June 8, a mob yelled 'Kill foreigners!' and threw stones at the American Baptist Hospital.

"The situation at Canton seems to be dominated by the Whampoa military school cadets, to whom the complete destruction of the Yunnan Army is due.

"It appears that Ng Bong Ping and other conservatively inclined Cantonese leaders will have a share in the new Government."

Consul General Jenkins is continuing his policy of urging Americans, especially women and children, to leave for Hongkong and other safe places.

CHINESE IN EUROPE ACTIVE.

Those in Belgium and Berlin Blame British and Americans.

CHARLEROI, Belgium, June 16 (AP).—An association representing Chinese students here issued a manifesto today assuring the Belgian public that the present uprisings in China were in no wise aimed against all foreigners.

The movement, it was stated, was only against "the Anglo-Saxons and the Japanese, because they impose inacceptable and inhuman working conditions on the Chinese workmen."

BERLIN, June 16 (AP).—The Kuomintang, or Chinese People's Party, has established a publicity bureau here for the announced purpose of counteracting American and English news of happenings in China, which the bureau's representatives assert mislead the German people.

At the first press conference yesterday it was said at the bureau that the purpose of the present uprisings in China was to take "the first decisive step on the road toward the liberation of China from the bonds of English, Japanese and American domination."

Berlin's sole Chinese restaurant has been drawn into the Far Eastern controversy. Chinese students here, who constitute the restaurant's principal customers, insisted that Japanese be barred. The proprietor yielded.

MOSCOW, June 16 (AP).—The Chinese residents of the Soviet capital held a meeting today at which protests were voiced against the measures taken for the protection of the foreigners during the strike riots at Shanghai.

After the meeting the participants marched in procession to Vorovsky Street, in which the foreign missions are situated, but Soviet militia had been stationed outside the headquarters of the British and Japanese missions, and the demonstrators were quickly dispersed.

TRANSIT ISSUES RISE, DUE TO CITY DELAY

HYLAN'S DILEMMA CITED

Market Experts Lay Increases to Mayor's Desire to Postpone Assessment Discussion.

Stocks and bonds of the New York City traction companies, including the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, the Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit Corporation, the New York Railways Corporation and the Third Avenue Railway Company, moved up yesterday for some of the largest gains these issues have made for many days.

According to students of the market, the reason for the activity in transit securities may be traced to Mayor Hylan's declaration in favor of postponing consideration of financing the city's proposed independent subway system until after the primaries this Fall. As there is a general opinion that the proposed assessment plan of financing subway construction will not be adopted and that the proposed municipal subway system cannot be operated on a five-cent fare, the Mayor's action was regarded in Wall Street as "bullish" for transit securities.

With the exception of the B. M. T. bonds and capital stock, the issues of the New York City companies have supplied a rather erratic index as to the future of the companies under the existing 5-cent fare.

B. M. T. Has Risen Steadily.

Steadily increasing earnings of the B. M. T., made possible largely by the reorganization effected two years ago, have been an outstanding exception and the bonds and shares have been improving correspondingly in market value. The situation in Interborough and Third Avenue has been more uncertain, for reasons applicable only to these companies individually.

Interborough stock, which sold this year as low as 13¾, as against the year's highest price of 94½, had recovered yesterday to 26⅝ on the current movement, and at the closing price of 26¼ yesterday was up 2¾ points on the day. The opening price yesterday was 25½, and the total transactions for the day were 10,200 shares, the heaviest in some time. During the day Interborough 5 per cent. bonds, due 1966, rose a full point to 69¾; the Interborough stamped 4s rose 1¼ points to 69⅝; Interborough 6s, 1962, rose ⅝ of a point to 71⅛, and the Interborough convertible 7s, 1932, advanced a full point to 91½.

B. M. T. shares, of which 12,000 were dealt in on the Stock Exchange, established a new high level at 52¼ and closed at 52, for a net rise of 2 points or dollars per share. The company's 6 per cent. bonds, 1968, advanced a quarter of a point during the day, compared with a final price on Monday of 90⅝. This was also a new record high. The forthcoming earnings report of the company for May is expected to be one of the best monthly statements since the reorganization of the B. R. T., and the indications were said yesterday to be that June would establish a new earnings record.

Third Avenue Up a Point.

Third Avenue Railway shares advanced a point on the day, at a closing price of 13, after these shares had touched 13¾ during the day, the transactions numbering 2,800 shares. Third Avenue refunding 4 per cent. bonds, 1960, were half a point higher at 55, and the adjustment income 5s were up 1½ points at 48½, compared with final prices on Monday.

The new issues of the New York Railways Company, recently emerged from a receivership under a drastic reduction in capitalization whereby fixed charges were about cut in half, were in good demand also and were fractionally higher. New York Railways temporary income 6 per cent., 1965, advanced to a high during the day of 31¼, a gain of 1¼ points from Monday's close; the refunding certificate 4s were 52 at the day's high, a gain of 1⅛ points, while the adjustment income 5 per cent. certificates were unchanged at 5.

Traction bankers, including those who make a specialty of buying and selling New York street railway and rapid transit securities, are more optimistic at present with regard to an ultimate solution of the local situation than they have been in any year since the war. This is the result, largely, of what they interpret as the waning authority of the Hylan Administration over fares and new transit programs.

PASSES ON SUBWAY BIDS.

Transportation Board Recommends That Gillespie Have Contract.

The Board of Transportation recommended yesterday to the Board of Estimate the award of the contract for the construction of the section of the Washington Heights subway in Central Park West from Eighty-ninth to 100th Street to the T. A. Gillespie Company for $3,997,748.50, the amount of its bid.

The board also recommended the award of the contract for station finish at the Main Street terminal of the Flushing extension of the Queens Borough subway to Norman A. Deiser for $246,477 and the contract for supplying ties and timber for the storage yards on the Pelham Bay Park branch of the Interborough subway to the Alfred R. Sax Lumber Company for $38,282.

of the plan have been worked up sufficiently."

Mr. Connolly, however, denied that his support of Mr. Guider indicated that he was against Mayor Hylan. "I am not against the Ma...or," he said. "So far as I know, the Mayor knew nothing about the routes until they were submitted. There is nothing political about the matter. It is merely a matter of deciding on subway routes."

In reply to Mr. Guider's contention that his route for the proposed Brooklyn crosstown subway could be built for $4,000,000 less than the line proposed by Mr. Delaney, the latter submitted estimates to show that Guider's route would cost more. Mr. Delaney declared his plan would cost $116,445,000, including $59,968,000 for the recapture of the Culver line, while construction of the lines proposed by Mr. Guider would cost $147,000,000.

"Foot for foot, and mile for mile, our plan is about $4,000,000 cheaper," Mr. Guider insisted. "Also it serves every residential and business district. It is human to err. We all err. But this time I am right. The greatest trouble with engineers is that they do not seem to know the shortest distance between two points.

Cites the Wishes of Brooklyn.

Mayor Hylan then suggested that the board take up those parts of the Delaney system on which there was no disagreement and approve them.

"You can't take up these things separately," Mr. Guider replied. "All this must be determined at once. This is not my plan. It is what the people of Brooklyn want."

Mr. Delaney retorted that the subways proposed by Mr. Guider could be connected with the existing subways operated by the B.-M. T. and intimated that the Brooklyn Borough President really favored extensions to the present system.

"I recognize an old friend; the routes suggested by Mr. Guider are the same as those sent down here by Mr. McAneny of the State Transit Commission, with the addition of a tail," said Mr. Delaney, his reference to the "tail" being the proposed line to Sheepshead Bay.

Mr. Guider then declared that his plan was based on the principle that any lines built in Brooklyn should be so routed that they would develop the borough rather than serve mainly as feeders to Manhattan lines. He added that he had this in view in suggesting extensions through the Eastern District and Ridgewood and to Sheepshead Bay.

This view was supported by John D. Flynn, representing the Lafayette Avenue Subway Committee. "The taxpayers in Central Brooklyn and the Eastern District, where there are thousands of small homes, are enraged at the thought that this new scheme will saddle upon them such an enormous expense, that in many instances it will amount to confiscation," he said, referring to the proposed assessment method of financing. "In the past they have been called upon to pay for subways in the far lands of Bay Ridge and the upper Bronx and elsewhere, for which they never have received any benefits."

Taxpayers Support Guider.

Mr. Flynn warned the members of the board that if they insisted upon putting through the Delaney plan they would meet formidable opposition later. He predicted that if the board pressed the financial part of the Delaney plan the taxpayers would defeat it in the courts.

"We are solidly behind the Guider plan," he said. "We do not understand why Mr. Delaney changed his position, for only a few months ago he endorsed the plan now urged by Mr. Guider."

Mayor Hylan and Mr. Delaney both made it clear several times that the matter under discussion concerned only routes and that the financing of the proposed municipal subway system was not under consideration. The Mayor declared that once the routes were legalized they could be used for subways, regardless of what method might be chosen later to finance construction.

"This matter has nothing to do with the financing of subway construction," Mr. Delaney agreed. "We are asking you to adopt the routes. When they are adopted, then the question of where the money is coming from can be taken up."

"Whatever we do today does not bind us to anything anyhow," said Controller Craig, who appeared to find the meeting very enjoyable and frequently engaged in whispered conferences with Mr. Guider. "We are not appropriating any money and, even if we approve some of the routes, no contract can be let until the method of financing has been decided. This is required by law."

Queens Delegation Insistent.

Earlier in the session a hundred or more residents of Queens clamored for a discussion of the Queens routes. It was then Mr. Connolly suggested that action to validate the Delaney routes be postponed for two weeks to give opportunity for public hearings at which residents of Queens could be heard.

"Hear, hear," the Queens delegation shouted in approval.

"Mr. Mayor," shouted a man in the rear of the room.

"Order, please," the Mayor said.

"We've come here to be heard," the same man shouted. "We're the public. We're the people of Queens. You're talking to taxpayers now. You've got to give us a chance to be heard."

Cries of approval came from all over the room.

"Not so often as you get yours," the man retorted.

Later in the day the board, which was sitting in Committee of the Whole, recommended for validation that part of the proposed Queens route from Knott Avenue, Long Island City, to Elmhurst, the estimated cost of which is $23,000,000. There is no dispute about this part of the route. It was decided that a conference on the rest of the routes would be held tomorrow at the Kew Gardens Club between Mr. Connolly, Mr. Delaney and citizens and taxpayers interested.

Murray Hulbert, former President of the Board of Aldermen, appeared before the board to suggest that the proposed subway to link Long Island City with the Eighth Avenue line be built under Fifty-seventh Street instead of Fifty-third Street. "Fifty-seventh Street is much wider, is unrestricted, and is already a traffic centre," he said.

The Mayor told Mr. Hulbert to come back to the board meeting on Friday and promised to withhold his approval of this route, validated by the board a week ago, until he had heard Mr. Hulbert's argument.

Say Hylan May Shift.

Members of the board said after the meeting that Mayor Hylan, who apparently had felt that he must support Mr. Delaney, who is practically his own appointee and who has been his transit adviser for the last three or four years, might yet change his position and not only vote for approval of the routes proposed by Mr. Guider but might abandon the assessment plan proposed by Mr. Delaney as the only way to retain the 5-cent fare on the proposed city subway system.

One member of the board insisted that it was Mr. Delaney and not Mr. Guider who was really the Mayor's foe in this situation. According to this man, Mr. Delaney's subway plan, if adopted, would be ruinous to the Mayor politically, and Mr. Guider is trying to save him.

LORD LEE ASSAILS AMERICAN FILMS

CALLS THEM WORLD PERIL

Are Used by Reds as Propaganda in Near-Savage Countries to Foment Revolt, He Says.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—American motion pictures shown in England are one of the greatest obstacles to better friendship between Great Britain and the United States, Lord Lee of Fareham told the English-Speaking Union at a luncheon today. His remarks caused a sensation in American film circles because of his position and knowledge of America.

"I associated with what I think was representative social America when I was there, but I have never met in the course of my travels in America with the circumstances shown in American films as indicative of social life," said Lord Lee. "From the United States' point of view as well as any other to send us trash of this description is fraught with terrible consequences not only in this country but in every part of the world.

"It is a fact that in almost savage countries American films which are supposed to represent American social life are used in the most evil way by Bolsheviks and other propagandists. I found this true even in India, where I have heard it said in the bazaars:

"'Is this the way the sahibs live when they are at home?'

"This state of affairs cannot be attacked by counter-propaganda. We have no English films, so we are unable to represent ourselves. The papers cannot do much because few people read them, whereas the language of the eyes is the same the world over.

"I think if the English-Speaking Union both here and in America fosters films representing the actual national mind they will be doing a great work in the interest of education and go far to reduce all sorts of dangers to decent civilisation throughout the world."

Dealing then with the question of Anglo-American friendship Lord Lee suggested that the two peoples adopt as an eleventh commandment "Thou shalt not gush." The commandment was a paraphrase from his old friend Theodore Roosevelt, who said: "Thou shalt not slop over."

Lord Lee said his thirty years' experience of Anglo-American relations justified him in giving a little advice. "It is a fatal mistake this gush talk of hands across the sea and of blood being thicker than water," he continued. "When we talk like this we run great risk of provoking bad relations between the two countries out of sheer boredom."

Coincidence with Lord Lee's attack on the American movies the President of the Board of Trade stated in the Commons this evening that the Government was prepared to impose license fees as a means of assisting the practically inactive British film industry. This is in reply to demands of British film companies for Government aid in overcoming the virtual American monopoly of the British market.

SET TODAY TO ADOPT THE ARMS CONTROL BAN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, June 16.—Forty drafts of amendments presented yesterday by the British, making minor corrections in the text of the convention for the control of traffic in arms, prevented termination of the Arms Traffic Conference this afternoon and the intended departure of forty-four delegations for Paris this evening.

The greater portion of the delegates and experts had made reservations to quit Geneva today and every sleeping car berth and first class seat to Paris on the night train was reserved. The British, French and American delegations, however, opposed all haste, declaring that inasmuch as six weeks had been spent in building the convention everybody could well afford to give a few more hours to making it watertight.

In conformity with this policy, it was decided tonight to give tomorrow to the formality of adopting the completed text by the conference in plenary session. This will postpone the signing of the instrument till Thursday.

Representative Burton will go from Geneva to Aix les Baines, where he will take a three-weeks rest. Then he will pass several days in Paris before returning to the United States.

SIR HERBERT SAMUEL FETED

Retiring Commissioner in Palestine Takes Leave of Public.

JERUSALEM, June 16 (Jewish Telegraph Agency).—Sir Herbert Samuel, First British High Commissioner of the Jewish faith in Palestine, who is retiring from his post, took leave of the Jewish community at a farewell reception at the Hebrew University on Mount Scopus yesterday afternoon. Sir Herbert is to be succeeded by Field Marshal Lord Plumer.

"From Mount Scopus, throwing my gaze to the past and toward the future, toward the setting sun and toward the dawn, I am full of confidence in the days that are to come for Palestine," said Sir Herbert in an address which was listened to by high officials of the Palestine Administration and representatives of all classes of the Jewish population.

Colonel Frederick H. Kish, on behalf of the Zionist Executive in Jerusalem; Mayor Disengoff of Tél Aviv, speaking for the National Council of Palestine Jews, and Mr. Meyuchás, on behalf of the Jerusalem community, all expressed deep regret over the departure of the High Commissioner. They also paid tribute to Lady Samuel, who during the five years of her husband's administration has been noted for her social work.

Court Upholds Brooklyn Route.

The Appellate Division of the Supreme Court of the Second Department approved yesterday part of the route of the Fourteenth Street-Eastern subway in Brooklyn, against which protests had been made by property owners. The section approved is between Wyckoff Avenue, at Eldert Street and Broadway, near Conway Street, along the Long Island Railroad right of way. The approval was based on the report of a commission appointed by the court.

PAINLEVE SILENCES CRITICS ON MOROCCO

BLOCKADE OF RIFF IS ON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 16.—Premier Painlevé returned to Paris this morning from his quick visit to the Riff front and within an hour was closeted with the Cabinet, to whom he gave a full explanation of the views he had formed of the situation and the decisions taken. These views and decisions he will communicate, at least in part, tomorrow to the Chamber commissions on Foreign Affairs and the army, but today he refused to give them to the Chamber in public session.

M. Painlevé's statement was short. He could well understand, he said, the impatience of the Chamber to have the fullest possible information, but for the moment all he could give them was a reaffirmation of the firmness of intention not only of the Government, but of all those in charge of Moroccan affairs, to do everything possible to obtain peace, but a peace which would be just and stable. In the present situation he could give a full explanation only to the commissions—which sit in private.

The Moroccan question, he said, was national, and in a few careful words indicated that it was the fate of all Morocco which was involved in the war with the Riffians. For that reason he rejected a demand by M. Doriot, Communist, for an interpellation, characterizing him and his kind as "men who never seem to care what difficulties and dangers they stir up."

M. Doriot tried once more to prove his point that the French offensive against the Riff was planned in 1924 and again instanced a letter sent by Vatin Perignon to Marshal Lyautey's nephew, which was purloined in the post and in some way reached M. Doriot's hands.

Vote Shows Socialist Split.

On a vote for adjournment of M. Doriot's interpellation, the Government obtained a majority of 436 against 34. Of this vote the feature was that 74 Socialists abstained from voting and only 25 voted for the Government. This is the first rift in the Left parties since the election in 1924.

M. Painlevé's most important announcement was that a blockade of the Riff coast by French and Spanish ships for the prevention of traffic in arms had begun.

This morning the French military, naval and diplomatic mission, which has been chosen to work in accord with the Spanish Government for pacification of the Riff, left for Madrid. Deputy Malvy heads the mission, of which the program is to study means for closer cooperation between France and Spain in the task of securing peace with Abd-el-Krim. Whether these means are in the nature of closer military and naval cooperation or of united diplomatic action depends largely on the attitude of the Riff leader.

As an act of penitence for his somewhat slighting reference to Spain, Vatin Perignon, collaborator of Marshal Lyautey, whose purloined letter was made public by the French Communists today, resigned and his resignation was accepted.

Even among those who were critical of Premier Painlevé's visit to the front it is now admitted that he has succeeded not only in strengthening the will to resistance of the whole country against the Riff attack, but has aided very considerably in straightening out what was becoming a very complicated diplomatic military situation.

Military command on the front is now definitely in the hands of General Daugan. General Columbat, whose actions at Quezzan have been the subject of much criticism, has received another appointment and to General de Chambrun has been given the task of political action among the tribes in the affected area, a task for which he is particularly well qualified.

The Premier stated that he would be modest in his demands for appropriations, the money going mainly for airplanes and munitions.

Danger to West Morocco Removed.

Operations in the western part of Morocco are reaching the final stage, correcting the alarming situation which existed for a few days last week, when groups of Abd-el-Krim's supporters succeeded in causing a revolt of tribesmen within the French zone north of Quezzan and cutting off outposts along the Loukkos River as well as necessitating evacuation of the European population of Quezzan. A flying column which has been clearing the area yesterday relieved the Brichka outpost south of the Loukkos and drove the Djebala invaders across the river.

Further east the Rihana outpost, only ten miles from Chechuan, opened fire against the besiegers with artillery and caused heavy losses in the Riffian ranks upon learning the column was headed their way, and there was no further need of sparing ammunition. Airplanes assisted operations effectively, bombing Riffian groups and bases.

Enemy forces were defeated in an engagement between Teroual and Tafrant along the Aoudia River. Tafrant is now the principal position on the Bibane Massif." A short night attack on Tounat was also repulsed easily without French losses.

Between these two bastions at either end two French columns marched toward each other in order to clear the south bank of the Ouergha of enemies. Operations were conducted in whirlwind fashion, which carried the Riffians off their feet and sent them scurrying across the river back into the hills without offering much resistance. French losses therefore were very slight.

The Sultan of Morocco, Mulay Yussef, is now journeying toward Fez, where he will make a solemn entry on Thursday. The object of his trip is to strengthen the confidence of his loyal subjects and show faith in the safety of their "Capital of the North."

The Sultan's journey is a gorgeous affair. He is escorted by the famous Black Guards with blood red uniforms, white trousers, coal black features and dazzling grins. He is accompanied by his full harem, all the dignitaries of his court and the Grand Vizier, El Mokri. Today he entered Moulay Idriss, north of Meknes, where the French colored cavalry lined the ways and a mounted band played stirring airs—shiny trumpets and gaudy kettledrums alternating with native and French military airs. Moulay Idriss is a holy city and shelters the tomb of Idriss the Great, who is a patron saint of Morocco and a descendant of Ali, son-in-law of the prophet. Mulay Yussef is spending the night as well as most of tomorrow in prayer at the mosque.

Painleve's Support Shifts to Right.

PARIS, June 16 (AP).—M. Painlevé's attitude on Morocco has nonplussed the Socialist leaders, while it has agreeably astonished the Moderate Conservative elements of the Chamber. The extreme elements of the coalition majority evidence increasing irritation at the Nationalist sentiments expressed by the head of the Government. A leading Government organ, Quotidien, asserts that M. Painlevé's declarations are such as to require retraction, denial or explicit explanation.

MADRID, June 16.—Preparations for the Hispano-French conference have been fully made and it is expected the conference, which will be short, will result in a definite agreement being reached for frank and loyal cooperation between the two nations dealing with the Moroccan protectorate.

Questions to be dealt with are mainly technical, though a general diplomatic discussion will be continued simultaneously. Already steps have been taken to obtain effective vigilance along the Riff coast to prevent further gun running, which has been recently developing on an alarming scale.

SECURITY PLAN GETS SETBACK FROM ROME

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, June 16.—French diplomacy has centred around the realization that the Briand-Chamberlain security compact, a note concerning which was presented to Germany this morning, has received something of a setback in Italy's refusal today to participate until definite declarations have been made as to the benefits to be derived therefrom by Italy herself.

The Italian reply, which was delivered today at the Quai d'Orsay, was not more than a page and a half long and though couched in courteous language left no doubt in the mind of the French Foreign Office that Premier Mussolini, as has been characteristic of him in his foreign policy ever since he took office, was not to be swept into an alliance, military or political, unless the compensation promised to be sufficiently great.

The French note in reference to the compact therefore had to be delivered to Berlin by the French Ambassador without assurance from Italy of adherence to it. In withholding this adherence it is recognized that Signor Mussolini is playing a card by which he hopes to win English participation in a security compact for the Brenner frontier, which for Italy is a far more important consideration than the Rhine.

Premier Mussolini in his note does not go into details. He merely confines himself to saying the Italian Government is completely in accord with the Allies on the general principles of the compact. The Italian Government also subscribes to those principles in their intention to replace the Geneva Protocol. But the Italian Government, on the other hand, does not perceive that the negotiations to date have made definitely clear the position of all the countries involved in the compact and deems itself in no position to guarantee the Rhine frontier without knowing beforehand what Italy is to have in exchange.

In conclusion the note states that Italy in any case cannot define what position she will take until the German Government has had an opportunity to reply to the French note.

The abstention of Italy, though not unexpected, is considered somewhit regrettable from the French viewpoint, because it deprives the French note on the security compact of that impression of a solid allied front which France desired to achieve, especially in view of the readiness of Germany to transform the slightest appearance of defection into a possible source of advantage to herself.

BERLIN, June 16.—The official text of the French note on the proposed security compact, which was presented at the Foreign Office by Ambassador de Margerie this noon, was kept rigorously secret by Wilhelmstrasse today. Commentators were forced to content themselves with the Paris Matin's version of the note. Comments from well informed circles indicate that this version is considered to be close to the official wording.

Already disapproval is freely expressed of the note summarized in the Matin, notably the sections referring to the arbitration treaties, which the Matin version declares, France will require Germany to conclude with Poland and Czechoslovakia. The Germans are already growling that France is using these treaties as a foundation not for peace but for war. Germans are also angry at the heralded prohibition in the note to the union of Austria and Germany.

Wilhelmstrasse's opinion is well summed up in the following from a source close to Foreign Minister Stresemann:

"France claiming the right to oppose by force of arms the rapprochement of Austria and Germany is something new. If France with England's consent claims the right to march at any time into the Rhineland as soon as the Poles or Czechs—of their own accord or egged on by France—start trouble with us, then there cannot be any doubt that the security compact is unacceptable to us since it would then be not a security but an insecurity compact."

Apprehension is expressed from the same source regarding the course England will pursue in the matter, since there is a tendency here to believe the Matin would not have written so cocksurely if France had not some sort of assurance that the French stand would be backed by England.

However, despite apprehensions, Germans are resolved to await the actual text of the note before forming judgment. With the example before their eyes of the now famous Havas dispatch from Geneva regarding the agreement by M. Briand and Mr. Chamberlain which afterward turned out to be far from the facts, most people here will not take anything seriously until they see the actual text of the French note in black and white, which they will have with their breakfasts Thursday morning.

Meanwhile the German Government is not only studying the French note, but also the complete final report of the Allied Military Control Commission. The latter, it is pointed out here, is double as long as the summary recently published in Paris. The reason for this, according to one version here, is that the French themselves realized that some accusations in the report against Germany were so ridiculous that they were unwilling to cite them even for French consumption.

the law-making body, at present Republican in both its branches.

The Governor is taking such a decided interest in the outcome of the campaign for the realization of these projects that he expects to assume the leadership in the fight. While the election of a Democratic Asembly would not give the Democrats control of the Legislature or absolutely insure cooperation from the lawmaking body for Governor Smith's legislative program, because the Senate would remain Republican, a victory in the Assembly elections would add so much to the prestige of the Governor and his party that the Senate, with its slender Republican majority of four, conceivably might lend itself more readily to the Governor's purposes that it did during the regular session this year.

The question of replacing Herbert C. Pell Jr., Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, has been agitating Democratic leaders throughout the State for some time, and it was expected that this subject would come up at the conference today. If it did, none of the conferees was willing to admit that it had been the subject of more than informal discussion. Mr. Pell left for Europe several weeks ago. He is expected back next week. It was stated here today while the conference was in progress that Governor Smith was unwilling that any action be taken with regard to Mr. Pell until his return from the trip abroad.

Three Democratic leaders have been prominently mentioned as possible successors to Mr. Pell. Governor Smith is understood to favor Franklin D. Roosevelt, while William H. Kelley, Democratic boss of Onondaga County, and Edwin Corning, whose leadership of the Democratic forces in Albany County has been so successful that the City of Albany has been wrested from Republican control, each have their groups of supporters among members of the Democratic State Committee.

The conference of the State leaders at the Hotel Ten Eyck this evening was preceded by a dinner given by Democratic National Committeeman Norman E. Mack.

The conference lasted more than four hours, and toward midnight it was announced that nothing would be made public tonight.

STEVENS TURNS OUT 101 NEW ENGINEERS

NEED FOR STUDY STRESSED

President Humphreys Says Only 32.6 Per Cent. of Class's Initial Enrolment Ended Course.

The degree of Mechanical Engineer was conferred upon 101 graduates of the Stevens Institute of Technology at the fifty-third annual commencement exercises held on Castle Point lawn, Hoboken, yesterday afternoon.

Alexander C. Humphreys, President of the institution, told an audience of 600 that the graduates of the class of 1925 represented only 32.6 per cent. of the class enrolment. He said that all the students who came to Stevens were not expected to graduate, since financial circumstances and ill health forced some of them to drop their work, while others found "that they were not fitted to our particular course of study."

"It is a fatal error," he said, "to assume that college graduates do not have to study to keep pace with the requirements they are forced to meet, if carried by their activities into positions of responsibility. The difference in this respect between the college graduate and one without this advantage, both of equal brain power, determination and good health, is that the college graduate has secured the necessary foundation at a time when it is easily assimilated. On the other hand it may be that the non-graduate will have a keener appreciation of the necessary and all important lessons to be learned only in the school of practice and experience."

Dr. Humphreys then announced the prizes, which were as follows:

Priestly Prize of Twenty-five Dollars in Gold for Proficiency in Chemistry—Arthur Dudley Harrison of Port Washington, N. Y. Honorable mention—Emory Lakatos and Phillip C. Lawrence.

Alfred Marshall Mayer Prizes in Physics—Henry Ernest Helgis, first prize; David Bowman Westrom of Jersey City, N. J., second prize. Honorable mention—Frederick N. Esher Jr. and William C. Black.

Cyrus J. Lawrence Prize of Fifty and Twenty-five Dollars in Gold—Dudley Collins Allen of Winthop, Mass., and Walter Henry Sperr of Brooklyn, N. Y. They are given to the students who have done most toward furthering the ideals of the Institute among the members of the student body.

Dr. Charles F. Kroeh, who graduated from Stevens in 1875, presented the class for their degrees. Dr. Charles Albert Browne Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Chemistry in the Department of Agriculture, received the honorary degree of Doctor of Science in recognition of his work in chemistry.

George Evan Roberts, Vice President of the National City Bank of New York and editor and supervising director of the American Chamber of Economics, addressed the graduates. "You should not fear a lack of opportunity in the industrial world," he said. "Industry is constantly being made over, and new opportunities arise at every new development."

Speaking of the conflict between capital and labor, he said: "The idea that wealth concentrated in the hands of a few men is used for their own benefit is fallacious. The engineer knows that wealth is largely existent in the form of productive machinery, which benefits all the people. The master principle governing the distribution of wealth is found in the fact that there is practically no way of employing capital except by employing labor, and the faster capital is accumulated the greater is the demand for labor and the stream of consumable goods coming on the market."

The salutatory address was delivered by John Montgomery Kyle Jr. of New York City. Walter Henry Sperr delivered the valedictory. President Humphreys and Mrs. Humphreys entertained the graduates, members of the Faculty and guests at a reception, which concluded the ceremonies.

STARVED TO DEATH TO GAIN DIPLOMA

University of Pennsylvania Will Award Post-Mortem Degree to Student Who Died in April.

PHILADELPHIA, June 16.—The memormy of a man whose desire for an education led him to follow a program of self-denial that caused his death by starvation will be honored by the University of Pennsylvania at commencement tomorrow, when a post-mortem degree will be awarded in the name of Homer Oscar Ackerstrom of Sweden.

The commencement exercises will mark the close of the university's one hundred and eighty-fifth academic year, but records of the institution fail to show a single case which parallels that of Ackerstrom in the evidence it gave of a student's struggle to gain an education in the face of obstacles.

Ackerstrom, who was 27 years old, came to this country from Sweden in 1917, leaving there a mother and a sister. They were extremely poor, and Ackerstrom came to seek his fortune and gain an education which, he hoped, would enable him to lift them out of their poverty.

He first became a student at the Massachusetts Agricultural College, where he worked his way through. He joined the Students' Military Training Corps when we entered the war and earned the respect of his fellow-students by declaring "I am not an American, but if America wants me I am ready."

From Massachusetts Ackerstrom came to this city and enrolled in the Wharton School of Finance and Commerce of the University of Pennsylvania. To pay his expenses he swept sidewalks, sold peanuts at football games, worked in offices, did chores of all kinds, and even found time to serve as a trolley conductor. At best he could afford to eat very little, and when "things were breaking bad," as he expressed it, he lived for days on stale peanuts.

Day by day he struggled along, working, denying himself, but always sending at least a little money for the support of his aged mother and sister in Sweden. Then finally, in his senior year, weakened by undernourishment, which was in effect self-imposed starvation, Ackerstrom fell a prey to pneumonia, dying in the University of Pennsylvania Hospital on April 7, this year.

News of his death was cabled to his mother in Sweden and brought the pathetic reply: "Bury him as cheaply as possible. We have no money."

Ackerstrom was buried, but not as cheaply as possible. Students who were familiar with the brave fight he had made saw to it that his burial was attended with all the dignity that befitted a man worthy of the name.

Then students and Faculty joined in a movement to console his mother by having his name appear among the graduates next month and by sending her the diploma that would have been handed to him. As a result the program at tomorrow's exercises will bear the following:

"Bachelor of Science in Economics, Homer Oscar Ackerstrom (Post Mortem)."

PRINCETON, N. J., June 16.—Princeton's 178th commencement, celebrated today, was different from any of recent years because the class of 365 seniors that was graduated was the first to have completed its course under the operation of the so-called new plan of study, an innovation at Princeton which is holding the attention of university educators all over the country.

Many of those who came to the commencement exercises today came under the influence of rumors current in undergraduate and alumni circles for months that the operation of the new plan would be responsible for an unprecedented number of seniors failing to obtain their degrees. When the programs with the complete list of those graduating appeared they were eagerly scanned by relatives and friends of the seniors.

According to Alexander Leitch, Director of the University Bureau of Public Relations, there were only seventeen seniors who failed of their degrees this year, a number which was smaller than usual. Nor was the number of failures among prominent athletes in the graduating class as high as had been rumored. Of the seventeen seniors who failed, only five were members of one or another of the university's competitive athletic teams. On the other hand, according to Mr. Leitch, forty-seven seniors to whom athletic insignia had been awarded for service on teams received diplomas.

This background for the commencement exercises was considered responsible for one conspicuous incident during its course. Among the five prominent athletes who did not get their degrees was Charles Caldwell Wolfe, star pitcher on the baseball team and for the last two years the key to Princeton's football defense strategy as halfback. Caldwell, however, won the Frederick W. Kafer memorial cup for the most representative member of the baseball team with special attention to good sportsmanship, modesty, loyalty and perseverance under adverse conditions.

Athlete Gets Applause.

When Caldwell's name was called, he rose from a seat in the back of the audience. As he walked down the centre aisle it was seen he was not in cap and gown like the other members of his class. As Caldwell started for the platform a great volume of handclapping broke out. It continued in increasing intensity as he mounted the steps, only halting when President Hibben handed him the award. As he left the platform the applause broke out anew and continued until the baseball pitcher had disappeared into the crowd. No other event of the commencement exercises drew anything like an equal volume of applause.

It is believed among the student body that Caldwell's case was referred to in a short editorial article that appeared in this morning's issue of the Daily Princetonian, the student newspaper. The comment was as follows:

"It is unfortunate enough that the Faculty should withhold diplomas from a very small percentage of any graduating class, but there is one case in which the Faculty and the Board of Trustees deserve the utmost condemnation. Almost every undergraduate knows enough to convince him that the facts do not warrant the action, and from the undergraduate standpoint such is revolting and inexcusable to the highest degree."

The other athletes in the senior class besides Caldwell who did not receive degrees were Robert K. Thompson, baseball; Edmund C. Stout, football and hockey captain, President of the class last year and member of Senior Council; Burton Mudge, captain of the golf team, and Theodore W. Drews, track and football.

The exercises were held as usual on the lawn in front of the steps of Nassau Hall. A platform built over the steps held the Faculty and officials. Temporary scaffold seats arranged like a broadened letter V with the apex away from the platform provided room for spectators. The graduating class was seated on the lawn in front of the platform, where there were also chairs for special guests. A departure this year consisted in draping the platform with a facing cloth of black carrying decorations in orange. The tops of the great elms formed the roof of the outdoor auditorium. Traditionally perfect commencement weather prevailed.

Commencement at Princeton always reflects a quiet air of secluded scholarship. The exercises are simple and Latin is used by the President in admitting to degrees. Last year Secretary Charles E. Hughes and John W. Davis as recipients of honorary degrees were asked to make addresses. This year, although ten distinguished men were present in like capacity, there were no speeches. The academic routine of awarding degrees honors and prizes made up almost the whole substance of the exercises, and except when Colonel Franklin Dolier spoke briefly in presenting army commissions to students in the Officers' Reserve Corps the audience heard sustained speech only from a salutatory delivering the salutatory in classic Latin and a classmate in the formal terms of a valedictory oration.

Procession Led by Band.

The academic procession entered the centre aisle between the seats before Nassau Hall at 11:30 led by a band. In a few minutes the students were seated and the Faculty and officials had counter-marched between the tigers of the Nassau Hall steps and taken their seats.

The Rev. Charles Rosenbury Erdman, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church of Princeton, gave the opening prayer. Dr. Erdman, elected Moderator of the recent General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church at Columbus after a Fundamentalist-Liberal clash in which William J. Bryan opposed him, was to receive an honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity later in the exercises.

After the prayer Robert McArthur Crawford, in cap and gown, stepped out from the graduating class and led the singing of "America." John Isadore Horovitz gave the Latin salutatory address. Then Dr. Wilson Farrand, clerk of the Board of Trustees, read the names of the recipients of degrees.

The white-haired Colonel William Libbey, carrying a Marshal's baton gaily festooned with ribbons, took charge as the graduating class mounted the steps of the platform one by one, proceeded across it and went down the other side, after receiving the diplomas from Dr. Hibben at the centre.

Dean Andrew Fleming West of the graduate school presented the candidates for higher degrees and for honorary degrees. After each recipient had been presented Dr. Hibben spoke a phrase in Latin admitting him to the degree, and Colonel Libbey slipped the appropriate hood over his shoulders.

Besides Dr. Erdman, the recipients of honorary degrees included Governor Winant of New Hampshire and Senator Reed of Pennsylvania. The full list of recipients, together with the formula used by Dean West in presenting each, was as follows:

MASTER OF ARTS—John Gilbert Winant of the Class of 1915, a master and for a while assistant principal in St. Paul's School, two years in our Air Service in France, enlisting as a private and rising to the rank of Captain, member of the Legislature and now Governor of New Hampshire. His one career, guided solely by public duty, adds new vigor to the demand that political machinery should be the servant and not the master of American statesmanship.

DOCTOR OF MUSIC—John Frederick Wolle, organist, composer, and conducter, founder and leader f the annual Bach Festival, chief interpreter in America of the master musical of the modern world, to which all later composers pay willing homage, so whether this our interpreter is in revealing the gentler grace of what Wagner called Bach's sternal melody, or in rendering some more majestic work, with themes and involved counter themes moving as one sequence of thought and feeling, it is to lose himself in the greatness of the master he interprets greatly.

DOCTOR OF PHILANTHROPY—Sam Higginbottom of the Class of 1903, missionary in India, principal of Allahabad Agricultural Institute, Superintendent of the Leper Asylum and recently decorated by the Indian Government, preacher, teacher and administrator, trained in effort to improve native agriculture and provide relief for lepers and the blind. His life is a new chapter in romance. His adventure is to seek and save the outcast, heal the sick and avert the dreaded peril of famine and pestilence. A Christian knight errant at war with misery and want. A champion of health, hope and peace for that vast empire.

DOCTOR OF DIVINITY—Henry Sloane Coffin, pastor of the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, associate professor in Union Theological Seminary, member of the Yale Corporation, preacher in our universities, active in leading agencies of religion and education, a thoughtful student of wide reading, author of books of personal reflection, free to choose a life of ease, he has given himself to self-denying labor for others. His church is a welcome shelter for men of all sorts and conditions, whether dwelling in pleasant homes or in extract and poverty. His preaching, free from artifice, is direct, incisive and convincing. He is more concerned with his message than with all else, and that message is the gospel of Christ.

DOCTOR OF DIVINITY—Charles Rosenbury Erdman of the class of '86, for a quarter-century leader of services for men of the Pennsylvania Railroad and speaker at Bible conferences in the United States and Canada, delegate to religious gatherings in Scotland and China, member of various missionary bodies, author of devotional books, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Princeton, professor in Princeton Theological Seminary and now Moderator of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church. Faithful to the standards of his church, fully observant of the rights of others, peaceable in spirit and intent on doing good to all men as he has opportunity, he well exemplifies the three-fold truth in Augustine's memorable saying: "In things necessary unity, in things doubtful liberty, in all things charity."

DOCTOR OF ENGINEERING—Louis Davidson Ricketts of the class of '91, formerly a fellow and trustee of this university, beginning his work as surveyor in Colorado, then serving as State geologist of Wyoming, he took up his life work in 1895 as mining engineer in Southern Arizona and Northern Sonora. In the immense development of one of the foremost of figures, his alert mind, open to new ideas and quick to find their use, yet ever steadied by deliberate judgment and his friendly skill in dealing with men have won him enthusiastic confidence. He has had national and international honor, but no tribute more satisfying than that of Arizona. The State's most useful citizen beloved by everybody.

DOCTOR OF LETTERS—John Bach McMaster, long and until lately Professor of American History in the University of Pennsylvania, earlier an instructor in engineering here, yet with a growing passion for history, he soon swung clear and eagerly started on his larger career. To recite his abundant labors and honors is needless, so enormous is the mass of fugitive writings. He searched for every gleam of light and was so ample in detail in his description that it is no wonder his great history is voluminous, but that it is most luminous. His aim was not history as art or science or philosophy, but to portray intimately the real life of the American people in its formative period and even in later aspects. Unlike writers too anxious to see things as they are, his self-alienation enabled him to live in the times he describes and to see things as they were and thus to see the truth of history.

DOCTOR OF LAWS—Dwight Whitney Morrow, aided by himself alone he made his way through college, entered on the practice of the law and later the business of finance. Strict in his responsibilities as a guiding mind in the great banking house, he also finds time for labors outside as a trusted adviser, investigator or organizer in enterprises of great moment. Among his many achievements are his searching study and improvement of penal and charitable conditions in New Jersey, his fine conduct of the war savings campaign, also in this State, and his extraordinary power shown as adviser to the Allied Maritime Transport Council, vital to our successful entry into the war. For his part in this the United States awarded him the Distinguished Service Medal. And what more? Much in every way. It is the story of a quick, deep and resolute mind well trained to sound judgment and straight action. He has gone over the top every time.

DOCTOR OF LAWS—David Aiken Reed of the class of 1900 soon rose to fame as a lawyer, gave freely of his time to the hospitals of his city and served as Chairman of the Industrial Accidents Commission which cleared the way for enacting the present law of Pennsylvania. Commissioned as Major in the field artillery in 1917, he saw strenuous service in France until the armistice. For his unusual merit he was made American field artillery representative on the Allied Economic Commission, received from France the Cross of the Legion of Honor and the Distinguished Service Medal from his own country. His high qualities are being revealed anew in his career as United States Senator from Pennsylvania, intense energy, capacity for severe thinking power to say what he thinks in straight English, a playful caprice in wit, engaging friendliness and a courageous sense of honor.

DOCTOR OF LETTERS—Charles Scribner of the Class of 1875. The house of Scribner, founded by Charles Scribner of the Class of 1840 and just entering its eightieth year, has been directed for now half a century by the second of his name until its expanding influence has spread wherever our language is read. Including in its purpose true literature, from the graver books of thought to enchanting tales, histories, poems and adventures, it has discovered young authors and given them readers, advanced the fame of older authors and not infrequently has acquired and issued writings of rare timeliness and power. It stands today as a symbol for whatever is most courteous, honorable and fruitful of good in American endeavor. In his half century of service graduation the head of the house has given every year to labor and love for Princeton. Intimate in her counsels, alert in stimulating her literary life, old in wisdom and young in spirit, constant in helping her needs, his unobtrusive, bright and kindly influence is part of all the best we have.

Dr. Hibben Presents Medals.

It was after the presentation of the honorary degrees that Dr. Hibben called four seniors to the platform and bestowed on them medals they had won, other prizes being awarded only by citation in the program. Caldwell was one of these. Others presented from the platform were the Biddle Medal for good sportsmanship to Charles Watkins Williams, the Class of 1901 Prize to Ralph Gorman Hills and a prize to John George Yenchar for 100 per cent. attendance at all college duties during his four years.

Dr. Hibben then announced gifts to the university during the year amounting to $5,190,100. Among them he named the donation of a $300,000 dormitory by an anonymous alumnus; $250,000 by J. Kennedy Tod in memory of his brother, William S. Tod; $150,000 to the department of fine arts by John D. Rockefeller Jr., condition on $500,000 more being raised by the university by June 30, 1926, which Dr. Hibben said would be raised; additional gifts to bring the Chapel Fund to $1,316,643 given and pledged, which amount included a gift of $250,000 by Chester A. Braman of New York conditional on $200,000 additional being raised, and $10,000 by gift of the class having expressed the hope, Dr. Hibben said, that other gifts for maintenance would be made.

For the last few years the car, which originally belonged to Count Harrach, has been operated as a taxi here.

LAWRENCE EXTOLS HARVARD WAR DEAD

PREDICTS WORLD ACCORD

Students Brave Storm in Class Day Exercises—1865 Graduates Lead Ivy Procession.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., June 16.—Harvard's class day started in a deluge of rain, accompanied by a miniature cyclone that whipped through the streets and the yard, tearing down canvas-covered enclosures of the class day spreads and causing havoc with the swinging Chinese lanterns.

Though spirits were low and rain was falling, 200 members of the class lined up for the march to Appleton Chapel to attend their final services as undergraduates. Only two men wore raincoats.

The class of 1925 listened with close attention as Bishop William Lawrence of Boston urged them to find inspiration in the sacrifices of the college generation just before them, who offered their lives on the battlefield for a principle. The Bishop appealed to the new graduates to accept their opportunities to do a large share of public service.

Bishop Pays Tribute to Soldiers.

Bishop Lawrence in his address to the graduates spoke, in part, as follows:

"You are graduating seven years after the World War. I graduated seven years after the Civil War, fifty-four years ago. You and I were boys when young Harvard men were enlisting and when they were falling in battle for country and liberty.

"I want first to tell you what that boy experience has done for me. It may do the same for you. I knew some of the men whose names are inscribed in Memorial Hall as a boy knows and looks up to strong young men. I saw them in my father's house, for he drilled Harvard students in the first of the Civil War and, with Colonel Henry Lee, recruited Lowell's regiment. I recall the faces and figures of Shaw, Bartlett and Lowell. When Shaw and Lowell fell in battle the news struck deep into a boy's heart.

"You, too, recall the soldiers of your day. Their voices sound in your ears; their faces and figures are before you. Their names, whether Robert Bacon, Henry Weston Farnsworth or Quentin Roosevelt, start up memories of scores of Harvard crusaders who, whether in France or this land, gave their lives for liberty and for us. Their memoirs have been published, and you will do well to have them by you. Unless they have died in vain, you will honor and more cherish the men you would have been without them. You will count your life lightly when the good of your country or of your friends is at stake.

"My expectation is that this people will pass through a generation of such material prosperity and power as would amaze us could we see it now. We have an enormous start in the rivalry with other nations. Our universal education, the elasticity of our young social institutions, the uniformity of our population through the limitation of immigration, the increase of efficiency of the people, and their saving capacity through the decrease in the use of intoxicating drink, our geographical isolation, our consequent spread of wealth through the people and a hundred other considerations will make you the sharers in prosperity and power unknown to history.

"In the second place we shall be a great country between two oceans; we cannot help being one of the nations of the world and reckoning on that fact. I am not one of those who have been eager to clutch up in organic connection with the nations of the world. I do not esteem such a connection the only or chief test of international brotherhood. I believe, however, that if we, if you, cultivate and in your own person add to the integ

NO LACK OF CHIEFS IN FIRE DEPARTMENT

Battalion Chiefs' Advancement Also Thwarted—Mayor and Craig Amuse the Crowd.

Chiefs of Battalion who have attained the dignity of the eligible list for promotion to the rank of Deputy Chiefs in the Fire Department and the 211 firemen who are eligible for advancement to the grade of steamer engineers were confronted yesterday with disappointment. Fire Commissioner Thomas J. Drennan and Fire Chief John Kenlon both informed the Board of Estimate that the department no longer required additional engineers, and that it was "already topheavy with chief officers."

The 211 firemen eligible for promotion with increased salaries argued that the civil service exanhinations now embrace questions dealing with gasoline motor pumping engines as well as with engines operated by steam pressure. They declared, as did some of the members of the Board of Estimate, that it was evident the civil service authorities recognized the passing of the steamer by incorporating gasoline motor questions in the test.

Commissioner Drennan retorted that there are 1,500 firemen now operating gasoline motor apparatus and that if the listed eligibles for promotion to the grade of steamer engineers were promoted with salary increases, other men operating motor apparatus should be equally recognized.

Battalion Chief James Mahoney spoke for the eligibles for advancement to the grade of Deputy Chief of Department. He declared the two-platoon system was not complete, as there are eight divisions of the department without two deputies in each division.

Commissioner Drennan ridiculed the contention. "The Fire Department of New York now has more officers in it than there are in the Chilean Army," he declared. "There are 110 chief officers for 308 companies in the entire department. We do not know what to do with them and we are puzzled to keep them from stepping on one another."

Commissioner Drennan is the author of the bill, approved by Mayor Hylan, empowering the Commissioner to retire members of the department at will after they have attained the age of 60 years.

Chief Kenlon, in less picturesque terms, agreed that there are enough officers in the department now.

Controller Charles L. Craig asked Chief Kenlon a number of questions concerning the personnel of the department and Mayor Hylan finally interrupted to inquire, "Chief, how many pairs of shoes do you wear in the course of a week of duty?"

When the laughter had subsided Controller Craig countered: "That would depend, I suppose, on whom he wanted to boot with them." The Controller then asked: "How long have you been in the department, Chief?"

"About thirty-nine years," replied Kenlon.

"And how long are you going to stay?" pursued the Controller, with a sidelong grin at the Mayor.

"As long as they will let me stay," was the answer. "I'm good for fifteen years more, if they'll let me stay that long."

There was a general laugh at this obvious reference to the retirement bill. After it had subsided Mayor Hylan smilingly told the Fire Chief: "You tell the Controller you can stay as long as you like."

The Mayor then told the firemen and the Battalion Chiefs their desires would be taken under advisement.

'SAY IT WITH MILLIONS' SMITH MOTTO, HE SAYS

Nicoll Assails Governor's Proposed $100,000,000 Bond Issue and Scores Hylan.

"'Say it with millions' is Governor Smith's motto," said Senator Courtlandt Nicoll, discussing the financial policy of Governor Smith and his proposal for a $100,000,000 bond issue which has come in for such vigorous attack from the Republicans, in a speech before the Women's Division of the Republican Club in the Fifth Assembly District, at 763 Eighth Avenue.

"Log rolling," he added, "has been for years a scandal in American political life, but it remained for the Chief Executive of the State of New York to raise it to the dignity of a fiscal program for the Empire State."

About Mayor Hylan, Senator Nicoll said:

"Poor old Hylan! What can he do with the skids under him but fellow suit? He promises Staten Island a subway with nice freight cars in it. There are nearly half as many voters in Staten Island as in my Senate District. Surely enough to warrant spending $75,000,000 of somebody else's money to keep them in line. Well, we took the freight cars out in the last Legislature. This will save $30,000,000 or $40,000,000 and Staten Island will be just as well off with a passenger tunnel.

"He promises a five-cent fare on a new subway, and when that is proved by his own experts to be insufficient to pay both the cost of operation and the costs of construction according to his plan, he proposes to tax every one in the city to pay for constructing the subway, Queens, Brooklyn, even Staten Island will be taxed to serve the special interests of the upper west side of New York. This is the great plan that has been germinating for seven years in the municipal mind, and for seven years nothing has been done.

"He even tried to appeal to the special interests of certain wealthy motorists by granting them the right to wear the initials of the Police Department on their radiators. This seems to be his only successful transit policy—the only move toward rapid transit in Seven Years of Progress! I regret that a certain unwelcome publicity has submerged for the time being this important reform."

Elevated Station Is Held Up.

Three men held up the I. R. T. elevated station at Beebe Avenue, in Long Island City, yesterday, and robbed the agent, William Maloney, of 34 Eighth Street, Woodside, of $42.35. The robbers escaped on foot. This was the second robbery of the station since February.

Mixed with water, Insulex expands 3 to 7 times—depending on kind and for purpose used. It "sets" in 20 to 30 minutes. Tiny confined "dead" air-cells, encased in strong walls, are formed by millions, creating a remarkable resistance to heat, cold and sound. Any desired thickness can be installed.

Amazing Fire-and-Decay-Proof Insulation

FOR EVERY TYPE OF BUILDING

THIS offers a better way to keep your home—or any building—cool in summer—warm in winter.

A new-day method of scientific insulation—offering 3 distinct advantages over former methods.

A Problem—and Its Solution

For years the building industry has sought a perfected insulating material.

Product after product has appeared on the market. Some of these had merit—as far as they went. None fulfilled all of the essentials of the ideal cold, heat and sound resisting material. And—none was fireproof.

Nine years ago a leading laboratory began experiments with a now famous building material—already proved on countless jobs throughout the country to be of amazing strength and adaptability. A product that is fire and decay-proof—gypsum.

But gypsum, although a general building material of the highest merit, provided only a fair resistance to heat, cold and sound. To make it the long-sought ideal insulating material, a way had to be found to multiply the "dead" air-cells in gypsum many thousand fold. After four years of countless laboratory experiments and commercial try-outs, the solution was found.

"Dead" air is the best insulation known except a vacuum. Air is never "dead" unless confined in very minute cells.

By an entirely new method—aerating—the way was discovered to expand and honey-comb gypsum with literally millions of tiny "dead" air-cells.

WARNING!

ORDINARY gypsum has only a fair rating so far as insulating value is concerned. We have made Insulex the superior insulating material it is, by aerating gypsum—a process that multiplies the dead air cells by millions. This product is fully protected by patents.

This is a public notice and warning that if an insulating material made of aerated gypsum is offered you by any name other than Insulex, it is either an imitation, minus Insulex quality, or an infringement of Insulex patents.

W. E. SHEARER, President,
UNIVERSAL GYPSUM CO.

INSULEX—What It Is

Insulex is aerated gypsum—"Puffed Gypsum." The method of making this patented product is in principle very simple. A remarkable "mineral yeast" multiplies the "dead" air-cells by millions, forming a superior insulation which is at the same time fire and decay-proof.

It is important to note that this "mineral yeast" contains no soluble alkaline salts. Alkaline salts would cause chemical changes resulting in eventual disintegration. The air-cell forming minerals used in Insulex actually cause it to grow stronger with age. Even if Insulex gets wet, it dries out harder than ever.

Because it contains no soluble alkaline salts, Insulex has a very low internal vapor tension. Consequently it doesn't remain damp and soggy for weeks, but dries out rapidly. So other important building operations progress without interference.

Delivered on the job, Insulex is a powder ready to mix with water and apply.

The 3 Distinct Advantages

Two inches of Insulex can be applied at half the cost of one inch of ordinary insulation. It gives you double thickness, insuring superior insulation—a remarkable resistance to heat, cold and sound. Thirdly, in addition to being vermin-proof, Insulex is the only insulating material that is fire and decay-proof.

Tested 5 Years

In the past five years, installations requiring thousands of tons of Insulex have been made from coast to coast. Scores of uses have been found. And now our increased production facilities are adequate to supply the demand that has followed its introduction. Users everywhere pronounce it the most important insulating development—the scientific successor to all previous methods whether applied to the smallest bungalow or the largest skyscraper.

It can be used with equal efficiency for insulating and sound-deadening walls, floors, roofs and ceilings.

One inch thick Insulex in ceilings reduces ceiling heat losses 52%; two inches thick, 69%; three inches thick, 77%. (Testing department findings of the Armour Institute.)

Write for Circular

If you are planning to build a home or any type of building, suggest to your architect or contractor that it be insulated with Insulex, the fire and decay-proof insulation. In fuel saving alone, it will quickly pay for itself.

MACMILLAN GETS ROUSING SEND-OFF

Navy and Geographic Society Bid Farewell to Him at Luncheon in Boston.

STARTS TODAY FOR ARCTIC

He Plans Stops at Wiscasset, Me., Sydney, N. S., and Battle Harbor on the Way to Etah.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, June 16.—Commander Donald MacMillan received a rousing send-off at a luncheon today at the Boston City Club on the eve of the departure of the expedition for the Arctic. The chief speaker was Theodore D. Robinson, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, who said:

"Many persons are in the habit of thinking of the navy only as an instrument of war. The navy is a guarantee of a step forward in every direction. We expect success for this expedition, but if it does not come back, the navy will bring it back. Commander MacMillan, and Commander Byrd, I bring you word from Secretary Wilbur, it is, 'Good-bye, good luck, and come back safely.'"

John O. La Gorce, Vice President of the National Geographic Society, spoke on behalf of Gilbert H. Grosvenor, President of the society, whose attendance was prevented by illness. The Charlestown Navy Yard was represented by its Acting Commander, Captain Y. E. Williams. Professor Charles S. Bread, President of the City Club, presided.

MacMillan Outlines Course.

Commander MacMillan today told of his plans in setting out for the Far North. The Peary will sail from Charlestown Navy Yard at noon tomorrow. Eagle boats 19, 42 and 46 will escort her to Wiscasset, where the Bowdoin is waiting, and navy airplanes will circle about the ship as she leaves Boston Harbor.

The Bowdoin and the Peary will sail from Wiscasset on Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. They will go to Sydney, N. S., then will skirt the Labrador coast, passing through the Straits of Belle Isle, and then bear northeasterly to Greenland, but a short stay may be made at Battle Harbor, Labrador.

On reaching Etah, their base, if no word from Amundsen has been received, the three planes will fly through Kane Basin and Robeson and Kennedy Channels to Fort Conger, in the hope of finding the missing explorer there.

Failing to find the Norwegian at Fort Conger, Commander Macmillan proposes to carry the search ninety miles further north to Cape Columbia, which, Amundsen indicated before his departure, would be his destination in case his planes were disabled. If he is not there the Macmillan fliers will continue to Camp Maurice Jesup, the extreme northern land of the world, and within 300 miles of the pole.

His Plans for Exploration.

When Amundsen is found, or if the search fails, the Macmillan party will proceed on its original quest, flying by airplane from Cape Columbia to the unexplored area northwest. This expedition will take about three weeks. About Aug. 21 the explorers will return to Disco to renew their coal supply and then, if possible, will go to Baffin's Land to explore the interior, never yet visited by white men.

By the middle of September Commande Macmillan expects to be back in Boston. If Amundsen is found he will be invited to return with the expedition.

Lieut. Commander Byrd today supervised the loading of the planes on the Peary. The wings were taken off and the hulls placed in specially padded crates on the afterdeck.

Salutes will be fired and whistles blown as the Peary steams out of the Navy Yards tomorrow. On the decks of the famous old frigate Constitution will be gathered Senators William M. Butler and Frederick H. Gillette, Governor Fuller, Mayor Curley, General A. W. Brewster, Commander of the First Corps Area, Colonel Moses, Commandant of the Marine Corps at the Navy Yard, Assistant Secretary of Navy, Robinson, and numerous other officials. Commander Macmillan will make a five-minute address from a raised platform on the port gangway on the Constitution just before he boards the Peary.

Supplies Reach Wiscasset.

WISCASSET, Me., June 16 (AP).—Additional supplies and equipment for the Macmillan navy arctic expedition were brought here today by the U. S. S. Mohave, a naval tug from Charleston navy yard. The tug brought gasoline and oil for the schooner Bowdoin, now here, and some duplicate radio equipment. She also left a spare Liberty motor and two small steel boats and a wooden boat for the Bowdoin.

ADVENT BAY, Spitsbergen, June 16 (AP).—Icy blasts from the eastern Spitzbergen glaciers today tossed the two seaplanes of the Norwegian Government's expedition which is to search for the Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole explorers as they lay moored to their buoys in the bay here. There has been no flying done since Sunday afternoon, when the aviators took a few spins.

There is talk among the fliers of making a dash over the inland glaciers from Advent Bay straight for Kings Bay, about 80 miles to the north. The trial spins supposedly revealed the possibility of such a flight. It is certain, however, that the aviators will not make their start before tonight, and possibly they may postpone it until Wednesday.

TELLS HOW MACMILLAN CAN CLAIM TERRITORY

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, June 16.—Donald B. MacMillan is entitled to claim all the territory between Canada and the North Pole as American possessions, but to do so in accord with international law he must occupy the land; planting the American flags about is not sufficient, declared P. E. Corbett, Professor of Roman Law at McGill University, in a statement today.

MacMillan, he said, must leave men at every post, or strategic place in the Northern territories, providing similar posts are not already occupied by Canada. In that way, he asserted, the territory becomes the property of the United States. Even where Arctic and sub-Arctic properties have been claimed by Canada, or any British subject, the right of MacMillan to take the land over for the United States still exists, in the opinion of Professor Corbett, but it must be occupied, it being a case of possession deciding.

"In a country subject to such severe climatic conditions and so difficult of access as islands within the Arctic Circle," said Professor Corbett, "the same solidity of occupation would not be demanded as in an easily held country. That is why Canada must be considered as adequately occupying lands in that area in which she keeps a series of communicating posts, even though they are distant and scantily manned."

Regarding the question of flying permits for American explorers desiring to fly to the Pole, Professor Corbett declared:

"The authorities at Ottawa are perfectly well founded when they say that any American expedition must apply for permission to fly across any lands which are Canadian. The United States is not a contracting party to the air navigation convention concluded at Paris in 1919. This convention affirmed the principle of the sovereignty over the air, but provided for the freedom of innocent air passage over the territories of the contracting parties to all powers signatory to the convention, providing the rules of the country flown over were complied with. The United States has not ratified this convention, so can not claim the privilege of flying over Canada under the convention and must obtain a permit."

The Response Shows That Style and Quality are in Demand

The New Franklins are appearing on the road as fast as the factory can build them. But not as fast as they are being ordered by people who like fine things. Those who saw de Causse's great custom-built pattern cars all said they would prove a sensation. But few anticipated the actual response they have aroused. It shows that appreciation of style is instinctive. That everyone wants quality. And that Franklin performance is known and respected from coast to coast. High-power, comfort, reliability and economy of the Franklin brand make an unequaled combination in the beautiful New Franklin setting.

OLYMPIC IS DELAYED 5 HOURS BY STORMS

JAMES A. STILLMAN ARRIVES

Julius Forstmann Discusses German Trend Away From Trusts—Secretary Mellon's Daughter Returns.

The White Star liner Olympic arrived late yesterday from Southampton and Cherbourg, having been delayed, according to Captain William Marshall, master of the ship, by fog which caused him to slow down twice and lose five hours.

Early yesterday morning the liner encountered a terrific storm accompanied by thunder and lightning, which zigzagged across the sky and lit up the horizon like day. At 3:20 A. M., an hour before the Olympic passed the Nantucket Lightship, a thunderbolt dropped into the sea ahead of the ship with a terrific report and lightning flashed like the lash of a whip across the heavens.

Among the first-cabin passengers on board was James A. Stillman, with his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Henry P. Davison. They went abroad in January and motored through Europe in a small car they took with them. Mr. Stillman, who was listed as B. E. Smith, said that he had no comments to make upon his own affairs or on financial conditions in Europe or anywhere else. "I went across three weeks ago to return with my daughter, and that is all," he said.

He appeared to be in excellent health.

Secretary of the Treasury Andrew J. Mellon went to meet the Olympic at Quarantine in a United States Coast Guard cutter and took off his daughter, Miss Alisa Mellon, who has been abroad for several months. After the liner had been passed by the Public Health officers, Mr. Mellon went on board and escorted his daughter to the cutter with her baggage, which was examined by a Customs Inspector on the way up to the Battery.

Another passenger was Julius Forstmann, President of the Forstmann & Huffmann Company, woolen manufacturers of Passaic, N. J., who returned from a three months' business trip through England, France and Germany.

In speaking of the unsettled financial state of the Stinnes industries, Mr. Forstmann said: "It is logical that the tendency in Germany today is to get away from the trusts and all those companies that have maintained an existence free from the trust idea are fast coming to the front, while the trusts are disintegrating."

Ralph E. Chapman of the Merritt & Chapman Towing Company returned on the Olympic from England where he went to teach the divers the trick of cutting steel and iron with a special underwater torch, much used in New York Harbor.

McLane Van Ingen, head of the woolen firm of Van Ingen & Co. of New York, who returned from a business trip to Europe, said the merchants in Australia and in England were holding back the wool to force up the prices. There were 750,000 bales in storage in Sydney and Melbourne and 120,000 bales held back in London. Just before he sailed, Mr. Van Ingen said 75,000 bales of wool were released for the London market but the prices were so high that only 40,000 were sold.

Nathan Chazen, Nasi of the Order of the Sons of Zion, returned from Palestine to attend the convention of the order to be held here next week. He is also the resident director in Palestine of the Judea Insurance Co., Ltd., and will make his report before going back to Jerusalem.

Others who arrived on the Olympic were:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Bernheimer, Mrs. Charles M. Chapin, Mrs. Elisha Dyer, Mrs. L. S. Crawford Hill, Mrs. J. B. Hazzin, Miss Adele Hammond, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph S. Ochs of New York, Miss Ursula Squier, Miss Dorothy Patten, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Lehman, Peter Lehman, John and Miss Hilda Lehman, Mrs. John McKeon, Honore Palmer, Mrs. F. L. Pratt, E. H. Sauer, Mrs. W. W. Tompkins, Stevenson Taylor, Mrs. B. D. Stair, Henry T. Whitton, and Mrs. J. Lesimer Worden.

Miss Florence Hense, Mrs. J. M. Slaton, wife of the Governor of Georgia; Miss Reeve-Merritt, Miss Helen Mack and Dr. Anna Lord.

Captain Marshall, master of the Olympic, was listed in the King's Birthday list for a C. B., Commander of the Order of the Bath.

EXILED CAT RETURNS 5 MILES TO KITTENS

Silversides is a cat which Max D. Miller, proprietor of a drug store at Broadway and Sixty-eighth Street, took two years ago from firemen who found her, a kitten then, in the basement of a burning building. Silversides was pampered, and she grew up arrogant—so arrogant, indeed, that she would not permit any other cat or even a dog on a leash to enter the shop.

Mr. Miller's affection for Silversides was great, but her propensity to attack visiting cats and dogs was annoying, and business is business. He determined to give her away. But, just as he found a good home for her at Riverside Drive and 178th Street, Silversides presented the shop with a half dozen kittens. Her going was delayed until the kittens were weaned and all but two of them given away, and then Silversides went to the good home at Riverside Drive and 178th Street, still arrogant, apparently oblivious to the kittens downstairs.

That was ten days ago, and Riverside Drive and 178th Street is five miles from Broadway and Sixty-eighth Street.

Last night Mr. Miller was standing at the counter when he was startled to see Silversides creep through the doorway. She gazed straight ahead, walked slowly to the cellar steps and went downstairs.

Mr. Miller found her there with her two remaining kittens. She looked tired because there was no determining how many miles she had walked to find the shop five miles from her new home, but she seemed happy, as became a mother which has felt the pangs of absence from her young and somehow, Mr. Miller thought, she seemed chastened. Maybe now, he said, she won't attack customers' cats and dogs, and then, of course, she's welcome in his shop.

Belgian Blast Furnace Men Strike.

BRUSSELS, Belgium, June 16 (AP).—All the blast furnaces in the Charleroi district were extinguished today, the men having refused to accept a wage reduction, and a strike threatens among the ironworkers for a similar reason. The coal industry also seems likely soon to be involved in wage difficulties.

An Entirely New Kind of Motor Car Travel

Changing our Transportation Habits

We predict that within a month after we have delivered your Chrysler Six all your ideas of travel will be changed—revolutionized.

Instead of traveling by train, nine times out of ten you'll travel in your Chrysler Six. Scores of times during the year your Chrysler Six will take the place of the railroad because you'll prefer the newer way that only the Chrysler Six offers—

Simply because the Chrysler Six is so swift, so safe, so comfortable, it becomes unnecessary to subject yourself to the older method.

With the advantages that only the Chrysler Six offers it is the most logical thing in the world to take the road in your own car, whether the jump be long or short, whether for business or pleasure.

We predict that your Chrysler Six will make these changes in your ideas and habits of travel because it has already done so with thousands of owners.

They find not only can they travel swiftly in their Chrysler Six, but in greater comfort and safety. In many instances it also enables them to cut out the Pullmans and spend the night in their own comfortable beds at home.

All this is just what might have been expected when you consider the nature of the results which only the Chrysler Six delivers.

Swiftness — Ease — Safety. There is more speed in the Chrysler Six than you'll ever use—even when you're in a hurry to make the next town. You have command of a high-gear speed range of from 2 to better than 70 miles an hour. Few would care to let the car out to its limit.

You don't need this highest speed to make any journey in better time than other cars. Drive at an average of 35 miles and still you'll save time over others because the Chrysler Six is so alert, because it gets away so quickly and is so easy to handle, so sure in control. It is always first out of traffic.

Turns and rough roads need not worry you. You can take a turn in safety at 50 miles an hour and drive comfortably at 60 miles over cobble stones and rutted roads.

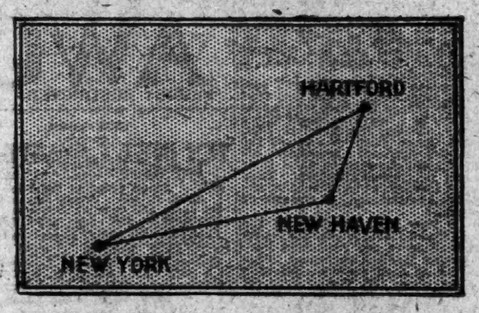
You'll drive in town or country all day without fatigue because of its easier riding qualities which efficient Watson stabilators have made still more remarkable by the elimination of re-bound shock on even the roughest highways.

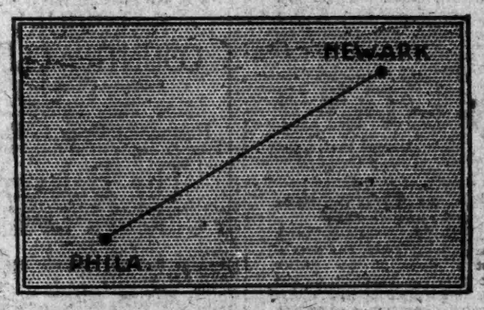
You'll drive always with the greatest possible safety because Chrysler-Lockheed self-equalizing hydraulic four-wheel brakes give you perfect control.

You'll find yourself freed of motor worries by the Purolator, which automatically and continuously filters all dirt out of the oil in your crank-case as you drive; by the efficient air-cleaner which keeps all dust and dirt out of your carburetor and engine.

We make one more prediction. After you have once had a ride in this car you'll always think of better transportation in terms of Chrysler Six. That ride is awaiting your convenience.



A New York man goes to New Haven frequently on business—then to Hartford and back to New York. He used to do it by train. Now he travels in his Chrysler Six—starts at his own time in the morning, makes New Haven and Hartford the same day, transacts business in each place and is free to start back home when he chooses, regardless of train schedules.



A Newark, N. J., business man is required to go to Philadelphia frequently. He used to make it by train, but now he makes it in his Chrysler Six with ease and comfort, and is an enthusiast over the newer and better way.

Results that only Chrysler Six delivers, owners say, make this newer travel method the safe, sensible and comfortable way to get about.

SERBS AND CROATS GETTING TOGETHER

ACTION DEEMED SIGNIFICANT

Is Held to Indicate Great Progress Toward Complete Unity of the New Kingdom.

The Legation of the Kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes at Washington has received a dispatch from Belgrade announcing that the Parliamentary committee for the erection of a national monument to the late King Peter of Serbia has unanimously elected Pavle Raditch, Vice President of the Croatian Peasant Party, to be its President.

Captain Gordon Gordon-Smith of the Royal Serbian Army, who communicated to THE NEW YORK TIMES last night, declared that the dispatch was one of the most important received from Yugoslavia for some time, since it meant that the Croatian Peasant Party, which until recently had been opposed to the Constitution, was to be honored through its Vice President, who in last March, in the name of Stefan Raditch, the founder of the party, had repudiated its original program, including its republican aspirations, and had declared that henceforth its conduct would be strictly constitutional.

"The Croation Peasant Party," said Captain Gordon-Smith, "was at first dominated by Stefan Raditch, who would then consent to a mere personal union with Serbia. When, therefore, in 1921, the present Constitution was voted, the elder Raditch refused to allow his seventy elected followers to take their seats in the Belgrade Parliament. They looked upon themselves as composing the local Diet in the autonomous Croatia of their dreams.

"About a year ago, however, at the request of Llouba Davidovitch, the leader of the Opposition in the Yougoslav Parliament, Stefan Raditch consented to his followers taking their seats in Belgrade in order to place the Government of Nicolas Pashitch in a minority. About the same time he went off to Moscow, where he affiliated the Croatian Peasants' Party with the Bolshevist Peasant International. For this he was arrested on his return to Croatia and is still in prison awaiting trial.

"At the general election on Feb. 8 last, the Government parties, Radicals (who, in Yugoslavia, are the Conservative Party) and the Dissident Democrats, were victorious, securing a majority of eleven votes over all the opposition parties combined.

"Then on March 28 came a coup de théâtre. Pavle Raditch, Vice President of the Croatian Peasant Party, rose in his place in Parliament and announced in the name of Stefan Raditch and the whole party that it renounced its republican aspirations and accepted the House of Karageorgevitch as the ruling dynasty. It further accepted the existing Constitution and declared that it would only undertake its revision by the legal machinery provided in the Constitution itself.

"This declaration," concluded Captain Gordon-Smith, "meant that Yugoslav national unity was at last achieved. Since then Pavle Raditch has had repeated audiences with King Alexander, and in political circles in Belgrade it has even been expected that a Government majority of Radicals and Croatians might be formed.

"The election of a Croatian leader to preside over the committee for the erection of a monument to King Peter of Serbia shows the immense progress made toward the complete reconciliation of Serbs and Croats. This improvement in their relations is bound to have a far-reaching influence on the destinies of King Alexander's kingdom. During the whole crisis the strictly constitutional role played by the King has enormously increased his personal prestige and the confidence which the nation feels in his leadership."

LUMBER FIRE IN BRONX.

Eight Families Forced to Leave Tenement Near Blaze.

Traffic on the Third Avenue and Tremont Avenue surface lines in the Bronx was held up for more than three hours and reserves from three police stations were called out yesterday afternoon to enable firemen to combat a three-alarm fire which destroyed a two-story brick building at 4,222-4,224 Third Avenue and forced eight families from an adjoining tenement to the street.

The building was occupied by the Arrow Lumber Company. The blaze spread quickly through and broke through the roof before the firemen got it under control. Meanwhile smoke frightened persons living in the tenement to the north of the burning building, and they fled to the street. The fire apparatus and the crowd that collected forced the trolley lines to suspend operations, whereupon the reserves from the Tremont, Morrisania and Alexander Avenue stations were called.

Flames got so near the elevated structure in front of the building that the I. R. T. transferred all trains at Tremont Avenue to the express track so the cars would not be scorched, but service was not suspended.

3 GIRLS RESCUED IN BAY.

Exhausted by Tide, They Scream, and Two Men Race to Them.

Three young women were rescued from drowning in Gravesend Bay off the foot of West Thirty-second Street, Brooklyn, yesterday by two men bathers who heard their screams and swam out from shore.

The women were Jeanette Caruso, 174 Thirty-first Street, Brooklyn; Grace Duffey, 229 Dean Street, Brooklyn, and Marie Banks, 5,401 Fourth Avenue. They swam a considerable distance from shore and were prevented by the tide from returning. Their efforts exhausted them and they began to scream.

Stephen Lapole of 2,668 Bay Fiftieth Street, Brooklyn, and William Perrillo of 3 Bay Terrace, Brooklyn, dived in and raced to the young women. The latter were helpless when they got to shore, although all were conscious. They were able to go home after treatment by an ambulance surgeon.

Allows Immigrant Boy to Enter.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., June 16.—John Waters, Irish immigrant boy, ordered deported May 30 after efforts of his sister, Mrs. Beatrice Kiersbilk, of this city, failed to gain his admittance to the United States, finally has been allowed to enter the country. Permission to enter is the result of a re-examination granted by the Department of Labor. Waters had been detained at Ellis Island five months following assertion by physicians there that he had heart disease.

to put in for Mrs. Shepherd," she said quickly, "because I didn't think that she was at that time. I didn't think that she was interested in this, and I asked them to put $100,000 in for her.

"So that you had no ill feeling toward Mrs. Shepherd when you made that agreement?"

"When I made that agreement I wanted that put in."

Day at Clever Cross-Examination.

That ended a day of remarkably clever cross-examination. Mr. Stewart's examination was replete with polite suggestion and innuendo, to which not a word in exception could be taken, but which led up with great effect to the words, "Fifty-fifty."

Most of the cross-examination revolved about the letters which Miss Pope had written to Billy McClintock when he was at Dartmouth, mute bundles of fervid words, unmistakably sincere in their ardent emotion, but of which only a few paragraphs reached the jury. The letters were bandied about under her eyes, passed carelessly from hand to hand as they were examined. Sometimes Mr. Shepherd himself played with them, putting them together as if they were a pack of cards, finding one he wanted and all the time Miss Pope's eyes followed them, the little story of her sad romance. It was the only time she had shown emotion, for once when a passage was read her head fell upon her hand and what might have been a blush, or a wave of more violent feeling colored her cheeks and brought out the dark circles under her eyes. And when her eyes rested on the letters they were unutterably sad.

There were things in those letters which she dreaded having paraded before the public, little intimate things which a girl in love might write to the boy she expected to marry and whom she knew very well; not unpleasant things, but things that were very personal. Sometimes when Mr. Stewart reached a point near one of these references, she would glance up from the original, which she held in her hand, with a quick look of appeal. But they never appeared, for Mr. Stewart always stopped in time. It was the prosecution which made the most fervid passage a part of the record.

Mr. Stewart leaned sometimes on the rail of the jury box, and twice walked to the witness chair and half knelt beside Miss Pope as they looked over a letter together before reading a sentence from it. There was a sort of gentle ferocity in his manner toward her. He has a pleasant voice, and a pleasant smile, which he used to the utmost. But every word and intonation suggested that Miss Pope had been influenced by the personality of Judge Harry Olson, the McClintocks' friend, whom he made to loom as the avenging figure behind the prosecution, and by the McClintock money, which had brought unhappiness to three generations.

The next person Miss Pope consulted was John H. S. Lee, a lawyer. It was brought out that when "Billy" was sick and she was not permitted to see him, the girl consulted a lawyer named Whitburn, who was "a cousin or uncle," and who lived near her.

The intimacy between Miss Pope and Billy and the Shepherds was brought out when Mr. Stewart asked her about a talk with Shepherd the night he drove her home after Billy had been taken ill.

"Mr. Shepherd was talking about a rather intimate subject, as you understood, for the benefit of the boy, wasn't he?" the lawyer asked.

"I suppose so," the witness replied, quietly. "That is what he appeared to be doing."

"And he told you that the boy was careless about those matters and those of us who love him should look after him," isn't that true?"

"Yes, that is so," she answered.

"And he wanted your cooperation in so far as your influence would be valuable in getting the boy to take better care of his habits, isn't that true?"

"Yes, that's so."

Tells of Eating Oysters.

Then Stewart shifted quickly to the dinner at the Windermere, where Billy McClintock ate the oysters which the defense will contend were responsible for his contracting typhoid fever. Miss Pope admitted that Billy had not felt very well at that time, and that he had eaten oysters. That was on Nov. 9, 1924, about three weeks before he was taken ill, and presumably before he told Shepherd that he had typhoid, as she testified yesterday.

"Now, you said here a couple of times, as I got your answers," said Mr. Stewart, "that Mr. Shepherd said that he had made a study of typhoid and germs."

"Yes."

"You did not use the word 'germs' at all at the Coroner's inquest in your examination, did you?"

"I think I did," said the witness, tipping her head thoughtfully to one side.

Writes of Visiting "Billy's" Mother.

Mr. Stewart read from a letter written March 17, 1924, a short time before "Billy" became of age:

"Well, I called your mother up after I wrote you and very nicely invited myself to see her. She seemed to want me, so I went. Mailed your letter on the way. Mr. Newman, Miss Fifer, Mildred Lund and a friend of hers, a Miss Burnett, were all there, and Buddy was there, of course. We had a lovely time singing and visiting. Your mother had been making taffy and we all got there in time to pull it. Incidentally, it turned out fine. Your mother served tea, and it was very nice, as it always is. Then we took Mildred and her friend home, and I went to church with your mother and father. I enjoyed going to it."

Then skipping a bit he read:

"Of course I didn't say anything to your mother that you told me to. She was darling to me today."

From another letter Mr. Stewart read: "Over the phone your mother acknowledged your engagement to me. I was overwhelmed and utterly at a loss as to what to say. She was lovely to me, though. I have not had a chance to have very much of a visit with her. I am going up to your house for dinner tomorrow evening."

Other Letters Read.

There were more references to letters to show that Mrs. Shepherd felt kindly toward Miss Pope and hoped to welcome her into the family, and an admonition from Miss Pope to "Billy" that he must write to his mother oftener.

In one letter was the expression, "Wont's it be wonderful, dear, when instead of my mother and your mother, it will be our mother?"

"And you thought it would be wonderful to have Mrs. Shepherd as your mother, didn't you?" Mr. Stewart asked.

"No," was Miss Pope's answer.

From a letter dated Nov. 24, 1923, the attorney quoted: "I am so happy that you have a good drag with your folks. It always pays, doesn't it, dear?" and asked "What do you mean by 'drag?'"

"Billy wrote me and in his letter—I guess there had been some trouble between Billy and the Shepherds for a while, and he wrote and said that he had a good drag with them now, that he had written something and had a good drag with them, and I was simply commenting upon his remark," said the witness.

"Well, you were happy to find that whatever it was, it was all right then?"

"Why, of course, I didn't want to have any trouble," was the answer.

Has "Ill-Feeling" Toward Shepherd.

Miss Pope testified that she now had "an ill-feeling" toward Shepherd, but when Mr. Stewart asked if she had a similar feeling toward Mrs. Shepherd she replied:

"Well, there is not anything to say about it. She isn't concerned in this at all."

When Miss Pope was questioned as to the feeling between "Billy" and his foster parents, she was unwilling at first to answer.

"He loved his parents?" asked Mr. Stewart.

"I can't say that he did," she answered. "I don't believe that he did love them as a boy loves his own father and mother."

"Did they love him?"

"You will have to ask them."

"What is your opinion?"

"I don't think they did."

Assistant State's Attorney Savage recalled Miss Pope for a few minutes to read parts of the letters that had been left out by the defense. One read:

"I certainly was surprised to read you had written your mother about us. I wonder how she will feel about it and what she will say about it. I hope and pray, soon as you feel it is all right to tell your folks, definitely, and mine, then I am willing, for it would make it nicer that way."

Reading from a letter dated Jan. 24, 1924: "For years I have been in a most difficult position, engaged and yet unengaged, while you were not hampered that way at all," Mr. Savage asked her to explain what she meant by that.

"Well, I was engaged to Billy secretly," said Miss Pope. "We did not have it announced, you see, and I was in school, and I had offers to go out, engagements for evenings and so forth, and I went out. Billy wanted me to, and yet it was a difficult position because sometimes I didn't want to and sometimes I did, and Billy was away at school and boys' college and it was different with him."

Mr. Savage referred again to the Windermere dinner party and brought out that of the three who ate oysters young McClintock was the only one who became ill afterward.

Witness Tells of Wills.

The financial matters which have had so much to do with the Shepherd case, the question of what wills were drawn and how, and the size of the McClintock estate, were taken up in the questioning of Mrs. Leola Allard-Day, a reporter for a Chicago paper, who interviewed Shepherd after Billy McClintock's death, and Oscar D. Stern, an attorney who had charge of the McClintock estate for ten years before Billy came of age.

"Before Mrs. McClintock died," said Mrs. Day, "he (Shepherd) said he had made a will for her, in which he was the executor of the estate, and he and his wife were the guardians of Billy, and they benefited by this will, they got a great deal of money, and that Mr. Reichmann came in at the last minute and made a will for Mrs. McClintock, and that he had always kept this will which he had made for Emma. I asked him where, and he said he had it in the safe, and I asked him if he still had it there, and he said, yes, he kept it all these years and that he would present it at the proper time.

"He said that Mr. Reichmann had drawn another will for Emma McClintock and then had taken it—after he had read it to her—had taken it out of the house to make some slight change, so he said. He told Emma there was some slight change to be made just to make it legal and binding and he took it out and then brought it back later, and when he brought it back it was not read to her, that she signed it without its being re-read after he had made the changes.

"He said it was a funny thing, but in 1905 a fortune teller on a train in Texas told his fortune and said he had a son. He said he had no son, and she said, 'Yes, I see a boy, and it is your boy and he is standing between two women, and this boy is going to be very ill and die, and when he dies there will be an explosion that will rock the country, but after the smoke is cleared away there will be nothing.' And he said, 'You see, it has all come true, just as she said, and it is funny, because that was sixteen years ago.'

"I asked him if it were true, as a paper had stated, that he had prevented the marriage of Isabelle and Billy, and he said it certainly was, because Billy did not want to marry her. It was prevented, but he had the Rev. Mr. Nauman, the minister who was at the bedside, ready to refuse to perform it if she got there with the license before Billy died because Billy did not want it."

Mrs. Day would not admit on cross-examination that Shepherd had directly charged Mr. Reichmann, who is attorney for the Northern Trust Company, with changing the will and making him co-guardian with Mrs. Shepherd of Billy.

Mr. Stewart again brought out that Mrs. Day had seen Judge Olson every day on the case, although she explained that that was part of her duty as a reporter.

Defense Gives Out Fiancee's Letters.

After the day's session in the Shepherd trial the defense attorney gave out some of the letters written by Miss Pope to Billy McClintock, parts of which had been introduced in evidence during the day. They show the very evident love Miss Pope had for the boy she has been accused of attempting to marry because of his money. One of these letters is as follows:

Oct. 4, 1923.

My Dearest:

Three—one, two, three—letters from you today. Oh, how happy I am to have such a wonderful, faithful boy in love with me! Whatever have I done to deserve you?

First thing I will do will be to answer your letters.

You needn't worry, sweatheart, about my missing, for I won't. It is joy to write you and the most pleasurable part of the day with one exception. It is so wonderful and thoughtful of you to think of me—and remember, I am feeling fine right now. O. M. W. of H., and have an idea that I will be O. K. I will keep you well informed as to my health, dear, and will be extremely careful.

This evening is the beginning and I ought to be feeling fine tomorrow because I feel so well now. I will be O. K. by the week-end. You're a precious darling to be so thoughtful and I love you beyond all else.

Yes, Wayne is rather conceited, but outside of that he's not so bad. He's a good dancer and gives you a good time, as that's all he's after. We get along famously. I will wear your pin outside darling, from now on.

Liz is now downstairs playing the victrola. She's playing all the records we bought together and that we played together so many times. You are so closely linked in my mind with these records that when I hear them I feel all choked up in my throat.

Oh, sweetheart, I want you and need you so. I can hardly stand this being apart. I can't write more. I love you and am all your own.

ISABELLE.

Revelations in Youth's Letters.

Some of the letters which "Billy" McClintock wrote to Miss Pope while he was a student at Dartmouth were obtained tonight and show that the youth was even then preparing to break with the Shepherds, his foster parents. They bear out to a large extent the testimony of Miss Pope that "Billy" did not care very much about them. All the letters show an ardent love for Miss Pope.

In a letter written in May, 1924, while he was at Dartmouth, young McClintock said:

"I have not heard from the folks (the Shepherds) in weeks. I suppose I have committed some frightful boner or something, but really I can't bother to find out until they write. I really think they will both be happier if they have their little farm or home in Florida and don't bother about me. I wonder what they will have to say when I announce my revised plans for the care of what properties I have. I don't care much, for I am at last sure of myself."

In a letter dated April 26 he has something to say about the sale of the Kenilworth house. The prosecution has sought to show that "Billy" authorized the selling of that house, and that Shepherd told the agent that it was not for sale. The letter says:

"I have to have the Kenilworth House sold by next Fall at the latest, though then the market might be down, but I can't see the $700 a month it costs to keep that darn place up. I sure have a lot to do when I get home, and one thing we must do is go over the entire house and pick out what we want."

A final letter, written in Chicago on Aug. 12, 1924, is particularly fervent in expressions of his love for Miss Pope.

Why We Claim
No Major Part in the successes pointed to as ours

MANY noted successes in advertising are pointed to as of Lord & Thomas—mastery of markets in many lines.

Yet in truth we claim no major part in even one.

We hold that no business which could not succeed without us could gain the pinnacle because of us.

The only role we play in the drama of success is as an able helper, a lieutenant whose only genius is that of common sense.

To us that seems the only attainment men in our work can justly claim . . . to recognize things for what they are, to follow the precepts of common sense.

That is a simple formula. Anyone can apply it. Build merchandising plans around it, on a wanted product, and they will win. Thread copy with it, and it will sell the millions.

Study the strategy of successful advertising pilots, and you will find it founded on those principles . . . . . a strategy fabricated in knowledge that the end must justify the means; that expenditures must be planned with profit sheets in mind.

Thus, at times, advertising pressure is cautiously applied. And frequently, entrenchment advocated when immunity from competitive attack admits it.

Contrariwise, there come times when great aggressiveness, the straining of all muscles becomes the course of multiplying profits, of gaining outstanding leadership, when selling effort and advertising pressure must be exercised to their utmost.

Hence the province of an advertising agent is to gain two points for a client: entrenched leadership and consistent earnings.

He must sacrifice neither to the other.

He must fearlessly advocate, when and as necessary, either added pressure, or passing retrenchment.

But, above all things, his judgment must be based on true experience, on the unique analysis that's born of caution . . . the end must justify the means. His abilities we must always measure in terms of dollar profits.

To us that marks but simple common sense—and common sense so far has proved the one open road to uncommon results in advertising.

The miracle of advertising is that when applied in a common sense way, it brings magical results.

The Foolish Mrs. King.

AFTER BUSINESS HOURS, with Elaine Hammerstein, Lou Tellegen, Phyllis Haver, John Patrick, Lillian Langdon, William Scott and Lee Moran, adapted from a story by Ethel Watts Mumford, directed by Mal St. Clair; "Colony Melody Masters"; La Torrella, in dance impressions; "Through a Garden Window," with Beth McCoy, soprano; "Perils of the Alps"; June Day and Leo Henning with La Chapadi marimba orchestra; "Baby Blues," a comedy. At the Colony.

It is a poor idea to have a weak heroine, even if her prototype may exist in real life, as spectators are apt to become wearied with the readiness with which she succumbs to temptations. There is in "After Business Hours," the new film at the Colony, a poor young creature who stumbles into pit after pit of misfortune, and when things brighten up in the end it is done as if the scenarist, tired of the volumes of difficulties encountered by the attractive woman, had decided to end the narrative with a hug and a kiss, which is not essentially original.

It is surprising that this script was written by Douglas Z. Doty, who took it from a narrative by Ethel Watts Mumford. Mr. Doty knows stories, as when he was editor of The Century Magazine, several years ago, he distinguished himself by accepting Stacey Aumonier's classical short story, "The Friends." Yet Mr. Doty paints a most gullible young heroine in Mrs. June King. She is afraid to tell her husband when she is in trouble, which, in the first place, would undoubtedly have been overlooked. This tale could have been worked out in a much more plausible fashion, as it has the nucleus of a sound plot, none too new, but nevertheless interesting.

John King, impersonated by Lou Tellegen, has original ideas about wives. He thinks that they should have their husband's love and be able to get anything they wish in the sartorial line on charge accounts, but that they should never receive more than a nominal sum of money. June at the outset loses $150 in a poker game to Mrs. Wentworth, and she is forced to give an I O U for that amount. At first she thinks that she will ask her husband for the money, but he unconsciously stops her from doing so by offering her $10 for tips and incidentals. John is a man of means, and the mention of such an amount is ridiculously petty. One almost expected Mrs. King to fly into a rage and say she wanted $1,000. She, however, takes the $10, and eventually gets out of the difficulty by pawning her bar-pin, the villain, Richard Downing, having an interest in the pawn shop which caters to poor wives of rich men.

John gives his wife a string of pearls and then she finds herself in a frightful financial muddle through betting on the races as the results come over the radio. So, of course, she pawns the pearls, getting an imitation string to take their place. All one has to say to June is "gamble," and she has the fever for it, when the average child might realize that she has not a ghost of a chance of winning.

June develops a real pawning mania. Mrs. Wentworth, a garrulous old gambler, who is fortunate at cards, drops a valuable brooch in June's boudoir. At first June is inclined to return the brooch, but as she has been worried by a blackmailing chauffeur, the weak creature decides to pawn it. This nets her more worry and trouble. One could pick holes in almost every situation of this story, but we won't.

There is an element of interest in this picture, as one never knows how foolish Mrs. King is going to be in the next chapter.

Not So Good.

LYING WIVES, with Clara Kimball Young, Richard Bennett, Madge Kennedy, Edna Murphy, Niles Welch, J. Barney Sherry, Buddy Harris and Bee Jackson; written and directed by Ivan Abramson; overture, "Hungarian Dance in G minor"; "Echoes of Ireland"; John Hammond's organ recital; Virginia Newbegin and Claire Stetson, respectively soprano and contralto; Bee Jackson, danseuse. At the Piccadilly.

One could go a long way and search through many volumes without finding a better sample of an out-and-out, dyed-in-the-wool movie title than that attached to the pseudo film entertainment at the Piccadilly, which is heralded as "Lying Wives." The story suits this classical appellation, and the captions are of the old school which taught that a villain must be called a "cur," that the "child" must be mentioned frequently and that the female conspirator must talk as if she would put vinegar in the breakfast coffee and delight in touching up vanilla ice cream with English mustard.

"Have you no decency at all?" asks the heroine. "Are you going to rob this child of his father?"

Naturally no siren replies to such absurd questions. She only narrows her eyes, and half an hour later endeavors to make the hero fond of her.

Richard Bennett has a dressing gown which we surmise was picked out by Ivan Abramson, the author and director of this melodramatic mile, which incidentally is alluded to in advertising matter as an "Ivan Emerald Production." This dressing gown looks as if it might be patterned after the wallpaper in an old English parlor, when it seemed as if they thought it was sinful to have too much light on the subject. The gorgeous gown shimmers and glistens, while Mr. Bennett looks as if he would rather appear in his shirtsleeves. Mr. Bennett enacts the rôle of Theodore Stanhope, a "kindly, good-looking diamond merchant." Miss Young has the task of impersonating the unnecessarily nasty vampire, and Niles Welch is the individual whom this wicked female so easily leads by the ear or the nose.

Mr. Abramson is not content with producing and directing his own pictures, but now he has to write them. We cannot congratulate him on this particular effort, which, besides being quite tedious, is very muddled.

ACTRESS SUES FOR COAT.

Hazel Dawn Charges Drink at Astor Pharmacy Ruined Garment.

Hazel Dawn, motion picture actress, has filed suit through her attorney, Maurice Meyer of 63 Park Row, against the Hotel Astor Pharmacy for $200, the price of a silk coat which she alleges was ruined on May 5 last when a glass of malted milk was spilled over it.

The case will be tried today in the Third District Municipal Court. Mr. Meyer said yesterday. Miss Dawn, he said, ordered a glass of malted milk at the drug store fountain. The drink was mixed with an electric appliance which apparently cracked the glass, he said, for when it was put in front of Miss Dawn it burst, scattering the contents over her silk coat.

It was said last night at the pharmacy that W. P. Finn, one of the proprietors, would have no statement to make until today. A Mr. Doyle declared that the facts as known to him were that the liquid spilled over Miss Dawn's coat when a cracked glass from which she was drinking broke. Mr. Doyle said that the pharmacy sent the coat to a cleaner, but that Miss Dawn was not satisfied with its condition when it was brought back.

JERITZA IS GREETED AT COVENT GARDEN

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—Jeritza's début at Covent Garden tonight in "Tosca" was featured by the calling out of specials from the Bow Street police station across the street to handle the large crowd of angry and disappointed bidders for cheaper seats. The best reserved seats had been sold out a week in advance, the speculators reaping a harvest tonight, many persons paying $50 at the last minute for $6 seats, due to the widespread curiosity to hear the Viennese star following the reports of her temperamental outbursts.

Celebrities of the social and diplomatic world were present, including the Austrian Minister. Artistic celebrities included Dame Nellie Melba, Florence Easton and Antonio Scotti, all favorites of other Covent Garden seasons.

Jeritza's performance was marked by nervousness, due to a somewhat overzealous bid for success. Her reception was cordial if not exceptionally enthusiastic. Her support was only fair. Baritone Franci was best.

Jeritza concludes her appearances here next week, when she will sing twice in "Fedora."

Last night's opener of "Lucia" was sharply criticized because of the faulty ensemble, but Dal Monte, who pleased the critics with her technique, today signed a contract for twelve Autumn concerts at £500 each. The local press shows much interest in Rethberg's début in "Aida" Thursday.

LIVERMORE AIDS SILENT.

Make No Comment He Sold 50,000,000 Bushels of Wheat.

Reports from Washington that Jesse L. Livermore sold 50,000,000 bushels of wheat from the first of the year to April 1 could not be confirmed here yesterday. Mr. Livermore was not in New York yesterday, but his associates said that he had adopted a policy of saying nothing for publication and were certain that Mr. Livermore had no statement to make.

It has been a matter of common knowledge in the financial district for several weeks that Mr. Livermore was a big winner in the smash in the wheat market on the "bear" side which occurred after the active options crossed the $2 mark. It has been generally understood that he turned bearish on wheat at around $1.90 when it was on the upturn, and sold tremendous lines of it through the $2 mark. The average has been reported in Wall Street as about $1.97. These grain options were covered on the smash.

The gains to Mr. Livermore are said to have been the largest in such a short period in the history of his career and have been variously estimated.

CHICAGO, June 16.—The report from Washington that Jesse C. Livermore had sold 50,000,000 bushels of wheat on the decline from $2.05 on Jan. 28 to $1.36½ on April 3 was termed another one of the various wild stories that come from Washington about once a month, by a man in a position to know of the trading in wheat during the decline. He says that 15,000,000 bushels would probably be nearer the correct figures.

work on a résumé of the tax problems he studied abroad, and also his ideas on American tax revision. As Mr. Green is not in entire harmony with the Administration's attitude on repeal of the inheritance taxes and the reduction of the surtax, his statement is awaited with interest. Those who know Mr. Green declare that he will not favor a heavy surtax cut unless there is a substantial reduction for the benefit of small taxpayers.

"It is difficult and unfair," said Mr. Tilson in his interview, "to compare conditions in the United States with those abroad, and certainly no comparison should be attempted which does not take into consideration the much heavier burden the war placed on our allies and our enemies in proportion to their financial and numerical strength. There are enough similarities, however, to convince me that the remedy needed abroad is the same remedy needed here, namely, economy in Government expenditures and a taxation system which will raise the greatest amount of revenue without interfering with business to such an extent that the effect will be to kill the goose that lays the golden egg.

"In Europe they are only just beginning to realize the necessity for a rigid program of economy. In this country, thanks to the foresight of our Republican leaders in Congress and to the determined efforts of President Coolidge, such progress has been made in this direction that we have already been able to reduce taxes to a substantial degree. The task now before us is to continue the program of economy so well started and to reform taxation to meet the improved conditions, reducing high surtaxes to such a point that the maximum of revenue will be raised with the minimum interference with private enterprise, and eliminating or reducing excessive inheritance taxes, which constantly keep business in unrest.

Points to Burden on Estates.

"The average man, who has never looked into this subject, perhaps does not understand the seriousness of this subject, but if he stops to consider that if a man of large interests dies leaving $1,000,000, his heirs must first raise $400,000 to pay a Government tax before they can go ahead with the operation of his interests, with the result that many such interests are seriously handicapped.

"While abroad I tried to observe conditions carefully and obtained as much information as I could concerning political and economic conditions, so that I might have the benefit of this information in my work in Congress during the next two years. I returned with the conviction that throughout the world, as in the United States, the pendulum of public thought is swinging toward conservatism—away from the belief in quack remedies for public ills and back to the principle that the success of the State as well as the individuals who compose it must be founded on hard work, economy and common sense.

"The individual can acquire wealth only by earning it. The State must support itself by taking away from the individuals who compose it part of what they earn. It is right and proper that those who earn most should pay most, but our own experience proves that we must not carry this principle so far that productive enterprise will be discouraged by exorbitant taxation.

"We have made greater strides in the United States in the direction of normal conditions than any other country which was engaged in the great war, as I found conditions. Having found the right road, however, we should not loiter on the way, but press onward as an example to the rest of the world."

Democrats May Back Mellon Plan.

Led by Senators Underwood and Glass, there is a movement steadily gaining headway among Southern Democratic Senators for a heavy reduction in the surtaxes. This movement is reported strong because the Southern representatives have found that industry has been throttled by keeping up the taxes on capital, the position assumed by a majority of the Democrats in the last Congress.

Sentiment in the South is now said to favor acceptance of the theories of taxation advanced by Secretary Mellon as respecting the surtax reduction. Southern representatives in Congress are going to attempt tax revision as a non-political subject, it is added. Therefore, it is believed that a large body of leading Southern members of Congress may align themselves with the Republicans.

A statement tonight by the American Bankers' League, an organization composed largely of bankers and business men with offices in this city, says in part:

"Information reaching the American Bankers' League discloses a surprising tendency among the Democrats in every part of the country to support a plan to scale down surtaxes. This ought to be done, it is declared on every hand, not to enhance the fortunes of the party but to give greater freedom to business.

"The South, which is depended upon to suggest a measure for the general benefit of the people, is especially responsive to the demand for tax reform. Leaders of the party declared that they are perfectly willing to go before the people with a record for tax revision based upon the needs of the country, no matter if the reform is achieved during the lifetime of a Republican Administration.

"Senator Jones of New Mexico, who is counted among the progressive Democrats, has come out strongly for tax reform. Mr. Jones has always contended that wealth should pay its proper proportion of the cost of government. But the trouble is, he insisted, that under the present plan, wealth is not contributing what it ought.

"Senator Overman of North Carolina is among the Southern statesmen who have announced their determination to vote for repeal of the inheritance tax. It is expected that his colleague, Senator Simmons, will take the same stand."

LONDON, June 16.—Mrs. Hilton Philipson, M. P., better known to theatregoers as Mabel Russell, has accepted a professional engagement to appear next week on the London stage. She will be the first Member of Parliament to partake professionally in a revue.

Mrs. Philipson made her first stage appearance as a chorus girl, and was playing important roles when she retired in 1916. She has represented Berwick-on-Tweed in Parliament since 1923. Her reappearance on the stage will certainly provoke a great deal of discussion, especially in Parliamentary circles.

THE English language contains 600,000 words. All of them put together could not describe the charm of Douglas Fairbanks' new photoplay "Don Q, Son of Zorro," now at the Globe Theatre, Broadway at 46th Street.

CRITICS were enthusiastic in their praise. The delight of the love story, the glitter of Spanish beauty, the swing and lilt and complications of the drama and the humorous and startling stunts of the star combine to make Don Q Douglas Fairbanks' best photodrama.

YANKEES ONCE MORE HIT 3-STRAIGHT JINX

RUTH'S BIG HOMER FUTILE

The Babe Also Hits a Two-Bagger, Makes Several Good Catches and Steals Third.

By JAMES R. HARRISON.

The Yankees broke their long winning streak of two straight games yesterday. Just when they were on the verge of taking another victory on the chin, Herb Pennock and Lou Gehrig stepped in with a pair of accidental tosses that left the game in the ash receptacle. After an uphill battle the Yanks finally lost to the Tigers, 5—3.

A few innings before the discus throwing Babe Ruth smacked his third homer of the season into the right field salient. He also clouted a two-bagger against the fence, made a couple of roving catches in right and stole third standing up. As soon as he gets his health back, the Bambino intends to show the other boys a few pointers about the national sport.

The fact that Ruth hit a homer may cause a stir of eager interest and surprise in certain circles, but there will be absolutely no astonishment over the Yanks' defeat. The Hugmen believe in the old bromide about consistency being a jewel, which explains why they are hopelessly addicted to winning streaks of two or less contests.

It is now ten or eleven times that the Yanks have been stopped short of three in a row. In order to break the jinx they have attempted everything except wearing their caps backward and walking around a chair three times. This will be tried on the next occasion.

Fred Merkle, the man who forgot to touch second base, appeared on the coaching line for the first time, but this did no good. The Yanks forgot to touch the plate.

Two Wild Tosses Not Two Runs.

Ruth's homer went about 300 feet, but the Gehrig-Pennock throws, end to end, exceeded this by three furlongs and two runs. It was in the sixth that the grotesque hurling took place. One was out and the Yanks were two tallies ahead. Heilmann singled to right and Blue drew a walk. Rigney, batting for Tavener, tapped one to Pennock, who had to hurry his throw and hurried it against the grandstand back of first.

Heilmann scored and Blue raced to third. He stopped there while Gehrig ran back with the pill, poised himself carefully at the edge of the diamond and then threw unnecessarily hard and far over Bengough's head. When Pennock failed to back up the play Blue cantered in and Tavener eased himself to third, where he was in a position to score on Bassler's rap to right.

The ball game went bloopy right there, but in the seventh, with Mons. Hoyt pitching, the Tigers added a clinching run. O'Rourke singled and Gehrig muffed Hoyt's throw when Fothergill splashed along the first base line. The error was Hoyt's because of the high throw into the path of the runner. As Cobb fanned, O'Rourke was nailed stealing third, but Fothergill fetched in a run on Heilmann's two-bagger to right.

Whitehill, the Detroit southpaw, was slippery in the pinches and got out of more tight places than Houdini. In the first Ruth almost ruined the Tigers with his longest shot of the season. With Shanks on first and two out, the Big Bam lifted a fly to the extreme edge of the bleachers in right centre, at the angle where the fences meet. It was a lengthier blow than his later one, yet Cobb was able to make an easy catch by taking to his heels and fleeing to the open country.

The Bambino's Big Bang.

In the third Tyrus was not so good and his muff of Shanks's lift cost the Tigers two runs. Ty overran the ball and it bounced out of his hands over his head. Ruth caressed the next ball on a direct line into the bleachers. The drive drifted over the upper corner of the exit gate, a few feet to the right and almost half way up the terrace.

Meusel took a walk in the fourth, went to third on Gehrig's single and scored on Ward's sacrifice fly. O'Rourke grumbled Bengough's grounder and put Whitehill in a pretty mess, but Pennock and Wanninger were unable to produce.

Before Gehrig and Pennock chucked the game into their laps in the sixth the Tigers rang up a run in the fourth on Ruth's two-base muff of Blue's fly and Fothergill's single. The Ruthian faux pas was excusable, as he was going at full tilt toward the foul line, with Gehrig rushing at him from the opposite direction.

MERKLE NOW WITH YANKS.

After a meeting with Miller Huggins yesterday Fred Merkle signed a contract as Yankee coach and appeared on the lines in the game with the Tigers. The terms were not announced, but it is understood that Merkle bought his release from Rochester and arranged his own sale to the New York club.

Now that the former famous first baseman of McGraw's Giants has been added to the payroll, George Wiltse, who was a teammate of Merkle's and one of the best left-handers of his time, will devote all his time to Yankee scouting. Wiltse is now scouring the minors for new talent, and will continue on his explorations for the balance of the season.

WIND HELPS RED SOX WIN.

Flagstead's Fly Carried Away, Letting In Run That Beats White Sox.

BOSTON, June 16 (AP).—Robertson and Ehmke hooked up in a pitchers' battle, which the Red Sox won from Chicago, 2 to 1, today, only after the wind had played a decided part in the game. In the fifth inning an error by Davis placed a man on the bags, and Flagstead's fly was carried away from the fielders by the wind and dropped safely for two bases, scoring the winning run. This was Ehmke's fourth straight win in the present Red Sox home stay. Fielding plays by Kamm and Flagstead were features.

MONTEDONICO IS MEDALIST.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., June 16 (AP).—With a sensational birdie three on the eighteenth hole, Louis Montedonico, Memphis, scored 72 and won the medal in the Southern golf tournament at the Biltmore Forest Club here today. One of the last to finish, he had a par four to tie his fellow townsman, Chasteen Harris, and a birdie three to win. He placed his approach within four feet of the cup and ran the putt down to lead the big field.

Following Montedonico and Harris were Fred Lamprecht of Cleveland, a student at Tulane University, and Alan Brown, Clarksville, Tenn., who had 74 each.

The Colonial Country Club, Memphis, won the team trophy for low aggregate score with 308, followed by the Atlanta Athletic Club with 314.

GIANTS LOSE AGAIN IN 10 DIZZY INNINGS

Score Twice in Extra Frame but Then the Pirates Score Four Times to Win, 13-11.

FOURTH DEFEAT IN ROW

By HARRY CROSS.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 16.—Glenn Wright blasted a home run into the right field stand in the tenth inning of today's game and beat the Giants, 13 to 11. Pie Traynor was on the pillows at the time and the score was tied at 11 to 11.

From bell to bell the game was a battle, and as loose as a sailor's pocketbook. The invalid Giants came from behind, for the Pirates had the extravaganza won at one time by a 9 to 3 tally.

The Giants have dropped four straight here and now lead the league by only two and a half games. Its about time now to tell the truth about the bruised and battered New York club. Their temperature is 106, pulse is far above normal, respiration is alarming, blood pressure is kiting and they are also suffering from housemaid's knee and their appetites have gone bloogy.

As the clubs edged into the tenth with the score locked at 9 to 9, Terry singled with one out. Kelly singled to centre, and when Carey fumbled the ball Terry scored and Kelly went to second. Meusel's triple to right sent Kelly over and it looked as if the game was in the basket.

Pirates Make Most of Their Turn.

Then came the buccaneers' tenth. Nehf was pitching at the time and the only available boxmen left in the topsy turvy tilt. He walked Cuyler, who scored on Barnhart's triple against the centre field fence. Traynor's two-base smack scored Barnhart and the score was tied again.

The citizen now at the bat, fellow-friends and Romans, is Glenn Wright. He leaned on one of Nehf's benders and bolted it mercilessly into the grand stand. Traynor blazing the way home for him. There goes the ball game.

Five home runs punctuated the pastime, Terry and Southworth produced for the Giants, and Cuyler and Wright for the home lads. The Giant pitchers included Huntsinger, Greenfield, McQuillan, Wisner and Nehf. Aldridge, Kremer and Meadows entertained for Pirateldom.

In the ninth inning the supply of baseballs ran out, and the game was held up for ten minutes until a new case of rockets was pried open. When the game was finished, after two hours and forty minutes of nerve-tingling excitement, the crowd of 20,000 fans staggered out of Forbes Field, as dizzy as if they had been on a merry-go-round.

Carey slapped Huntsinger for a triple to the right field wall in the first, and scored when Moore whanged a double along the left field foul line. Cuyler and Barnhart were disposed of by the air route, and Eddie Farrell made a nice stop of Traynor's hopper and tossed him out at first.

The Pirates continued to annoy Huntsinger in the second. Wright singled to centre, and Grantham, the bat tosser, skied to Southworth. Earl Smith, a thorn in the side of the Giants, jammed a double to right, sending Wright to third. Aldridge helped himself to a single to right, scoring Wright and planting Smith on third. Earl scored when Carey tapped a long single to right.

The invalid Giants hopped out of their trance and tied the score in the third. Huntsinger banged a single to centre and went to second on Southworth's slash to Traynor. After Farrell whiffed, Terry pickled a double to left, scoring Huntsinger and at the same time pushing Southworth to third. Kelly spilled a single in centre, which was good and sufficient reason for both Southworth and Terry to scamper home.

Cuyler jolted Huntsinger right off the knoll in the third, when he rocked the centre field fence with a bang and traveled the home run route by speedy galloping. Greenfield, the tournament pacified tosser of the Manhattan troupe, went to the box. Greenfield works more or less every day, violating all the union rules for deceivers.

Greet Greenfield Warmly.

With McQuillan pitching in the fourth, Carey doubled and Moore sacrificed. Cuyler's double sent Carey over, and after Barnhart went out at first, Traynor's double and Wright's single sent over two more runs. Distressing!

Kelly contributed a run with a long drive into the right-field pavilion in the fifth. Terry's homer into the right-field stand in the sixth with Farrell aboard accounted for two more New York runs. Meusel's double, a wild pitch by Aldridge and Snyder's sacrifice fly gave the Giants another in the seventh.

Southworth's circuit spank into the right-field seats brought New York's total up to eight in the eighth.

The Giants tied the score in the first of the ninth. Jackson got his first single of the afternoon and Snider went out at first. Wilson as a pinch hitter fanned and when Carey muffed Southworth's drive in centre Jackson romped over with the tying tuft.

Virgil Barnes, who has been one of the most dependable of the Giants pitchers this season, was indefinitely suspended by Manager McGraw tonight. Barnes broke the rule which requires all the players to be in their rooms by 11:30 o'clock. This morning the pitcher reported that he had sprained his ankle by a fall on the tile floor of his bath room. Manager McGraw learned that the player had received the injury outside of the hotel.

This series breaks the Giants' record for visits to Pittsburgh. More than 90,000 fans went dippy through the four games.

LA BOULIE, France, June 16 (AP).—Miss Glenna Collett, United States; Miss Cecil Leitch, England, and the sixteen-year-old French girl, Mlle. Simone Thion de la Chaume, the three favorites in the international golf championship, which opens tomorrow, played a three-ball match today over the Boulie course.

Miss Collett, who was in superb form, won. She has just returned from Italy and Switzerland, where she rested from the strain of the English championship. The American girl started badly, but quickly recovered. She took a 2 at the sixth hole, a 2 at the tenth and a par 4 at the seventeenth, which is 400 yards. Miss Collett outdrove both Miss Leitch and Mlle. de la Chaume. Her wood shots were especially accurate.

Twenty-one players from England will tee up tomorrow afternoon at 3 o'clock, when play begins. Nine French women and two Americans, Miss Collett and Miss Kathleen Fairbanks, the latter a daughter of the American Consul at Dieppe, also will compete.

One round of eighteen holes will be played tomorrow. The second round and quarter-final will be contested Thursday, the semi-final Friday and the final on Saturday. Miss Collett has drawn Mrs. P. Garon of England as her opponent in the first round. Miss Fairbanks will meet Mrs. Lilian Heisch of England. Both Miss Collett and Miss Leitch are in the upper half of the draw and will meet in the quarter-final if both survive the first two rounds.

REDS PUSH ROBINS INTO FOURTH PLACE

With One-Run Lead in the Ninth Osborne Lets in Tally That Loses Game, 6-5.

By M. W. COREUM.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 16.—It is high time somebody or other viewed with alarm the way the Robins are behaving during the current warm spell. They are flying backward. By losing to the raging Reds in the ninth today they brought up in fourth place. Something should be done about it. The cold and cheerless count was 6 to 5.

The Reds are causing nearly as much trouble in the National League as they are in China. They are no respecters of property. After the hard working Brooklyn boys had piled up a nice four-run lead in the fourth they took it away from them in the succeeding inning and then went right ahead and appropriated the ball game to their own uses. It was sheer robbery, nothing else, and not one Marine came to the aid of the troubled Brooklynites.

Today's triumph was the Red's eleventh in twelve starts, and their third in the four games played with the Robins. The Brooklyn brigade has lost seven out of twelve in the West, and it was marching with muffled tread and keening to the centre of the street when it left here for Pittsburgh tonight.

Zach Wheat Guesses Wrong.

Old Zach Wheat got his first chance to make an important decision as a manager in today's tussle and guessed wrong. He took Jess Petty out of the game for a pinch hitter in the ninth with his team clinging to a one-run lead. The pinch hitter did not deliver, and Tiny Osborne, who took up the pitching burden in the home half of the closing stanza yielded the winning run after two were out.

It was a heart-breaker for the Robins to lose and, by the same token, an inspiring victory for Hendrick's hustlers. In fairness it must be admitted that they deserved to win. They played a never-say-die up-hill game after the Robins fell on Eppa Rixey for five runs in the fourth, and their perseverance deserved a reward.

The ninth decided it and here is what happened: Dessen, first up, rolled out to Stock. Ed Roush ripped a single to right. Bressler singled to centre, and when Brown fumbled momentarily Roush, who looks like a greyhound just off the leash, came home all the way from first. Stock's perfect relay to the plate might have beaten him at that, but he rode in safe high and knocked the ball out of Taylor's hand. This was the tying run.

Wilbur Hubbell was warmed up, but Wheat elected to take his chance behind the broad and sometimes capable shoulders of Osborne. Elmer Smith batted for Petty and lifted an innocent fly to Cox. There was still a fighting chance for the men of Robinson and Wheat.

But Babe Pinelli pumped a single to right and Walker rode over to third. That left it up to Al Niehaus, and Al was there. He lashed safely to right centre and Bressler bounded in with the winning run while "the loyal Red rooters" went wild.

There were other features, but none so decisive. The wing-footed Roush rammed a homer into the stands in the fifth; Rixey, the Virginia school boy, was invincible except in the fourth; Cox made a brilliant rolling stop to retire the side; and Taylor turned in one on a foul fly, the like of which will not be seen every day this season at Redland field.

There was also the daily rainstorm with its customary intermission. This came right after the Flatbush flock's one big inning and at the time threatened to rob the birds of their prey. The big inning was a wierd affair and its events will bear telling if only because of the length.

It began with a pass to Johnston. Jimmy was trapped off first, but instead of being out reached third when Critz obligingly hit him in the back of the head with the ball. Stock, who made three hits, each one to a different field, singled, scoring Johnston. Wheat was hit by a pitched ball and showed temper by flinging away his bat, this being one of the few times in recent years that Zach has ever indicated on the ball field that he even had a temper.

Fournier Busts Safely.

Fournier bunted safely, another unusual occurrence. Roush failed to get up to Brown's short fly and Stock scored, but Wheat was thrown out at third. Cox filed to centre. Ford scored Fournier with a single. Taylor did the same for Brown. Petty singled, scoring Ford, but Taylor was trapped off second and run down.

Bob Barrett has been released to Memphis on option and catcher Hartline sold to Knoxville outright.

Pickups and Putouts

Owen Carroll, the Holy Cross pitcher, was expected to join the Tigers yesterday, but he must have taken a slow freight from Worcester. If he doesn't show up today, Cobb will suspect that the Giants have kidnapped him.

Gehrig's Columbia football training cropped out in the ninth. After being forced out at second he crashed into O'Rourke lustily and spoiled Frank's aim toward first. Bengough, the batter, was called out for Lou's interference.

The fans applauded the decision and booed Gehrig, but Andy Coakley, Lou's mentor at Morningside, snorted loudly in the press box. "Baseball is a pink tea party," said Andrew, darkly. "Imagine such a decision in the good old days. Tim Hurst would have called him out for not bumping the fielder."

Ruth's double in the fifth clattered off the bleacher fence. Then he stole third without a throw. The Tigers were caught by surprise. They didn't think Ruth could run that fast without falling down.

Dominick Torpe, the N. Y. U. pitcher, and Walter Stoner, former Giant rookie right-hander, were voted out with the Yanks. Hugging hasn't signed them, but was willing to take a free look.

WALTER JOHNSON SHUTS OUT BROWNS

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).—With Walter Johnson in prime form, Washington shut out the St. Louis Browns in the second game of the series today, 3 to 0. The game was a pitchers' battle for six innings, with Giard also pitching effectively until wildness overtook him, opening the way for the first Washington score in the seventh. It was Johnson's tenth victory of the season.

SURPRISES OWN STABLE

By HENRY R. ILSLEY.

After an absence of a year from the races, Jefferson Livingston's old Knobbie came back at the Aqueduct race course yesterday afternoon and walked away with the Rockaway Claiming Stakes, at six furlongs, in a field of seven. The seven-year-old son of Wrack and Gold, with Edgar Barnes up, and in with only 107 pounds, was out in front all the way and ran the distance in 1:12 over a track that was just becoming fast under the drying influence of sun and wind. The victory was worth $2,775 and the winner was held at 5 to 1 in the wagering.

Knobbie has always shown a liking for the Aqueduct track and has had a number of races over it to his credit when he was a member of the Quincy Stable and later with the Rancocas outfit. He won the Carter Handicap over it at four in 1922 and was second to Little Celt the following year.

The other featured number of the afternoon card—the Olambala Handicap, at a mile and a sixteenth—was ruined by scratching, it being a two-horse race. F. M. Kelly's Feysun led W. J. Salmon's Vigil throughout the journey, winning in a drive by half a length in 1:46 2-5.

Old Knobbie, which had not carried colors since the meeting at Latonia last June, was generally considered as no account and even his connections didn't figure he could win. He opened at 4 to 1, went to 7 to 1 and was backed again to 5 to 1 at post time.

Knobbie Away Fast.

Barnes got Knobbie away fast. He opened a good lead on the others, saved ground and came home a winner by three lengths over the Mirasol Stable's Panic, which was closest to the pace, and held on well. F. C. Winfrey's Tester came again in the stretch after dropping back and was beaten only a head for the place.

Tester had up top weight of 125 pounds and was conceding 18 pounds to the winner and 15 to Panic. He was the 8-to-5 favorite. The fractional times were 0:23 2-5, 0:46 3-5, 1:12. This equals the best time for the stake, which was established in 1922 by the Rancocas Stable's Dominique.

Feysun, which was in receipt of six pounds from Vigil, the 1923 Preakness winner, was the faster away from the barrier in the Olambala and soon opened a lead of three lengths. He held command until the last sixteenth easily, where Maiben closed with a rush on Vigil. Breuning had to shake Feysun up sharply in the closing strides to hold off the rush. Both starters were held at 9 to 10 at post time.

Just half the field was scratched out of the Accelerator Purse, a dash of six and a half furlongs for three-year-olds and upward, the Oak Ridge Stable's gelding Mino going to the post the odds-on favorite, closing at 2 to 5. Sande had the mount and brought the bay son of Wrack and Lady Godiva home to his third consecutive victory. The four-year-old was much the best of the seven that paraded, was rushed into a long lead and finished four lengths in front of W. J. Salmon's Contract, which was always nearest the leader. The Log Cabin Stud's Resolution was third. The race was run in 1:19 2-5.

Two-Year-Olds Uneasy.

It took a lot of patience to get the fifteen maiden two-year-olds lined up in the opening race of five furlongs out of the chute, but after five minutes of maneuvring they were sent away to a good start. The winner was C. C. Winfrey's Black Jester colt, Tops Breslauer, making his racing debut.

LORD DERBY TAKES THE ASCOT STAKES

ASCOT, England, June 16 (AP).—Lord Derby's Mandelieu by Harry of Hereford—Sunny Florence, won the Ascot stakes with an added value of £2,000 here today, beating Sir George Bullough's Eastern Monarch by half a length. The third horse to finish was Lord Howard de Walden's Carbonaro, which was half a length behind Eastern Monarch. The race was run over the two-mile course.

Lieut. Col. C. W. Birkin's Jort led from the start until entering the straightaway when the distance told and Jort dropped back while Mandelieu, Eastern Monarch and Carbonaro forged ahead of the favorites. W. M. G. Singer's Plum and George Hardy's Dumas. Near the home stretch Mandelieu took the lead and held it to the end.

The betting was Mandelieu 8 to 1 against; Eastern Monarch 10 to 1 against, and Carbonaro 8 to 1 against.

Mrs. Arthur James' Kentish Knock won the gold vase race run after the Ascot Stakes. The gold vase is donated by the King and the race has a big money prize added. Kentish Knock was six lengths in front of Sir Abe Bailey's Son of Spring at the finish with Lord Rosebery's Crewe third a half a length behind Son of Spring.

Kentish Knock was well played at 9 to 4 against. Son of Spring was quoted 6 to 1 against, and Crewe 7 to 1 against.

The royal procession of seven carriages, with scarlet-coated postilions and outriders, from Windsor Castle to the course, was one of the most dashing features of the day's program.

HARVARD HORSEMEN TRAMPLE PRINCETON

ARMY STOPS NORWICH, 17-1

Special to The New York Times.

RYE, N. Y., June 16.—Princeton's polo team, twice winner and once runner-up for the intercollegiate championship in the three years of its existence, was humbled here today by a more accurate and finished Harvard four, 14 to 0.

The first clash of the Big Three teams came on the second day of the intercollegiate polo championship in progress on the grounds of the Westchester Biltmore Country Club and was witnessed by about 1,000 persons. By its victory Harvard earned the right to meet Yale in the semi-final on Thursday.

After Harvard shut out Princeton the West Point horsemen took the field against Norwich University and overwhelmed them, 17 to 1. Edwards's goal in the fourth chukker preventing the Army four from blanking the New England team. It was the second match of the tournament for the Army and places it in the final, where it will meet the winner of the Harvard-Yale match on Saturday.

A strong wind was blowing across the field when Harvard and Princeton rode out, but otherwise ideal weather conditions prevailed. For the first two chukkers it seemed to be an even fight, with the ball most of the time in Orange and Black territory. Stranahan first pierced the Princeton defense when he drove the ball across the goal line in the first period. White's goal in the second still did not give any indication of the immense Harvard strength and it was not until the third that the game began to look one-sided.

Princeton Mallets Are Inaccurate.

Princeton's riders seemed to be riding as well as Harvard's, but they lacked the accuracy yesterday to keep the ball when it came into their possession. Time and again the New Jersey players got away with the ball, but rode over it with a futile swing.

This was in contrast to the work of the Harvard players, who frequently performed the difficult task of starting the ball from under their own goal posts and, with well directed strokes, taking it the length of the field for a goal without once losing it. Stranahan particularly lifted the ball clear of the turf in great soaring drives. White, at the goal, then would whip the ball between the posts with a quick, precise stroke that was deadly.

The fourth chukker was Princeton's best and the young horsemen who are playing their first varsity polo put up a fight which held Harvard to a standstill. It was a fruitless effort, however, and the Crimson riders came back in the two concluding periods with eight goals, stifling any chance of a Garrison finish by the present holders of the championship.

West Pointers are trained for strife and their match with Norwich resulted in several casualties during the six periods. In the very first chukker, as the Army men forged easily down the field for their first tally, Getchell of Norwich was unseated and retired from the game. Later in the game Masuzan was hit in the stomach with a mallet and Butterfield shaken up so badly that both were replaced.

Norwich Fights to End.

Norwich gave the Army men battle aplenty and never stopped fighting even in the last chukker, when Captain Fisher rode out of a furious scrimmage along the boundary board with a shout to his men for one more goal before the gong.

Stephenson led the Military Academy attack and was just as efficient as in the first game of the tournament against V. M. I. Eight goals was his total today. In the third chukker he got the ball across the Norwich goal line after a long scrimmage and then took it down again for another West Point tally. On another occasion four sweeps of his mallet drove the ball from far down the field directly between Norwich's goal posts. Hale's shooting was hardly less effective and he scored six goals.

Princeton and Norwich will play a consolation game on Thursday, when Harvard meets Yale, and many are predicting that the game today will season the Princeton boys enough to enable them to defeat Norwich.

Post and Paddock

Sting will be back under colors, if all goes well, during the last of the Yonkers meeting or early at Saratoga. The injury he sustained in the Brooklyn Handicap on Monday does not appear serious after treatment, although it may take several days to determine its extent. At present it appears to be nothing more than a slight strain.

Although the track was in good condition, there were twenty-nine scratches out of seventy-eight entries—more than a third of the total being withdrawn.

J. H. Tevis claimed Panic out of the Rockaway from the Mirasol Stable. He was one of the three in the race bred by H. P. Whitney, the others being Tester and Hullabaloo.

John T. Kermath, the steeplechase trainer now in the employ of Walter J. Salmon, will sail or England and France on Saturday in search of cross-country material. He will be back in time for the latter part of the campaign at Saratoga Springs.

The fifth race was for jockeys who have not won two races. J. Tammaro scored with W. J. Both's Skirmish, the short-price favorite.

Conquers Moeskops and Freddie and Willie Spencer in Fifth of Mile Title Series.

Bobby Walthour Jr., the popular blond-haired Jersey youth, who stamped himself as one of the greatest six-day riders last Winter by winning three out of four six-day races, went into the lead for the professional sprint bicycle championship of America at the New York Velodrome last night before a crowd of 13,000. He defeated Pete Moeskops, the world's bicycle champion; Freddie Spencer of Plainfield, and Willie Spencer of Newark, former American champion, in the one-mile national championship race, the fifth of a series of twenty-four races to decide the title.

The standing of the riders in the race for the title now reads:

Walthour looked like a rank outsider a lap and a half from home in the final of the race. Moeskops was out in front, trailed by Fred Spencer, and Walthour was third. Spencer made a desperate effort to get around Moeskops but could not do it. He drew up alongside the giant Hollander, but not far enough to cut down in the lead. Spencer fought Moeskops for a lap, but in vain. Just then it looked as if Moeskops had the race won. Walthour came with a rush and by a great sprint raced around both Moeskops and Spencer, beating Moeskops to the tape by a length. Walthour rode the last eighth mile in 12 1-5 seconds.

Special to The New York Times.

LARCHMONT, N. Y., June 16.—One of the finest fleets of racing and power yachts seen in this harbor in many years gathered tonight, prior to taking part in the annual joint cruise of the Larchmont and Indian Harbor Yacht Clubs. There were at least seventy-five boats of all types moored inside the breakwater when the Robador III, flagship of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club, arrived from Greenwich at 6 o'clock and was saluted, after which Commodore Robert Law Jr., Fleet Captain Robert Monks and other Indian Harbor officers came ashore to pay their respects to Commodore James B. Ford, the veteran head of the Larchmont Club.

The harbor was a deep-sea blue under a northwest breeze as Robador came to anchor, and the white-hulled yachts made a brilliant picture. The yachts at anchor ranged all the way from large steamers down to the swift Victory class boats that always race so well.

Following the arrival of the yachts at the rendezvous, the Captains and their guests came ashore and were entertained at dinner by Commodore Ford. It was a very representative gathering and included a majority of the Long Island Sound racing skippers, with the Larchmont and Indian Harbor Clubs very strongly represented.

The First Race Starts Today.

The first race of the cruise will be started off Larchmont breakwater tomorrow morning and will be a run of forty-one nautical miles to Morris Cove, New Haven, for prizes offered by the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. The committee in charge will be Chairman E. G. Anderson, assisted by Fred M. Hoyt for Larchmont, and Frank Collady and W. E. Major for Indian Harbor.

The run on Thursday will be from New Haven breakwater to Sarah's Ledge bell buoy off New London for prizes offered by the Larchmont Yacht Club. The distance of this run is thirty-nine nautical miles.

On Friday the fleet will be anchored in New London Harbor and the yachtsmen will see the Yale-Harvard races prior to racing runs back to the home ports on Saturday and Sunday, reversing the course of the eastbound cruise.

The yachts in the harbor included Commodore Ford's flagship Varuna, Vice Commodore Johnson's Grey Dawn, Miramor, the property of Rear Commodore John F. Baudoine; former Commodore Wilson Marshall's Anastawas, E. N. Wheelock's Britomart, J. Ross Collins's Felicia; Flying Cloud, owned by E. G. Draper; M. R. Metcalfe's Sachem, J. F. Detmar's Florence, Harry L. Maxwell's Banashee and Ballmead, J. B. Dunbaugh's Shawara, H. S. Duell's Rowdy, T. J. S. Flint's Phantom, J. F. Mahlstedt's Mirage, W. D. Armstrong's Absegami and F. E. Raymond's Donaldo.

Also in the anchorage were H. W. Harper's Corinthia, George Ratsey's Zaida, John G. Derby's Solita, M. F. Kattenhorn's Surprise, W. L. Coursen's Vision, A. G. Southworth's Domino II, Sangamo, owned by W. L. Ogelsby; F. F. Pope's Marylin II, E. N. Statler's Miramar, C. D. Mallory's Mystic, Bonnie Dundee, owned by Commodore P. R. Mallory; F. C. Birch's Dolphin, T. C. Marceau's Sea Lure, Harold Tobey's Answer, F. C. Edson's Mariska, Dr. S. G. Milliken's Shawna, Holger Struchman's Nirvana and Edmund Eckhardt's Ramona.

INDIANA YOUTH OFF FORM

Grass Court Worries Him and Gilbert Has Little Trouble in Taking Three Straight Sets.

EASTBOURNE, England, June 16 (AP).—Great Britain and America each scored a victory in the singles matches this afternoon which opened the three-days' play between tennis teams representing the two countries.

Ray Casey of San Francisco crushed J. B. Wheatley, former British Davis Cup player, in the first match, 6—0, 6—1, 6—3, but Indiana's rising young star, John Hennessey of Indianapolis, was off his game and fell a victim to the steady, sound shots from the racquet of another former British Davis Cup competitor, J. B. Gilbert, 6—2, 6—3, 7—5.

Casey's cannonball service and the fast pace of his play greatly impressed the tennis critics who came down to this Channel resort to watch the young American pair make their bow, preliminary to entering the quest for greater laureis at Wimbledon next week.

Wheatley, who is among the leading players of England, was utterly helpless in confronting the hard driven balls that Casey laced over the net. He made a sorry showing time after time when Casey aced him on service, while even more frequently the young Californian planted puzzling placements far from the Briton's reach.

Casey Easily Triumphs.

Although the grass court upon which the matches were played today was a novelty in his tennis experience, Casey quickly accustomed himself to the pace and the pitch of the greensward. His only fault of any frequency was an inclination to overestimate the bound of the ball, but he could have afforded the luxury of many more faults and still have beaten Wheatley, who was no match for him.

After Casey's fine start, the showing of his companion, Hennessey, was a disappointment until near the very end of his match, when it was too late to avert defeat. It was then that he rose to his true game and temporarily drove his conqueror back with a string of five fast, one-sided games.

All during the first two sets and for the first five games of the third set Hennessy was hitting into the net, out of the court and everywhere except the proper place. The pace and range of the court, parched and fast beneath the sun that has been shining brightly every day for longer than a fortnight, seemed to elude Hennessey's every effort to grasp it until almost at the end. Gilbert meanwhile went along stroking with sureness, returning almost everything he could get his racquet on and waiting for the American to err.

When within one game of dropping the last set, 6—0, Hennessey suddenly seemed to become sure of himself and the court, and he out loose with a dazzling display of low, fast driving that rendered Gilbert helpless for a few minutes. The American, losing only five points in as many games, pulled the set up from 5 love to deuce, and the crowd gave him a generous cheer for his fine fight.

Gilbert Takes Last Two.

The next two games both went to deuce. They were hard fought, but Gilbert, the steadier of the two players, managed to win both of them and the match.

The point score of the Casey-Wheatley match follows:

	FIRST SET.
Casey	4	3	7	4	4	4—31—6
Wheatley	1	6	5	2	0	2—16—0
	SECOND SET.

MRS. FALK CONQUERS MISS KUHN AT TENNIS

Will Meet Mrs. Lewis in Round Before Semi-Final in Met. Clay Court Play.

Mrs. Helene Pollak Falk, runner-up in the invitation tournament at the Englewood Field Club, gained another sweeping victory in the women's metropolitan clay court championship yesterday on the courts of the University Heights Tennis Club. In the second round she defeated Miss Hermione Kuhn at 6—1, 6—1. Mrs. Falk had far more pace on the ball than Miss Kuhn could handle. Her ground stokes carried the full length of the court, and occasionally she came forward to the net to bring off a volley or overhead shot with finality. Miss Kuhn tried hard to make a match of it, but she could not cope with so hard a hitter as was Mrs. Falk.

The field was advanced to the round before the semi-final. Mrs. Falk's next opponent will be Mrs. W. W. Lewis. Mrs. Lewis advanced yesterday at the expense of Mrs. A. M. Duncan at 7—5, 8—6. This match was one of the best of the day. Mrs. Lewis, who lives in Jackson Heights, was forced to play at top speed every minute of the match, so strenuously did Mrs. Duncan fight for the points. Several times Mrs. Duncan was close to victory in both sets. She failed to come through at critical stages when the points counted most, and after more than an hour's play finally submitted.

Miss Peggy Loughnane, who surprised by putting out Mrs. William H. Pritchard on the opening day, gained another commendable victory yesterday, defeating Mrs. Frederick Schmitz, at 7—5, 6—2. Mrs. Schmitz knew what to expect from her younger opponent and put everything she had into her stroke from the start.

The two players were evenly matched for the first set and the rallies were marked by hard hitting and surprising recoveries. The loss of the set after she had carried it to deuce seemed to rob Mrs. Schmitz of her confidence and keenness in the second chapter and Miss Laughnane, playing at the same pace and making few errors, brought the match to a conclusion quickly, performing in beautiful fashion at the net.

Mrs. Frederick M. Letson met with stiff opposition for a part of her match with Mrs. C. S. Koukol. After rushing through the first set without dropping a game, Mrs. Letson slowed up in the second. Mrs. Koukol was considerably the fresher of the two and the situation was completely reversed. While Mrs. Letson was making error after error Mrs. Koukol worked for position with good generalship and took advantage of every opening. Mrs. Letson got only two games.

After the rest period Mrs. Letson returned to the court prepared to put her best tennis again. Mrs. Koukol extended her in a number of long driving rallies, but could not keep the ball in play as long as her opponent. Several times she carried the score to deuce, only to falter when she was on the verge of taking the game. The score was 6—0, 2—6, 6—1.

Miss Caroma Winn won without extending herself against Miss Grace Moran at 6—3, 6—2.

The summaries:

Second Round—Miss Caroma Winn defeated Miss Grace Moran, 6—3, 6—2; Mrs. Helene Pollak Falk defeated Miss Hermine Kuhn, 6—1, 6—1; Mrs. W. W. Lewis defeated Mrs. Arthur M. Duncan, 7—5, 8—6; Mrs. Frederick M. Letson defeated Mrs. C. S. Koukol, 6—0, 2—6, 6—1; Miss Peggy Loughnane defeated Mrs. Frederick Schmitz, 7—5, 6—2.

MET. GOLFERS START TITLE QUEST TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

DEAL, N. J., June 16.—Jess Sweetser, former national amateur golf champion, will return to the links in tournament play tomorrow, when the Metropolitan Golf Association holds its annual tourney over the Hollywood Club's course near here. Sweetser, of course, is favored to win the title, although the field of more than ninety includes such stars as Eddie Driggs and Willie Reekie of Upper Montclair, the defending champion.

It was thought that Sweetser would be unable to compete because of business, but pleasure again has come in for the first call and office work will have to wait while the star golfer goes out in quest of another title. Although experts generally agree that Jess will rule supreme, they also admit that prognostications in golf count for very little and that ere the event closes it may not be Sweetser who will wear the crown.

Reekie, who was defeated in the New Jersey State championship recently, has suffered in prestige to a marked extent, but since that setback he has been working hard and there are many who feel that he will not be far behind when the final reckoning is made.

Driggs, who recently gained the Long Island championship, also is looked no as a strong contender by the critics. For four years he tried hard to win that crown and now that it has come into his possession it seems that his star is in its ascendancy and that another title may come his way in the near future—perhaps the Metropolitan prize.

Another who has his eye on the crown is Gardiner White of Nassau. He won this tourney in 1921 and although his showing in the recent Garden City invitation event was not all that it could have, been, he has started on the upgrade again and has served notice that he is more in earnest than ever so far as the present tourney is concerned. At any rate, he is not going to let any opportunities slip.

The tourney will open tomorrow with a 36-hole qualifying round, which will determine the thirty-two championship qualifiers who will start match play on Thursday.

CLUB PRESENTS PURSE TO MACFARLANE

Special to The New York Times.

TUCKAHOE, N. Y., June 16.—Willie Macfarlane won the national open golf championship for the second time at the Oak Ridge Golf Club last night. He was the guest of honor and hero combined a dinner celebrating his victory over Bobby Jones at Worcester and for four solid hours he heard his praises sung by the four hundred or more enthusiastic members of the club, who turned out to a man for the occasion.

As a testimonial, partly at least, of the satisfaction his victory brought to the members and of the esteem in which he is appraised by them he was presented with a check for $5,000, which might easily as not have been double or treble the amount had not the club decided upon a pro rata plan as the most equitable one. He was also presented with a solid gold watch and chain and in order to avoid any possible charge of partiality the club likewise presented Mrs. Macfarlane with a solid gold wrist watch.

At the same time announcement was made that the Fellowcraft Club at Tuckahoe had presented the new open champion with an English traveling bag and the Marble Chapter, No. 704, had given him a solid gold fountain pen. He was also presented with an almost life-sized portrait of himself, the donor being John David.

WRIGHT OF CANADA BEATS WASHBURN

Is Cut by Falling Into Linesman's Chair but Returns to Court and Triumphs.

RANKING STARS ADVANCE

Tilden Puts Out Kynaston and Richards Conquers Crocker to Gain Met. Semi-Finals.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Jack Wright of Montreal defeated Watson Washburn yesterday. That is quite an achievement in itself, but Wright did more than that. The young Canadian Davis Cup player showed that he puts sportsmanship before victory. Standing within a single stroke of victory over Washburn in the second set of their match in the metropolitan clay court championship at the New York Tennis Club, Wright deliberately double faulted, a courteous and sportsmanlike gesture acknowledging his appreciation of Washburn's throwing a point to him just before.

This double fault of Wright's, which was roundly applauded by the gallery, came near putting the Canadian out of the tournament and also out of tennis for some time. In the third set, after Washburn had finally won the second, Wright catapulted himself across the court in a vain effort to get to one of Washburn's slanting volleys and landed heavily on his face against the chair of one of the linesmen. He laid on the ground for a moment and was groggy as he got to his feet, with his left arm bleeding from two cuts just below the elbow. He waved aside the officials and Washburn, who ran to his aid, and resumed play at once.

Wright Returns to the Fray.

It looked at this time as though he would not be able to stand up under the strain of the battle, which was by far the most exhausting and nerve-racking that has been staged in the tournament. But Wright is a fighter to the last inch and in the face of a 5—3 lead held by Washburn he gathered his waning strength and took four games in a row for the set and match at 6—4, 7—9, 7—5. The two players received a warm reception from the spectators as they came in, both for their splendid play and their fine sportsmanship.

One would have thought that Wright had had enough tennis to satisfy him for the day, but an hour later he came out and played Ralph De Mott, defeating him at 6—2, 6—4, after De Mott had led at 4—2 in the second set. This latter victory put the Canadian in the round before the semi-finals, where this afternoon at 4 o'clock he will meet S. Onda, the Japanese player. One other match will be played this afternoon in singles. At 5 o'clock Manuel Alonso will face A. H. Chapin Jr., of Springfield, Mass.

William Tilden and Vincent Richards both attained their semi-final round bracket. Tilden eliminated Parcy L. Kynaston of Rockville Center, L. I., at 6—4, 6—4, and Richards put out Willard Crocker of Canada at 6—3, 7—5. The champion will meet the winner of the match between Wright and Onda, while Richards will face the survivor of the Alonso-Chapin engagement. The semi-finals will be played tomorrow and should Alonso come through to the final the title round will be played on Friday, as he is sailing on Saturday for Havana, Cuba. In the event that he is defeated the final will be staged on Sunday. Because of the exhibitions for the Cathedral Fund being held at the West Side Club on Saturday there will be no play in the singles on Saturday.

Kynaston Plays Well.

Both Kynaston and Crocker gave a fine account of themselves against the two ranking players of the country. Kynaston's cleverness in finding openings after opening in Tilden's court and his remarkable gets and volleys delighted the crowd. Tilden remarked that he thought that Alonso "reached strange places" until he came up against the Rockville Center player. In the second set Kynaston brought off two marvelous shots from the net during a pull up from 2—4 to 4-all, and his deftness in taking Tilden's speeding drives out of the air and dropping them just over the net with block volleys was a source of delight to the spectators throughout the match.

Crocker could not let Wright take all the honors, and his performance against Richards in the second set was of the same fine character as was his teammate's against Washburn. After he had taken the first two games of the opening set Richards took off his sweater and got down to business, with the result that Crocker made little headway for the remainder of the set.

The summaries:

Third Round—Jack Wright defeated Washburn, 6—4, 7—9, 7—5.
Fourth Round—Percy L. Kynaston defeated Masanosuke Fukuda, 6—2, 6—1; Willard Crocker defeated Walter Toussaint, 6—1, 6—4; A. H. Chapin Jr. defeated Fred Powers, 6—4, 6—2; S. Onda defeated C. E. Jones, 6—0, 6—2.
Fifth Round—William T. Tilden 2d defeated Kynaston, 6—4, 6—4; Vincent Richards defeated Crocker, 6—3, 7—5.

"Larry" Snyder, Ohio State track star, added to his long list of honors at commencement today when he received the Western Conference scholarship medal for combined excellence in the classroom and on the athletic field. COAST CREW'S TEST SHOWS MUCH POWER

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 16.—Riding white caps and some of the roughest water that the Hudson has kicked up during the past two weeks, Washington, the Pacific Coast entry in the Intercollegiate Regatta, fought its way over the four-mile course this noon in 21 minutes and 38 seconds. It was less a time test than a test of stamina, and the Washington eight proved that it had the power and endurance to navigate the course under very poor conditions.

As a result, the other coaches are wondering what Rusty Callow's oarsmen are capable of doing under more favorable conditions, and those who have money to place on the varsity race are trying to get their bets down quickly before the odds go up.

George Pocock, boat builder, stated that he saw daylight underneath the shell when it had gone only a little distance from the starting point. The boat was forced to take to shore water before it reached the bridge and the time is generally discounted for that reason. However, Callow was satisfied and as soon as conditions permit, he plans to hold another test for time.

Cornell, which also had hoped to cover the course, was forced to head in shore, after the boat had covered about three miles. Coop Lueder is convinced that it is unnecessary for him to bring his navy to the Hudson at such an early date. Last week the crews had good rowing every day on Lake Cayuga, but since reaching here have been held down to three good workouts by the unfavorable weather conditions.

Penn Crews Work Out.

Jim Rice put his Penn varsity, junior varsity and freshman combinations on the water early this morning and sent them over about four miles at a moderate pace, keeping inshore all the way. The boats were back at the boat house in time to let the seven men of the crew who are graduating Wednesday catch a noon train to New York. These men will be gone until Thursday afternoon, and the remainder of the men will be given a rest until they return to complete the boats.

There seems to be no doubt but that Doyle's eight will represent the Red and Blue in the varsity race next Monday. Ilmirger's eight is past its prime and Rice has not the time to push them further.

The Penn freshman boat is one of the prettiest crews on the river. The men were working into form, perhaps too quickly, and the shove they will be given should bring them to the day of the race in fine condition.

Wisconsin did little more than paddle when they worked out over the course. Dad Vail is still working on his boat rigging, but he anticipates no changes in the varsity or freshman eight. The water was too rough to permit any bursts of speed, but did provide an excellent test of the boat's oarsmanship.

To Stage Time Test.

When the Hudson flows calm again, Dad intends to send his eight out against time again to see if it can clip a minute or so from the mark it made the other day. "The boys have speed and power, but it is a question whether they can keep up the pace for four miles," said the veteran coach. "And I mean it this year. We won't be last but we will be far from first unless some accident happens," he continued.

Bill Haines still is herding his Columbia oarsmen upon the northern reaches of the course and his secrecy leads many to think he has really developed an eight that will upset all the dope. The junior varsity and freshmen are working under Assistant Coach Waschek and they are showing no great ability to pull together, although the weight and strength is in the boats.

The Syracuse crews will enter the races just as they are rowing now, according to Jim Ten Eyck. Several members of his camp were away over the week-end, but they returned this morning and went back into the boat. Three subs reached camp Monday, but these are of the yearling squad and will be left alone to practice in the work boats.

The Navy swung down the river both at noon and evening, but after their strenuous efforts yesterday were not called upon to show any speed.

Leader Sends Varsity Out Under Cover of Fast-Falling Darkness for Final Test.

TIME CLOSE TO 20 MINUTES

Best Harvard Crew in Five Years Promises to Provide Keen Race on Friday.

By RICHARDS VIDMER.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 17.—Coach Ed Leader of the Yale crew succeeded in stealing a march on the Harvard camp tonight. Under the cover of fast falling night the Yale launch Bonia crept away from the boathouse at Gale's Ferry and barely outlined against the darkening waters of the Thames, sped down stream with the Blue varsity shell in tow. That meant nothing but a time trial, a last test against the watch for the undefeated eight from New Haven before it clashes with its Crimson rival on Friday.

None of the Harvard coaching staff was prepared to hold a stop-watch on the boat from the rival camp, and Coach Leader did not announce the time of his varsity shell, but unofficial figures showed it to be close to twenty minutes.

The only real showing of the day came at twilight, as the high winds of the morning kept the stroke low and prevented much work for the Blue oarsmen, who were the last to take the water. Harvard's boats were on the river earlier and escaped trouble, but the Yale freshmen shell was capsized and had to be towed in and baled out.

Launch Sent to Stand By.

The freshmen were sent down the river in a time trial over the two-mile course, but soon after they got under way Coach Leader became worried and sent a launch to stand by in case of trouble. The yearlings managed to complete their course, covering the distance in 10:17, with the boat not higher than 26 over the last half mile, but just after the last oarsman had been taken aboard the launch for the homeward journey the shell filled with water.

The waiters' race will be rowed at 5 o'clock tomorrow, starting the regatta informally, while on Thursday the combination eights will meet. Harvard's waiter crew has been selected and the Crimson is confident of victory. But Yale's eight will depend on who reaches the boathouse first. That will be the real race for the Blue.

It is evident that the closest race to be rowed on Friday will be in the varsity event. Yale's freshman eight appears much stronger than Harvard's yearling combination and the Crimson junior varsity, stroked by Eli Canning, gives every indication of leading the Blue boat over the finish line by a good margin.

The varsities, however, are expected to furnish a struggle all the way and although Yale is favored to win, it will have to row from start to finish. There is smoothness in the Crimson shell that makes for power. Perfect rhythm and timing are the hopes of Harvard, and for almost three months the eight oarsmen who will propel the craft in this struggle have been drilled incessantly in getting the blades in the water, bringing them through the water and lifting them out again as a machine.

The Make-Up of Harvard's Crew.

In Bob Winthrop the Harvard varsity has a fine stroke, one with plenty of nerve. Behind him in the No. 7 seat is Leavitt, who is rowing his second year in the varsity shell and who is a much improved oarsman. Hubbard, a bespectacled, serious-minded giant, is in the seat at No. 6 and is a steady sweep swinger who gives the impression that he can row as easily and as far at a beat of 30 or 40 as he can at 32. Johnson, at No. 5, is acknowledged the most finished oarsman in the boat. These four make up the stern half, but there is just as much fight in the bow of the boat, where Darlington, Platt, Ladd and Kelly man the oars. Heard, a little, red-headed driver who sits in the coxswain's seat, makes up the crew that is called the best that has cruised out of Cambridge in five long and unprofitable years.

The Yale boat will have three oarsmen besides Cox Stoddard, who carried the United States to victory in the Olympics last year. Al Lindley, who stroked that great Blue eight, looks longingly from the pier or the coach's launch as the varsity rows off for its daily practice, having been declared ineligible for scholastic deficiency. Tim Laughlin is a youngster who is almost if not quite as great as his predecessor in the stern seat. Spock at No. 7, Kingsbury at No. 6 and Captain Wilson at No. 3 are all veterans of last year's undefeated varsity, while Warren, Hudson, Prudhomme and Peterson complete the Blue combination.

Betting Favors Yale, 7 to 5.

Yale's oarsmen undoubtedly have respect for this year's Crimson eight, while the Harvard sweep swingers have hope, but tradition has dimmed the general public's belief that a Leader-coached crew can be beaten by any eight and the betting continues to favor the Blue at odds of 7 to 5.

All arrangements have been completed for the regatta itself. The freshman race will start at 9:45 Eastern Standard Time, on Friday morning, and will be followed immediately by the junior varsity event. Both races will be rowed down stream and over the upper two miles of the course, which will put the finish line at the navy yard.

The varsity crews will get away from the starting mark by the draw bridge at 5 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time, rowing up stream over the four-mile course which ends opposite Gates Ferry.

The officials for the races are F. V. Chappell, Yale Chairman of the committee in charge; A. W. Putnam, Columbia, referee; Morton Bogue, Columbia, assistant referee; Levering Tyson and F. W. Packinthal, both of Columbia, judges, and E. W. Hunter, revenue officer in charge.

FENN'S 74 TAKES PRIZE.

Special to The New York Times.

ARDSLEY-ON-THE-HUDSON, June 16.—H. B. Fenn won the low gross prize with a 74 this afternoon in the second one-day tournament of the year of the Metropolitan Advertisers' Golf Association over the course of the Ardsley Country Club. A large field of 108 players took part. The low gross for the morning round was a 75, made by J. M. McDonald. Ray Claybergen had a low net of 67, going around in 87 and having a handicap of 20.

C. L. Lock was the first flight winner, with J. M. McDonald runner-up. D. M. Stewart had the low score in the second flight, with the consolation prize going to C. F. Sweeny. Mr. Fenn, who is President of the association, was the third flight winner, with V. H. Williams the runner-up.

A REAL DEBATE.

Most joint political debates are futile affairs. There is in them little give and take of argument. The disputants simply deliver the speeches which they have prepared in advance, and pass each other at high speed on parallel tracks without meeting. Very different will be the discussion soon to take place between Governor SMITH and former Governor MILLER on the subject of the proposed $100,000,000 bond issue for permanent improvements in the State of New York. Both men are able and sincere, both are clear reasoners and effective speakers. Moreover, the issue between them is limited and definite. They will have to speak to the point, and answer each other as best they are able. From their debate is certain to issue real public instruction which will be reflected, or should be, in the vote on the referendum next November.

In the June Bulletin of the Chase National Bank the whole question of public borrowing, with special reference to the New York proposals, is discussed in a judicial spirit by the bank's economist, Dr. BENJAMIN M. ANDERSON. He weighs the advantages and disadvantages of the two plans—a bond issue on the one hand, and payment out of current income on the other—and comes to the conclusion that, on the whole, the method advocated by Governor SMITH should be adopted. But he thinks that its financial features should be seriously modified. In effect, he would combine temporary borrowing with the pay-as-you-go system. He would do this by stipulating that the State bonds should be amortized at a much earlier date—at the end of eighteen or twenty years instead of forty-eight. This would require larger annual payments out of taxes almost equivalent to appropriations year by year for the improvements contemplated, while leaving the Governor and the Legislature in command of an assured capital fund with which to proceed in constructive work with the utmost attainable efficiency and economy.

These and other aspects of the question will doubtless enter into the debate between the two Governors when they actually come to grips. Their audience will not merely fill the hall where they speak, but will virtually comprise all the people of the State. It promises to be an occasion of keen interest and great public value. For once we shall have a real debate.

ARMS TRAFFIC AT GENEVA.

Signatures were attached yesterday at Geneva to the convention for the regulation of international traffic in arms, with only one nation out of forty-four participants bolting. Persia sees her sovereign rights infringed by the inclusion of the Persian Gulf within the zone barred to the importation of munitions. The nature of that zone, confined virtually to mid-Africa and nearer Asia, indicates that the restrictions imposed by the Geneva Conference run less toward the safeguarding of international peace than to the maintenance of order in the backward regions of the earth. In general it is revolution rather than war that has been handicapped. The right to sell arms to Governments has not been impaired except to the extent that provisions for publicity on the export of arms may supply a moral check. The spirit of the conference was exemplified in the last-minute arrangement by which the sale of hunting rifles—which might easily become insurrectionary rifles—to sport clubs was banned, with the provision that such organizations might be equipped only through their own Governments.

In an agreement comprising so many technical and geographical "categories" one concrete provision stands out by contrast; and that, oddly enough, should prove its chief worth outside of the field of traffic in arms. When the proposal to ban the trade in the instruments of chemical warfare was first brought up, Great Britain, among others, objected on the ground that this was tantamount to recognizing the legality of poison gas in itself. The conference discarded this fine-spun theory. By outlawing the trade in war chemicals it has rather added to the weight of world opinion against the new methods. Denounced in the Versailles Treaty, banned in the Washington arms treaty, poison gas still has its advocates. But it was a notable forward step when the German representatives at the Geneva Conference came out strongly for the suppression of gases and poisons either for trade or for use in home wars.

For the purpose of bringing the convention into force the Geneva Conference has sensibly discarded the original proposal which called for ratification by seven designated States and seven other signatories, of whom one must be from Latin America. The opportunities for delay are reduced by recognizing the established practice that the convention shall become valid for every nation that gives it formal adhesion. At Washington it does not seem likely that the present agreement will encounter the objections which led to our rejection of the Saint-Germain agreement. It was Secretary HUGHES'S contention that the convention of Saint-Germain was inextricably bound up with the League of Nations, and that, in the second place, it discriminated in favor of signatory nations as against non-signers. The present agreement has taken care to keep its skirts clear of contact with the unspeakable League. That achieved, it is probable that no other serious vices will be discovered in it.

THE MAYOR'S DILEMMA.

A little while ago Mayor HYLAN gleefully described himself as running on the main track with all signals set clear. That engineer's figure of speech can no longer be used by him. His subway plans are faced by a whole series of red lights. If he does not put on the brakes, he will be ditched. He is experiencing the proverbial fate of the man who finds fault with everybody else, but who is much more bitterly found fault with himself when he sets out to do something constructive. He undertook to show how the city could build subways and run them at a profit on a five-cent fare. But his own Board of Transportation was forced to admit that the new subways could be made self-supporting, as they were required to be by the law, only with an eight-cent fare. Thereupon recourse was had to the assessment of cost upon property abutting the new subways. Mayor HYLAN had promised new lines of transit to Queens and Brooklyn, but when the home builders in those boroughs found that the Mayor's plan involved an assessment upon property benefited to the tune of $138,000,000 they flew into a rage, and their representatives on the Board of Estimate compelled the Mayor to agree to a reconsideration of the whole project.

His trouble has been that he has shut his eyes to the facts and figures furnished by Chairman DELANEY of the Board of Transportation. "Its report was perfectly lucid and explicit. It set forth the capital investment at the beginning of the operation of the new subways as $542,000,000. But it showed that the five-cent fare would take care, at the end of the fourth year, of an investment of only $243,000,000. An eight-cent fare would meet the additional charges on the total sum required; but if the Mayor would not consent to that, the sole alternative was to tax the city directly in the sum of $187,000,000 and to assess property owners for the rest—that is, $138,000,000.

Faced by this cruel dilemma, Mayor HYLAN grasps at delay. Let the whole plan of financing subways be put off, he proposes, till the Autumn. But this is to tie the Board of Transportation hand and foot. Financing is of the very essence of its plan. New routes may be approved, but contracts to build them cannot be let, as Controller CRAIG pointed out yesterday, until it is shown where the money is to come from. It is a requirement of the State Constitution that when a contract is authorized by the Board of Estimate "the city must have an unencumbered balance in debt-incurring power or cash in treasury at least equal to the estimated amount of the contract authorized." And Chairman DELANEY did not blink the fact that if all the debt-incurring power of the city were used to provide transit facilities other public improvements would have to be suspended, so that "the accumulated deficiency in schools, sewers, highways and other improvements that are financed by long-term bonds will be so distressing in 1928 as to equal the present transit situation."

Postponement is only to dodge the difficulty, or make a bad matter worse. The Mayor must make his choice, and make it soon. If he comes out squarely to admit the necessity of an eight-cent, or possibly a ten-cent, fare on his new subways, he can begin to build them. But if he does not, he cannot.

RAILWAYS AND MOTOR VEHICLES.

The distinction made in the dictionaries between the automobile and the locomotive, that the former does not travel on a fixed track, accounts for the railroad companies turning to motor vehicles in order to earn dividends. The railway has to acquire a right of way, lay down rails and keep up its property, for which it is heavily taxed. It must buy new rolling stock and repair the old. It has an army of employes. But the motor vehicle can run on any good highway in any direction, and it is not as yet heavily taxed for maintenance. The cost of operating the motor vehicle is comparatively low. On short hauls the railroad cannot compete with the motor truck in the freight-carrying business. The long hauls are another story.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford, like many another company, has read the handwriting on the wall. It is to acquire motor buses and trucks to meet competition. "Passenger service on some lines can no longer," it admits, "be operated with steam locomotives except at a heavy loss." And the same thing might have been said of its short haul freight service. Go almost where you will in New England today and the jitney and motor vehicle will be found doing a profitable business on highways paralleling the railroads. The railroad companies have had to cut down their passenger service on all branches. In some cases they have abandoned many miles of track. Even main line traffic has suffered from the competition of the motor vehicles. ROY D. CHAPIN, Vice President of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce, made this significant comparison recently:

> If we estimate the average annual mileage of an automobile as 5,000, which from the scattered records on the subject is conservative, we find that the annual passenger miles of motor travel (in the United States) is 168,750,000,000. When we compare this with the passenger mileage on Class I railroads in 1923, totaling 37,957,009,111, it appears that we have before us a very considerable field for transportation study.

Mr. CHAPIN, writing in 1924, stated that more than 150 railroads were using "motor units on their short lines." Some were being operated over their own tracks, but more and more the motor truck is being run on highways as a "feeder and complement to rail transportation." In 1923 no less than 134 electric railways (including trolley lines) were operating motor bus lines. Passenger receipts of both railroads and trolleys have declined for the reason that so many pleasure cars now take their owners and families on both long and short trips. "When railroad, traction and motor lines are correlated properly," W. J. SHOWALTER has said, "each will add to the strength of the other and the public will be vastly the gainer." In the process there must be adjustment of the taxation burden, the railroad company paying less and the motor vehicle more for using the highways.

FISH VS. SEWAGE.

Planting shad in the Hudson and other rivers has much to commend it. The more done to restock waters with fish, the better. The shad, in particular, is such a favorite that the country will welcome all efforts to increase the supply. But planting shad in the Hudson is not unlike planting crops in exhausted or contaminated soil. The returns are better than if nothing had been done, but the way to obtain as large yields as of old is to remove those elements in the soil which prevent growth. In the case of the Hudson, although it is undoubtedly true that by planting increasingly large quantities of shad each year the yield may be increased, there can be no well-founded hope of restoring the old-time supply of fish until something is done to prevent the contamination of the water. It is little more than a generation since shad could be had for the asking almost anywhere along the upper reaches of the Hudson. But in the intervening years the quantity of refuse dumped into the river from towns and villages has steadily increased. The supply of shad in the Hudson has declined in direct ratio to the increase of contamination of the stream.

The shad is a salt-water fish, generally traveling long distances, which enters fresh water only for purposes of spawning. For years it was one of the principal fish crops of Atlantic Coast rivers and bays, being taken in great numbers in the waters draining into the Chesapeake and in the Hudson and Connecticut rivers. The European shad has the same habits, and is taken in the Rhine, the Elbe and French and English rivers during the Spring spawning season. It is very prolific, and before the extensive contamination of the waters was abundant in both continents. In France as well as here the Government hatcheries have helped distribute the young fish, and so have been able in part to counteract the destructiveness of foul waters. It is an uneven fight, however, for the pollution has steadily gained.

Americans have never been large fish eaters. This may in part explain their indifference to the preservation of the fish supply. In recent years there has been some response to such campaigns as those of Secretary Hoover in behalf of eliminating conditions unfavorable to fish. Associations of sportsmen have sought to arouse public opinion against fouling inland streams. After a long fight a Federal law has been enacted to check the dumping of oil refuse from steamers within the three-mile limit. But to prevent the corruption of the waters of a big river like the Hudson requires interference with the drainage systems of many towns and villages and of numerous factories. The mere cost of remodeling these systems would probably be staggering. Sooner or later, however, the question will narrow itself down to—Fish or foul waters?

MR. KRUTTSCHNITT AND OUR RAILWAY HISTORY.

The late JULIUS KRUTTSCHNITT has occasionally been described as a railroad man of the old school. He was hardly that, unless the term "old school" is presumed to cover all prewar achievement. That he was distinctly up-to-date in his grasp of present-day railway problems, in his executive capacity for meeting them and in his imaginative insight into the possibilities of railway development, was proved plainly enough by the fact that E. H. HARRIMAN selected him as his right-hand man and personal adviser on operating and construction problems when the Southern and Union Pacific lines were conducted as a joint enterprise after 1901. When HARRIMAN'S career was terminated by his death in 1909 and the two railroads were separated, KRUTTSCHNITT was recognized as the logical successor to the Southern Pacific Presidency.

Probably the "old school" of railway men would more appropriately include the transportation executives of the period when familiarity with financial problems of a company was deemed so much more important than close touch with operating problems that the typical railway President was better known in Wall Street than "down the line." Mr. HARRIMAN, whose vigorous personality engaged in every field of railway administration, from the mechanical to the financial, really marked the breaking away from those old ideas; but the sequel was not a race of railway super-men who, like HARRIMAN, could master everything in the way of transportation problems, but a trend toward placing the two branches of activity in different hands.

Mr. KRUTTSCHNITT himself was from first to last a railway operator and builder. No one in his profession was more intimately versed in such physical problems as economy in transportation methods, the routing of freight, the relation of rates to volume of traffic, the productive value of a given branch line or extension. Under his management mistakes in such fields were rare, and the history of the property entrusted to him was one of hardly interrupted prosperity. That he, like all railway men who had risen from subordinate positions on the line to the highest office, should sometimes have grown restless and impatient over the experiment of rate-making by a Washington commission was inevitable. But it showed the quality of the man that he accepted what he saw to be inevitable, indulged in little or no public complaint about it, and turned all his energies to such physical development and economy as would enable his railroad to produce the best results under the new conditions.

BACCALAUREAN MULDOON.

Before a gathering of the alumni of his Hygienic Institute, WILLIAM MULDOON delivered a baccalaureate sermon that ranks with the best of the season. President BUTLER and Chancellor BROWN will have to look to their laurels. President MULDOON did not tell his graduates that the future rests upon their shoulders, that the fate of civilization depends upon their solving questions which have confessedly stumped him. His graduates are not young—not young enough, that is, for the method of evasion by compliment. They are bankers who have committed the fallacy of the undistributed middle. They are cadaverous artists who have exhaled their lungs in cigarette smoke. They are business men so recreant to current morals as to interpret one-half of 1 per cent. as meaning 16 to 1, and that one themselves. They are old enough, in brief, to know that civilization does pretty much what it has a mind to, that reformation begins with one's self—and continues there with the utmost difficulty.

To live long, said President MULDOON, is to have obeyed the laws of GOD. He may be held to know. Though his back is erect as ever, his shoulders as square and his mustache as bristling with defiance, he has lately become an octogenarian. His youth was devoted to the Sisyphean task of boosting JOHN L. SULLIVAN upon the water wagon. In later years he has tracked the debilitating cigarette behind his barn and snatched it from quivering lips. He has led the alcoholic and the adipose upon interminable hikes, and no hip flask or hollow walking stick has escaped his vigilance. Thousands of those who set out from their first alma mater to tell the universe where it got on and off he has restored to command of themselves, with less tender but no less kind ministrations. It is an achievement truly memorable. Why he has not killed his cures nobody can guess—least of all, perhaps, himself. It can only be said that he has the mysterious instinct, the genius, to know precisely the hair line that divides death from rejuvenation. Rough as he may seem to be, he is reverent of the human machine and its Maker. "Life," he said, "is a fight in which the rules were made by God."

He did not quite ignore youth. Who can? He counseled patience. "We've had our day. Let 'em have their fling." If old folk deserve respect, sooner or later they will get it. But presently the old mustache bristled. Patience failing, "the best thing" is to take that youth by the neck and shake him like a rat and tell him to obey. "The grandest thing in the world is obedience!" All parents will subscribe to both clauses, wishing only for the physical prowess and the moral majesty of MULDOON.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Plausible But Not Convincing.

President WILLIAM CAMPBELL of the University of California and Director of the Lick Observatory, over in England as President of the International Astronomical Union, has been discussing in The Morning Post the always interesting problem of the habitability of the sun's other planets. He takes a safe, sound and sane position by saying that even if the conditions on those planets are such as to make life, as we know it, impossible on them, it yet may be that they are inhabited by beings wholly different from those known to us.

This is much the same as saying that a universal negative cannot be either proved or disproved.

Dr. CAMPBELL found a useful analogy in support of his theory in the existence here of creatures so unlike in their requirements as fishes breathing water and animals breathing air. When he gets before the other scientists, however, probably he will not present that difference seriously. For, of course, he knows that there is no essential difference between the breathing of fishes and animals, the one needing oxygen as much as the other. So his analogy really counts for nothing at all, except as suggesting that considerable variations in conditions are not incompatible with life as we know it.

That there may be on other planets life as we do not know it cannot be denied, but that does not come very close to demonstrating the possibility of life on Neptune, Uranus, Venus, or even Mars. The late PERCIVAL LOWELL convinced himself that on the planet last named there were living beings who, whatever might be their shapes, had intelligences closely similar to ours, as they made great systems of irrigation canals. He convinced very few of his brother astronomers, however, and although they never questioned his professional abilities as an observer and mathematician, they had little or no patience with his Martians or their canals.

English Is Circling the World.

A German professor in a Berlin language school, over here on a visit, is quoted as making the rather remarkable admission—for a German—that there is no need to invent for general or universal use a new language, since English already has taken that position.

Almost beyond question he is right when he says that already the person who speaks only English can get along fairly well in any part of the world, as everywhere he will find those who can understand him and who can make themselves understood by him. Once it was French that had, or more or less closely approached, that position, but English almost everywhere has superseded it as the second language of everybody who has a second language.

And English, though it has faults—especially its atrociously bad spelling—is well fitted—and better fitted than any other—for the universal service because of its composite construction and vocabulary. Having both a Latin and a Teutonic half, the people of many nations can find in it a large number of familiar words. That is a great help in learning a new language.

Also English, though it has an enormous vocabulary, and is hospitable to words from any language that can show a fair right to admission, has attained, without losing delicacy of expression, a simplicity of grammatical construction lacking in practically every other. The languages that conjugate their verbs and decline their nouns elaborately are forever doomed to narrowly restricted usage. They haven't a chance in the world to become universal or second languages.

English, too, has a literature that rewards the learner of it at least as much as any other and far more than any except three or four others now "living." Its spread over the world does not need the acceleration of campaigns or propaganda. Its recognized merits are taking care that the process of diffusion shall be rapid. There are some reasons for regretting this, but more for rejoicing over it, and the ultimate disappearance of all except one language is so far off that nobody now alive need worry about it.

They've Lost Claims to Reverence.

A dispatch from Berlin announces the discovery or isolation of two new "elements," one to be named masurium and the other rhenium. Once that would have made not a little excitement among the scientific folk, but now they take it quite calmly, and only assign the newcomers to the places already allotted to them in the Mendeleyeff list. That, with a little talk about the three still empty spaces in that list, is about all.

The fact is that "elements" nowadays are not very interesting. The assumption so long held that they were each essentially different, one from another, has come to be held hardly less amusing than the classic division of the world's components into four "elements"—earth, air, fire and water. At present it is known that the several so-called elements differ only in the number of identical electrons that are whirling around identical nuclei, and nobody who is "up" in the latest knowledge of the atom would be surprised to hear any day that any one of the "elements" had been "transmuted" into any other.

Some such transmutations already can be effected, or allowed to effect themselves, and there is no known reason why they may not occur all through the list. So the "element" now is regarded, not as something immutable and indestructible, but as merely a phase or tropism of a single foundation substance—which is not a substance at all, in the old sense, but the primordial vortex of energy.

Only there, if anywhere, is the indestructible reached and the elements have lost all of their old dignity. So nobody loves or respects them any more.

At Last He Had His Accident.

How strange a fate is it for a man to work for forty-four years in a powder mill, for much of that time doing the most dangerous of the many dangerous tasks such work involves, and then, after retirement to peace and safety in a country home, to break his neck by falling out of a cherry tree!

That is what happened to WILLIAM MCILVAINE over in Paulsboro, N. J., and if he were not dead perhaps he would now be applying hastily for his old job as first powder line foreman with his long-time employers, the DU PONTS.

Of course, he shouldn't have been climbing cherry trees at the age of 70, but probably he was in less, rather than more, peril there than a boy would be, because he would not take so many chances on small boughs.

THE PRESBYTERY MEETING.

The Rev. Mr. Palmer Comments on the Subjects Discussed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Will you kindly allow me to call attention to the report of the meeting of the New York Presbytery? In the report of yesterday I was mentioned by name and described as a rigid Fundamentalist and a member of the Faculty of the Biblical Seminary. My exception to this is that I am not a Fundamentalist, and as a member of the New York Presbytery I speak as an individual and in no sense represent my colleagues on the Faculty of the Biblical Seminary. The largest liberty is allowed in this congenial group, and one of the principles of this seminary is that individuals think for themselves and that students must be taught to do their own thinking.

On the other hand, if standing for convictions with sincerity defines Fundamentalism, then your paper may add rigid or rock-ribbed or any other adamantine adjective and I shall welcome the classification.

The New York Presbytery was doing two things yesterday when the disturbance occurred: it was receiving official communications from the General Assembly and also hearing reports by its sixteen Commissioners. The communications were decisions rendered by the Judicial Commission and adopted by an overwhelming majority of the Assembly. The commission included in its membership doctors of divinity, Judges (some of them of the Supreme Court), lawyers and laymen. These men heard the cases and rendered their decisions.

The assembly, after hearing the decisions, had the option of adopting the findings without discussion or as a court to hear the cases. The first of these alternatives was accepted. It is to be remembered, however, that the respondents in all cases had every opportunity to produce evidence or introduce points of law.

The respondents in the case, instead of having the matter out in the supreme court of the Church, returned to their minor court, which is now under the condemnation of having erred in licensing men who could not affirm their belief in the Virgin birth of Jesus; and one of the Commissioners called the decision hardly Christian, and another reported that the atmosphere of the assembly had been poisoned by a circular published by a member of the New York Presbytery. The point under was that these reports did not make for the peace of the Church.

The Presbyterian Church is one of many organizations for the spread of the Gospel and the culture of Christian character. It is a constitutional church, and it has been conspicuous in its protection of vigorous and heroic Christians. According to its constitution, a system of doctrine held to be contained in the Scriptures is set forth in its confession and catechisms. The ministers of this Church, as Christian leaders, are required to accept these doctrines. The decision of the General Assembly states definitely that a candidate for licensure who cannot affirm his belief in these doctrines automatically cuts himself off from answering the constitutional questions.

For a preacher of the Gospel the faith is primary. That is the Presbyterian position. This does not minimize, but rather constrains to service. In these days of little faith, why contend for her faith? Does any sane person suppose that the supreme judicatory of the Presbyterian Church could put itself on record as saying to the world that it does not matter whether Jesus Christ, the Son of God, was born of a virgin or not, or that it does not matter whether its ministers believe this or are in doubt about it? To do that would be for the supreme court of the Church to contradict its own standards. Such a decision would be patently unconstitutional.

There is much that can be said in the name of liberty, and it is much more genial in life to be tolerant. Humanly, I have the greatest sympathy with the advocates of these modes. There are, however, convictions which undergird liberty, and tolerance is most tolerant when it has the iron of sincerity in it. I can conceive of Jesus tolerating doubt, but I know of no instance showing that He built upon uncertainty or commissioned doubters. I advocate peace, but I mean by that a peace which yokes truth and righteousness together.

THE MOTHER AT ARMS.

I nursed him through the perilous infant years,
Through childish ailments of all shapes and kinds;
Waked when he tossed in fever—watched his pulse,
Now, all these pitfalls passed, behold—a man!
I draw a long, deep breath.
But Nature smiles
In pitiless irony; I hear her say:
"So far, O Mother, you have guarded him;
But think not to escape mine ancient power;
Soon will he know a fever of the soul
No anodyne of thine canst calm or cool;
Love waits for him a little down the road—
The Road of Life."
And I say bitterly:
"I can protect him even from that pang;
For I will teach him what I learned of Love—
How it is but the mask of Selfishness—
A trap of iron, covered deep with flowers;
I'll teach him all the signs of lurking Love,
So he may be accoutred for the fray;
Show him my wounds—the scars upon my breast—
And tell him:
"O my Son! I lost the fight;
But you are strong and brave; heed what I say,
And you are free to win Life's richest prize,
Unhandicapped by clogs upon your arms—
A wife and children who will drag you down
When you aspire to rise, and ask for dross
When your enraptured soul would seek the stars!"
Thus do I fling my woman's gauntlet down
To the dark Fates who spin, and weave, and cut
The Thread of Life . . . and they make no reply;
But Nature smiles in pitiless irony.

FLORENCE VAN CLEVE.

THE OTHER SIDE.

A College Professor Explains the Tennessee Point of View.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your issue of June 4 contains the annual address of President Nicholas Murray Butler at the commencement of Columbia University. In it he made a "sharp dig at Tennessee," attacking the Governor and the Legislature for the recent anti-evolution enactment in this State. Dr. Butler's words as published by you are as follows, namely: "The Legislature and the Governor of Tennessee have, with every appearance of equanimity just now joined in violently affronting the popular intelligence and have made it impossible for a scholar to be a teacher in that State without becoming at the same time a law-breaker."

This slashing style of criticism seems to be characteristic of the President of Columbia University. If my memory serves me right, it is not so long ago since he indulged in a similar onslaught against the Volstead act and prohibition legislation, which are the crowning glory of the United States. That there is misapprehension in regard to what has taken place in Tennessee is evident. It is for the purpose of clearing this up and stating what has actually taken place and the viewpoint of the lawmakers of this State that I crave space in your valuable paper.

1. Greatly as it may surprise Dr. Butler, there are teachers still in Tennessee whose "intelligence is not violently affronted" and who do not at the same time feel compelled to be "law-breakers." Some of these are graduates from Columbia University. As to whether they are "scholars" or not he ought to know.

2. There is nothing in the legislation recently passed in Tennessee that interferes in the slightest degree with the most thorough scientific investigation, be it in evolution or in anything else. Research work is encouraged in Tennessee as freely as in any part of the world.

3. It is only from schools that are supported either in whole or in part by this State that the teaching of evolution is excluded. The preamble to the act passed by the Tennessee Legislature which became effective March 21 is as follows: "It is an act prohibiting the teaching of the evolution theory in all universities, normal and all other public schools supported in whole or in part by public school funds of the State."

4. The reason is manifest. I am a Baptist minister and believe in the distinctive teachings of my denomination. So long as I do this properly, with due regard to the interest of others, I have the fullest liberty to propagate these views and no one has a right to interfere with me. And what is true of Baptists is equally true of other denominations. But, very properly, I would not be allowed to teach my own distinctive religious views in a State-supported school. Others are taxed to maintain these schools and they and their children have equal claims with myself. They should not have forced upon them teachings that they do not believe. That would be religious tyranny. The principle is perfectly clear. When people are forced to pay taxes and send their children to schools, these schools must be non-sectarian.

5. Now what about evolution? There is more sectarianism in science than in religion. Some of the most eminent scientists in the world reject the theory of evolution. It is needless here to mention the oft-repeated list of names. Take one. There lies on my study table this morning a new book fresh from the press. It is entitled "A Scientific Man and His Bible," by Howard A. Kelly, M. D., LL. D., of Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore. As everybody knows, Dr. Kelly is a surgeon and scientist of international reputation. He has been recognized and honored by leading scientific societies all over the civilized world. He has a right to speak, yet he entirely repudiates the evolutionary theory. "I would lose my mind, I think," he says, "if I tried to believe the latter fatalistic hypothesis" (page 68). And again, "The Bible in its opening paragraphs presents man to us as created by God directly and separately from the whole animal kingdom and as made in God's own image and reflecting his character" (page 65). This last teaching Dr. Kelly unqualifiedly accepts. And he is but one among many.

6. Nor is this all. The new psychology based on evolution leads directly to materialism. This is no idle statement. If your readers will turn to a book published by Professor Lueba of Bryn Mawr College, Pennsylvania, entitled "The Belief in God and Immortality" (1916), they will find tabulations that show the alarming amount of atheism and materialism that exists in some of our great American institutions of learning. This book is all the more forceful because Professor Lueba seems to be in full sympathy with this false teaching. Take two examples. One is from Columbia University itself, of which Dr. Butler is President. Dr. Irwin Edman of Columbia University is credited with teaching that "immortality is a sheer illusion," and that "there is practically no evidence of the existence of God." The other example is from Professor Watson of Johns Hopkins University of Baltimore, who is said to teach his students that "freedom of the will has been knocked into a cocked hat," and such things as the soul and "consciousness" are mere mistakes of the old psychology. (See The Century Magazine, New York, for February, 1923, page 638.)

7. We are now in a position to understand the viewpoint of the much-abused Legislature and Governor of Tennessee. It is this: Should the God-fearing and Bible-loving people of this State be taxed by law and compelled to maintain schools and be forced by law also to send their children to schools where Christianity is attacked and faith in the Bible undermined and destroyed? Should sectarianism in religion be kept out of State-supported schools and should sectarianism in science be crammed down the throats of our children to the destruction of their faith in that which is dearer to their parents than life itself? This would be an act of tyranny worthy of the Dark Ages. For lesser oppression the fathers of this nation fought the War of the Revolution. Yet this is what has happened in some of these schools in our State. True science is always welcome, but there are intelligent people who reject evolution as a true science. It should be remembered also that science, as well as other things, has made its full share of mistakes. It once taught that the earth is flat and that the heavenly bodies revolve around it. The Church foolishly followed this guidance, to its great confusion and sorrow. Let not past mistakes be repeated. All truth is one and has had God for its author. Science has its own proper sphere, but when it steps out of this and attempts to destroy religion it makes a mistake. The textbooks in science that profess to give "assured results" in evolution, like other textbooks before them, will soon be relegated to the second-hand discard, and new textbooks will take their place. But truth is eternal. Unproved speculations and guesswork should have no place in our schools, and the claims of the taxpayers have a right to be respected. To fair-minded people the position of the lawmakers in Tennessee is readily understood and reasonable.

SEES CHANCE TO BUY 3 LEGATION HOUSES

Mrs. H. J. Coolidge, Returning on Olympic, Advocates Their Purchase by This Country.

WANTS THE PEOPLE TO ACT

Says Quarters Are Available in Brussels, Holland and Stockholm —Exchange Favors Us.

Mrs. Harold J. Coolidge of Boston, who returned yesterday on the White Star liner Olympic from an extended tour through Europe, said there was an opportunity now for the Government at Washington to purchase the buildings in which the United States diplomatic representatives were housed in three of the foreign capitals. The only way to accomplish this was to bring the matter to the attention of the public, she said.

In a statement given to the reporters on the Olympic coming up from Quarantine to the pier last night Mrs. Coolidge said:

"On my way home after a visit to Brussels, The Hague and Stockholm, there is a question of real importance I am sure my fellow-citizens do not realize. Unlike those of other nations, our legations in those countries are housed according to the extent of the private pocket of our envoys. This seems to me undemocratic, and I am sure it is only lack of imagination of the situation by the great mass of American citizens which permits this to go on. It discriminates very unfairly on those valuable servants connected with our State Department in its foreign service who are not wealthy.

"In Paris, by the brilliant stroke of Ambassador Herrick taking advantage of exchange at its very peak last year, we have just bought at last a suitable embassy. In Brussels just at this moment an equally great opportunity exists, which will be lost by next October, to get a charming house exactly right for this purpose. Ambassador Phillips, in whom we all have the utmost confidence, is most anxious to have this done for the future. With exchange now in our favor it is a chance which will not occur again. In Holland we have the same situation, and Richard Tobin feels it keenly. There is an old house, not a large but most dignified and reasonable in price, in a perfect situation, which is at this moment possible to acquire. In this time, when we are attempting to stabilize our foreign service by promotion and not by political appointment, it is not an extravagance but an economy in the end to avail ourselves of the unsettled conditions in Europe. It is for the advantage and the prestige, as well as the future and lasting benefit to our representatives, not to hamper them financially. We will have to buy legations later, so why not now?

"In Prague a fine house has just been purchased by our Government, owing to the public spirit of the owner, who refused a much higher price from another Government who wanted the property for the same purpose. In Stockholm the identical thing exists. The legation is in charge of Robert W. Bliss. It is in a most suitable house—they are scarce in that city—with rooms for offices in a wing. Owing to financial reverses of the owners at this moment, it could be obtained. It is not too large a dwelling, built of wood, with grounds around it, a most excellent investment from every point of view. I speak from personal knowledge and cannot say how strongly I feel on this subject. Will not our people raise their voice for this most reasonable requirement and speak to their representatives in Washington so our envoys, who are giving such splendid service in foreign lands, away from their own country, will not be handicapped, or think that we thoughtlessly have not considered their needs and the future?"

SAYS COOLIDGE MADE A HIT.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Major Stanley Washburn of Wilton, N. D., called on President Coolidge today and discussed with him the conditions of the farmers of the Northwest, the prospects of improvement through present crops, and the trend of politics. He urged that something be done to lower freight rates which, if brought about, he said, would greatly aid the financial recovery of the farmer.

"The President took a stand of the greatest interest to the Northwest and West when he refused to lower the sugar tariff," Mr. Washburn said. "The sugar beet industry is a growing proposition out where I come from. This industry is a direct result of the diversified crop talk we have heard for so many years. The youngster is going to be a great help to the farmer.

"The Scandinavian people 'got' Coolidge the moment he landed. They can understand him, for he seems to be one of them. There is, in my opinion, a direct relation between the rock-bound shores of the Scandinavian countries and the Vermont country from which the President comes. Coolidge's people and the Scandinavian peoples have had the same problems all down through the years.

"The President made a great hit by taking part in the anniversary of a famous date in Norse history. He made a bigger one by going to the centre of Scandinavian population in the United States.

SEES FLEXIBLE TARIFF SAFE.

Coolidge Does Not Believe There Is Any Demand for Repeal.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—President Coolidge does not believe that there is any widespread demand for repeal of the flexible clause in the present tariff law which permits the President to change the tariff rates, not in excess of 50 per cent. of the present schedule.

There has been a report that there was dissatisfaction as the result of the President's action on the sugar schedule. The Administration has not heard of any real opposition to this action, and the President is of the opinion that the next Congress will not disturb the flexible clause.

The Tariff Commission has sent a report to the President on the proposal to increase the custom duty on cotton velvets. He has not acted upon it yet, and is not expected to do so before he leaves on his vacation next week.

LOST BABY IS FOUND.

Children Wheeled It Around, but It Is Restored to Its Parents.

On Monday night Mrs. Herbert Graham, 1,110 Madison Street, Brooklyn, wheeled her nine months' old son to the corner grocery and left the baby carriage and baby outside while she went in to make her purchases. When she came out the baby and carriage were gone.

She ran home to wait for her husband, who did not return until late, and then it seemed too late to make any effort to look for the child.

In the meantime Herbert Jr. was on his adventurous way. It is said the baby carriage rolled down a hill. Some children found it at the foot of the hill with the baby unharmed. They wheeled the carriage around until they tired of their play and then deserted it somewhere in the neighborhood of 500 Evergreen Avenue.

Mrs. Frances Weliczka, 1,185 Putnam Avenue, found the child and carriage early yesterday morning. She wheeled it to the Ralph Avenue police station and from there it was taken to the Cumberland Hospital, where they identified both the baby and its perambulator.

ATTACKS DEFENSE DAY PLAN

Mayor of Middletown, N. Y., Urges Citizens to Disregard It.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., June 16.—Mayor Abram B. Macardell, in a statement today, attacked the sincerity of the Government in "making over" July 4 as National Defense Day.

Mayor Macardell urged all citizens to disregard the new significance of the day and to celebrate it in repose, pleasure and recreation. The Mayor's statement followed the request of the Army Corps Area Commander that the City Executive appoint a committee to arrange a Defense Day program. The Mayor said he had arranged for a day of recreation, "peace time military decrees notwithstanding."

"I trust that every free-born American citizen will celebrate the day in the same spirit," he said.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—The hoisting of the Union Jack over Waterloo Bridge today announced the completion of a ticklish engineering job. For some months the bridge, which is well known to Americans as the route across the Thames between Waterloo Station and the Strand hotels, had been under repair because the pier had sunk. It was necessary to erect a steel structure along the side while the old bridge was reconstructed. Both shore ends were upset for some weeks, and again today when the great central span, 280 feet long and weighing 600 tons, was moved to its permanent position.

The span was assembled at the old bridge, ninety feet away. Two girders were erected at either end of the gap, forming a runway along which the central span would move. Miniature railroads were placed on the girders and the span was mounted on two steel trucks at each end. Elaborate calculations were necessary to estimate the strain which the central span would impose on its supports, and the work was made most delicate through the effect of the unusual heat on the expanding steel girders. Final preparations began at noon yesterday and at midnight all was ready for the great experiment.

The actual moving of the bridge began at 4 A. M. While a flag fluttered a few seconds three men at one end and four at the other put their strength on the winch. The great mass of girders slowly began to move. Seven men started it, but as it gathered way and actually moved two inches, a red flag fluttered and other gangs of men applied screw brakes attached to trolleys and brought it to a halt. The engineers were not sure their gear would stand the strain and feared, above all, that the great mass of steel might take charge and dash down into the river. As things worked out satisfactorily they increased the run of the span to four inches and then six, but six was the utmost considered safe.

"It is on account of the river," explained Sir John Hunter, who was directing the work. "If the river screw piles were not necessary we would not could travel faster. The river position is very delicate and we have to be very careful."

The work went steadily on from early morning and crowds gathered along the embankments and reported each inch the span moved. As the span completed half the journey the anxiety of the engineers became tenser. The load was beginning to get upon the supports of the new bridge and the soundness of weeks of long calculation was to be put to the test in the next few minutes. The span was shifted once more, rapid observations were taken and the engineers breathed a sigh of relief. The supports had given, but only to the extent of a quarter of an inch, and it was possible to go along with much more confidence. But as the span began to approach its destination each of its movements grew shorter again.

The central span now is right over its final bed, but a little above it, the engineers explained. It will be lowered tomorrow upon circular supports that are waiting. By the grace of an ingenious arrangement of iron work and jacks it will drop six inches at a time, and when at last it rests upon the pillars only comparatively simple finishing work on the new Waterloo Bridge will remain to be done.

C. R. DAS IS DEAD; A LEADER IN INDIA

DARJILING, India, June 16 (AP).—C. R. Das, leader of the Home Rule Party and former President of the Indian National Congress, is dead. He was elected Mayor of Calcutta in April, 1924.

LONDON, June 16 (AP).—C. R. Das had been for the last decade the strongest leader in India against British domination. However, it was not until the World War that his agitations reached the point of open hostility toward the British ruling power. During the war, although he was an avowed pacifist and non-cooperator, Das issued calls for volunteers to join him in an effort to oust the British from the more isolated parts of India, but this failed apparently because of lack of funds.

He was arrested by the British in December, 1921, charged with issuing an appeal for volunteers against the Government regulations. He was sentenced in February, 1922, to serve six months' imprisonment, but was allowed his freedom after four months.

Upon his release he disagreed with Mahatma Gandhi and other non-cooperatist leaders, and their movement suffered from division within its ranks. However, Das managed to be elected President of the National Congress, the body representing the Indian Nationalists. With their support he was elected Mayor of Calcutta last year, and since then had more or less relinquished leadership of the non-cooperative movement until recently when, because of Gandhi's retirement, he again came to the front in the Swarajist movement.

Before he abandoned his profession to devote himself entirely to the Swarajist, or home rule, cause, Chit Ranjan Das was a Calcutta attorney with a reputed income of $15,000 a month. A dispatch from Calcutta last January stated that he had given his entire fortune of $300,000 to the establishment of a college for the religious instruction of women, that his beautiful home would become a Hindu temple, while he and his family would live in a cottage on $60 a month.

PASTOR REPROVED MILDLY.

Special to The New York Times.

PAULSBORO, N. J., June 16.—Laxity in keeping unity in his church was the mild criticism contained in the majority report of a special commission appointed to investigate charges against Dr. Henry Merle Mellon, venerable pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, Atlantic City, at a meeting of the West Jersey Presbytery here today.

Although the commission dismissed all other charges brought against him by a faction in his fashionable shore church, exception was taken to even mild criticism in a report by the minority of the commission presented by Rev. Russell Paynter of Collingwood. A faction of Dr. Mellon's church, where he has been pastor twenty-eight years, charged that he exerted too much influence in favor of one set of candidates for lay offices in the church.

Dr. Raymond H. Gage of Wenonah, who said he represented Dr. Mellon, announced that he would take an appeal from the special commission report to the Synod, convening at Asbury Park in October. Efforts will be made then to have any criticisms of Dr. Mellon stricken from the record.

DIES WHERE HE SAVED MAN.

At almost the very spot where on Monday he risked his life to save a fellow bather from sinking, William King, 28 years old, of 228 Hunters Point Avenue, Long Island City, a decorated war veteran, was drowned yesterday afternoon while swimming in the East River.

After he had finished his work as a painter for the Department of Plant and Structures King went with a party of friends to swim at the foot of Potter Avenue. The friends tired early, but King, a strong swimmer, said he would remain and his companions had just started away when King was caught with cramps. He shouted, but went down before aid reached him. The body was not recovered.

The rescue he rescued on Monday was Henry Clavin of 77 East Third Street, Long Island City. King served overseas during the World War, was wounded and gassed and was cited for bravery.

366,494 TOLL CALLS A DAY.

New York's Use of Long Distance Has Doubled in 5 Years.

New Yorkers make an average of 366,494 out-of-town telephone calls every day, many of them to such cities as Los Angeles, San Francisco, New Orleans, Tampa and Havana, the New York Telephone Company announced yesterday. The number of calls in the last five years has doubled.

Statistics for the last month show that 76 per cent. of the calls made between New York and Chicago under the new "two number" system were put through in less than five minutes, the company said.

Beginning July 1 the system will be extended to Norwalk, Bridgeport, New Haven and Trenton and will be available not only to persons in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx, but also to people in Jersey City, Hoboken and Bayonne. Plans are also being made to bring Detroit, Cleveland and St. Louis within the same class of service.

ARTHUR C. BENSON DIES IN HIS SIXTY-THIRD YEAR

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—Arthur Christopher Benson, poet, biographer, essayist and Master of Magdalene College, Cambridge, died here tonight.

The author of "The Upton Letters" was a son of the late Edward White Benson, Archbishop of Canterbury. His two brothers also gained distinction in literature. E. F. Benson wrote "Dodo" and a score of other popular novels of delicacy and charm; the late Mgr. Hugh Benson, who entered the Catholic Church after reading for orders in the Anglican; was the author of "Sentimentalists" and "Winnowing."

For many years A. C. Benson was a master at Eton, of which he wrote a remarkable history. He was born sixty-three years ago, and received his education at Eton and Cambridge, gaining high honors in scholarship. For more than thirty years he was an exceptionally prolific writer, producing as many as four volumes in a single year. He wrote essays, biographies and poems, in many cases publishing anonymously, on the ground that thereby a book received a juster valuation from the public. "The Upton Letters," which cheered and solaced thousands, was thus issued.

King Edward chose Mr. Benson to edit, with Lord Esher, the "Correspondence of Queen Victoria." Other titles in the long list of Mr. Benson's books are "Beside Still Waters," "The Leaves of the Tree," "From a College Window," lives of Rossetti, Edward FitzGerald and Walter Pater in the English men of Letters, and "Life of Archbishop Benson." Mr. Benson never married.

CITY DECIDES TO TAKE HART'S ISLAND 'CONEY'

The Board of Aldermen unanimously passed an ordinance yesterday authorizing and directing Controller Charles L. Craig to purchase the entire Riley plot by condemnation proceedings in behalf of the city.

This action followed the return of a report by the Finance Committee last week, stating that it was highly desirable for the city to take over the property, which is adjacent to the juvenile reformatory on Hart's Island and separated from it only by a hedge fence. Prison authorities feared escape of inmates over the fence and by use of the fleet of sixty motorboats which were to take pleasure seekers to and from the resort.

When the property was appraised in 1922, at the time its purchase was first advocated, the value was placed at $20,000. Riley is said to have declared recently that he had refused an offer of $160,000. For the last year building operations have been conducted on the site; bath houses, bungalows and a pavilion have been erected in converting the property into a pleasure resort.

Much amusement and some indignation was caused when Alderman Bruce Falconer, Republican, Manhattan, introduced a resolution calling upon William Wirt Mills, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, for complete information concerning the naming of municipal ferryboats for John H. McCooey and other politicians and men of influence and for the motives prompting such practices. The resolution was laid on the table by a strictly Tammany vote, despite Alderman Falconer's protest.

STABBED AT CONEY, POLICEMAN MAY DIE

4 GIVE BLOOD TO SAVE HIM

Patrolman Lloyd Curry of Motorcycle Squad 2, Brooklyn, was probably fatally stabbed last night while visiting Ravenhall's Baths, Coney Island, with a fellow officer. He was taken to the Coney Island Hospital where he was not expected to live the night out despite blood transfusions from four policemen of the Coney Island Station.

Four hours after th eattack Salvatore Avitable, 20 years old, of 2,507 Surf Avenue, Coney Island, brother of the manager of the baths and employed there as a ticket taekr, was surrendered of the police by his counsel. After Curry in an interval of consciousness had identified Avitable as his assailant the latter was locked up on a charge of felonious assault, which the police said would be changed to homicide if Curry died.

On the advice of his counsel, Daniel Griffin, former Sheriff of Brooklyn, Avitable refused to discuss the case. Curry, in moments of consciousness, said that the prisoner had stabbed him when he rebuked Avitable for tripping up a woman passing to a dressing room.

Curry, whose home is at 315 Crescent Street, Astoria, finished his tour of duty at 4 P. M. With Motorcycle Patrolman Thomas Brady of 17 101st Street, Corona, he drove in his automobile to Coney Island to cool off in the water. They picked out Ravenhall's at the foot of West Nineteenth Street. They got bathhouses near each other and donned bathing suits. According to William Avitable, the manager, they did not remain long in the water, and about 6 o'clock started back to dress.

As they passed the cashier's booth they saw James Boland, 2,800 Ocean Parkway, the cashier, eating a piece of pie. Boland, who was questioned by detectives, said that, seemingly without cause, they engaged in an argument with him and ended by taking the pie with them toward their bathhouses.

Brady went into his dressing room, Curry said at the hospital, while he waited a moment. As the woman passed him, according to his story, Avitable jostled her and tripped her with his foot. Curry said he walked over to the ticket taker and asked him the reason for his act. An argument followed, he said, and as he turned to go toward his bathhouse Avitable stabbed him and ran.

He shouted as he fell, and Boland, the cashier, and Brady hurried to him. They found him unconscious with wounds near his heart and on the left arm. Boland and Brady both said that they had neither witnessed the attack nor seen any one running from the policeman.

The wounded officer was taken to the office and a call sent out for an ambulance.

As soon as the wounded man reached the Coney Island Hospital the doctors recognized the seriousness of his injuries and told the police that transfusions would be necessary. The four policemen, whose names were not learned, volunteered.

Captain of Detectives John Archiapoli took charge of the investigation. When he first questioned Curry the patrolman was reluctant to talk, but he told his version of the attack after Avitable had faced him.

Curry's wife was notified that her husband had met with an accident on his motorcycle. When she arrived at the hospital and learned of the danger of death she became hysterical. The couple have two children. Curry is 28 years old.

ASTORIA ODD-JOB MAN FOUND DEAD IN SHACK

With a 71-year-old sister, whose existence had not previously been known, sitting by his side dressed in potato sacks, Willie Gallagher, 72-year-old odd-job man and neighborhood character of Astoria, was found dead in bed yesterday in his shack on Nassau Avenue.

Two women neighbors made the discovery when they went to investigate the absence of Willie from the streets. They were Mrs. Elizabeth King of 125 Nassau Avenue and Mrs. Mary Farberitzi of 121 Nassau Avenue.

As they pushed open the door of the shack they were surprised to hear a woman's voice. Going inside, they found the woman sitting by the bed. She told them that she had lived with her brother in the shack for three years or more and that he had not allowed her to leave it during that time.

Her brother had died several days previously, she said, and explained her failure to notify any one by saying that she had been afraid to leave the house in her ragged garments. She was in poor health and was taken to St. John's Hospital. The body of Gallagher was removed to Quinn's Morgue.

With the discovery of the death the police of the Astoria station started a search of the premises for money and property deeds of an unknown value which were believed to have been hidden there by Gallagher. He had never discouraged these rumors, but always had smiled when answering questions concerning them.

From the Founder's Writings

One who heard Melba, the great singer, said

Truly, she seemed like a well of music bubbling over in rivers of melodies.

Friends who heard some of the speeches of John B. Gough, Bishop Matthew Simpson, Phillips Brooks and Edward Everett have said that they were not only eloquent, but that they were eloquence itself.

There are those who have been kind enough to say that the labors of over half a century in our store-making have put us on the road to perfection; but we know that we still have a good deal of human incompleteness to overcome to arrive at the goal we have set for ourselves to reach.

SAVINGS OF $150 TO $180 ON THESE
Small Grand Pianos
FAMOUS FOR 75 YEARS—WERE $845 AND $875
now $695

For a limited number of instruments whose case designs are being slightly changed.

Ever since 1849, when the first Emerson pianoforte was built around the now famous Emerson scale, its name has been a synonym for tonal beauty.

It has been carried in the music salons of the Wanamaker stores since their early days and represents to many the ideal piano for the home.

Rarely is the established price of so fine a piano lowered. It is only through the maker's special co-operation that we are privileged now to offer this limited number of Emerson grands at these unprecedented savings. The new Emersons now being manufactured are slightly changed in appearance but musically identical with the instruments offered here.

Two beautiful models, the Colonial, and William and Mary, each four feet eleven inches long. Best to make early selection, as there were only fifty Emerson Grands in the original offer!

FOR HER GRADUATION
A String of Rana Pearls

When fashion, taste and tradition are so completely at one, as they are in designating pearls for graduation, one should not ignore them. The diploma itself is scarcely more essential to the occasion. And for all the gay events that accompany it, pearls are again distinctly de rigueur.

La Perle Rana
A WANAMAKER EXCLUSIVITY

The beauty of Rana pearls is, that like the real, their loveliness is not for one or a few occasions, but for a lifetime. For back of the mysterious secret of their exquisite shimmering tints, so marvelous in their resemblance to those of the Oriental pearl, is the dependable fact that Rana pearls are guaranteed indestructible. They are made in Paris exclusively for John Wanamaker, and set and strung in every desired fashion. And the prices are moderate indeed for anything of such intrinsic worth.

Chokers, $10 to $65. Double and triple strands, graduated, $20 to $200. Single strands, graduated, $20 to $150. Uniform, $25 to $200. Also Rana pearl earrings, bracelets and rings in many smart and lovely styles.

NOT GUILTY VERDICT IN JERSEY RUM CASE

PRIEST AGAIN A WITNESS

Father Bennett Repeats Story of Visit to Dock When Liquor Was Landed.

EXPLAINS CHURCH PRAYER

State Fails to Prove Conspiracy to Break Volstead Act—First Trial a Disagreement.

All the men indicted in connection with the Weehawken rum scandal were acquitted last night by a jury before Judge Egan in Jersey City after the jury had been out a little over seven hours. The ten police officers and patrolmen of the Weehawken Police Department, their families, counsel and friends burst into cheers when Louis Jensen, foreman of the jury, announced:

Besides the ten defendants freed tonight there were two others who were acquitted earlier in the day by direction of Judge Egan with the consent of the prosecutor.

The two men who were freed after Prosecutor George T. Vickers had admitted he had no evidence against them were Police Lieutenant Philip McNulty and Patrolman John Fischer. The remaining ten defendants were William Griffin of Jersey City, alleged to have been the leader of a gang of bootleggers; Harry J. Stearns, Police Commissioner of Weehawken; Captain Charles McNamee of the Hudson Boulevard Police and the following Weehawken policemen: Lieutenant Charles Kelling and Patrolmen Fred Volkmer, Joseph Daly, John McMahon, Joseph Hennessey, Edward Lewis and Louis Grunewald.

It was the second trial of the twelve men. At the first trial, last oNvember, the jury failed to agree on a verdict. The State sought to prove that the accused entered into a conspiracy to violate the State prohibition laws on Aug. 27, 1924, when a boatload of liquor was landed on a dock at Weehawken with the connivance of the police.

Summarizing the defense of the ten defendants, Attorney George E. Cutley contended that the charges were the result of a "frame-up engineered by politics," while the State held there was no question but that the defendants had taken part in smuggling operations. A feature of the prosecution's evidence was the testimony of the Rev. George F. Bennett, pastor of St. Lawrence's Roman Catholic Church of Weehawken, who asked his congregation last Sunday to pray for the acquittal of the defendants.

Priest Questioned About Prayer.

Father Bennett told substantially the same story he related at the former trial. He told again of his visit to the dock at the foot of Baldwin Avenue, Weehawken, early on the morning of Sept. 4. He testified that Charles D. Kirk and John Dorsey had come to him at his rectory and told him that a boat loaded with whisky had been moored at the foot of the street and that he had dressed and joined the two men at the dock. He said he saw several motor trucks being loaded with cases taken from the boat. He used his flashlight and saw several men, but could not recognize any of them. Then he said a man who was introduced as a "Mr. Griffin" offered him a roll of bills and bottles of liquor, which he refused. Later, he said, he went back to his rectory.

Asked by the Prosecutor about his prayer last to Sunday, Father Bennett said:

"It is the custom of the Catholic Church that when any one is in trouble the prayers of the people are made in a petition to help them in their trouble."

"For deliverance?" asked Mr. Vickers.

"I wouldn't say for entire deliverance," said the priest. "For alleviation."

"In accordance with Divine omniscience?"

"No, in accordance with Divine will."

"By that you mean a plea for mercy?"

"May I answer that question in my own way?" asked the priest, and continued:

"Let me illustrate. A father has given a command to his boy. That command was broken. When the father came home the boy was punished, sent to bed or spanked, or both. The mother would make a plea to get the boy out of bed and give him his supper."

"So your plea for mercy is that of the mother?" asked Mr. Vickers.

Father Bennett took exception to the question and it remained unanswered. On cross-examination Mr. Cutley asked:

"You would not and did not intend to give it as your opinion that the defendants were guilty?"

"Certainly not," replied the witness.

Defense Uses Three Witnesses.

The State rested at the conclusion of Father Bennett's testimony and the defense put on three witnesses, all defendants, Stearns, Kelling and Griffin.

Kelling admitted that he was on desk duty in the Weehawken Police Station one night in August when Dorsey and a man named Heagney appeared and said they wanted to make a complaint, but he said they were both drunk and he refused to receive the complaint. Heagney and Dorsey testified Monday that it was on this occasion that Keling had told them not to try to "queer those fellows trying to make a few dollars down on the docks." Kelling denied this yesterday and added that neither man told him the nature of the complaint they desired to make.

Griffin took the stand for only a moment and left abruptly when his counsel tried to question him. Stearns denied that he had any knowledge of liquor smuggling. He said he went to the pier on Sept. 4 to see Father Bennett, who he heard was there. He said he saw no liquor being landed.

Each side took about an hour to sum up. Counsel Cutley reminded the jury that the ten defendants were for the most part men of families who up to the time of their indictment had held unblemished reputations. Judge Egan took forty-five minutes to charge the jury.

MRS. EGAN GETS 30 DAYS.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 16.—Mrs. Anna L. Egan, 36 years old, of 255 West End Avenue, New York City, a Summer resident of Portaupeck, Long Branch, was sentenced today to thirty days in the County Jail on a charge of operating an automobile while intoxicated. Mrs. Egan appealed the sentence and was released under $500 bail.

Mrs. Egan was arrested late last night after she had left a restaurant near the beach front in company with three other women. The names of her companions were not divulged. According to the police she drove the car in a reckless manner and narrowly missed two women at a street intersection. The car, police officers said, almost crashed into another machine about two blocks further.

At Police Headquarters Mrs. Egan was examined by Dr. Daniel Featherstone, who pronounced her intoxicated. The physician said that Mrs. Egan while he was making the examination admitted that she had had a "good drink."

Coolidge Tells Disapproval Of Government in Business

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—President Coolidge's attitude on the Government going into business was defined today during a discussion on the Colorado River project. It was made clear that the President was opposed to the Government entering the business of generating and selling power.

The President thinks that Federal funds ought to be wisely spent for flood control, but feels that power developed by such projects ought to be private enterprises. He does not favor the Government going into ventures that are regarded as fields for private enterprise.

CALLES STANDS FAST ON AGRARIAN POLICY

Mexican President Denies Modification Will Be Made to Meet Kellogg's Complaint.

Mexican Government Must Take Action if It Is Displeased With American Representative.

MEXICO CITY, June 16 (AP).—President Calles in a statement issued this evening said that Mexico would not modify her agrarian policy. The statement was issued to deny reports that Mexico intended to change these policies because of the recent statement of Secretary Kellogg.

"Modification of our agrarian policy," said the statement, "would imply repudiation of principles heretofore stated, as well as treason to their supporters. The Government's agrarian policy is sanctioned by law, and besides it satisfies the people's aspirations."

Foreign Secretary Saenz this evening denied reports received here from the United States that the declarations of Secretary Kellogg with regard to Mexico were due to a conflict between Señor Saenz and James R. Sheffield, Ambassador to Mexico.

Señor Saenz asserted that relations between Mr. Sheffield and himself always had been cordial. This was shown, he added, by repeated invitations Mr. Sheffield had made for him to visit Washington.

Advices from Puebla said the Mexican Government had ordered military troops to protect George Camp, American manager of the ranch at San Pedro Coxtocan, formerly owned by the late Mrs. Rosalie Evans, who was murdered by Mexicans last August.

It was said that Mr. Camp had filed a complaint with the American Embassy against the Agrarian leader Manuel Montes for ordering the removal of workmen employed on Camp's ranch.

Foreign Secretary Saenz denied the truth of reports from the United States that secret sharp notes had been sent by Mexico City to the American Government and that Secretary of State Kellogg's recent statement had been issued because these notes had not relieved the situation.

No Revolt Now in Sight.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, June 16.—Light on Secretary Kellogg's statement that a new revolt was threatened in Mexico is awaited with interest. Reports from outside Mexico City have shown no signs of rebel activity. Correspondents here are necessarily confined to city news with dependence on telegrams that are filled in local press from the out-of-town correspondents.

Although there are a number of sympathizers with recent rebels here in Mexico City, the enemies of the present Government are so far, as reported have been unable to gather any concrete idea of a probable movement.

Dangers to Americans cited by Secretary Kellogg probably exist outside Mexico City and other large cities but so far as Mexico City is concerned, foreigners are not molested except for the usual run of crime which cannot be charged to the Government.

American business in Mexico City in the importing line is practically suspended since publication of the Kellogg statement. Orders sent to the United States before the Kellogg incident have been held up until further advices. Many old-timers in business here are proceeding to carry on as before.

Labor leaders publish telegrams of adhesion from prominent Mexicans to the policy of President Calles. Senators, Congressmen, Generals and men in all walks of life have wired congratulations on the answer to the Kellogg statement. It is noticed that in the published list the name of ex-President Obregon does not figure.

Candido Aguilar who took refuge in the United States has wired from Havana congratulations to the President on his stand. El Sol states this afternoon that the unions are behind Calles ready for anything. It adds that they have requested assistance of the American Federation of Labor.

A report from Puebla to military headquarters states that on the large haciendas owned by W. O. Jenkins American flags are flying. This has excited the natives. As Jenkins is now in Los Angeles it is not known who issued orders to fly American flags. Jenkins is famous in Puebla for the kidnaping incident of 1919. He has purchased a number of large haciendas and is still purchasing land.

SHEFFIELD TO RETURN SOON.

Kellogg Denies Ambassador Will Retire as a Result of Controversy.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—Announcement was authorized by Secretary Kellogg this afternoon that James R. Sheffield, American Ambassador to Mexico, whose recent conferences in Washington with the President were followed by a sharp exchange of views between Secretary Kellogg and President Calles, would return to his post in Mexico City. The Secretary's announcement was given in response to inquiries in view of the apparent resentment aroused in Mexico by Secretary Kellogg's statement of Friday Mr. Sheffield might not return to Mexico City.

Certain sections of the Mexican press, professing to be aware of no particular instances of friction between the two Governments, have surmised in their editorial columns that facts have not been accurately presented to President Coolidge and Secretary Kellogg.

The Coolidge Administration, however, is assuming full responsibility for the Kellogg statement, which was not issued until after the reports made by Ambassador Sheffield and others at the session of the State Department had received mature consideration at a White House conference, which was participated in by President Coolidge, Attorney General Sargent, Senators Borah and Smoot and Ambassador Sheffield.

Secretary Kellogg's statement of Friday itself made it quite plain that the Coolidge Administration fully intends to give its firm support to Ambassador Sheffield and Secretary Kellogg's flat announcement this afternoon that Mr. Sheffield would return to Mexico City, probably the latter part of June or early in July, shows there has been no change in that determination.

The situation is made less awkward by the fact that Mr. Sheffield already is accredited to the Mexican Government and has been accepted by that Government already as being persona grata. Even assuming that the Calles Government might now prefer some other person as American Ambassador, there is no occasion for the State Department to reopen the question of acceptability.

PERKINS CASE GOES TO THE JURY TODAY

PISTOL EXPERT AIDS HER

Court Denies Three Motions by Defense—Arguments of Counsel to Begin This Morning.

Taking of testiomny in the Dorothy Perkins murder trial ended yesterday. Council will sum up today and the jury which has heard the evidence in General Sessions before Judge John F. McIntyre should begin to deliberate before nightfall.

The last blow launched by the prosecution against the 17-year-old defendant, who is accused of having shot down Thomas Templeton, a rejected suitor, at a St. Valentine's party in the Perkins home, was the reading of a stenographic account of her statements immediately after the shooting.

Pallid and painfully anxious, Dorothy sat at the counsel table and seemed to count the words as they fell from the lips of the stenographer in the Homicide Bureau who took the statement. Bright blue eyes clung to the man's face as he read the sentences of self-accusation. Thin hands intertwined, twisted a frayed bit of handkerchief or fluttered to her face. The poise that had carried her calmly through most of the trial appeared to be broken.

Robert J. McLaughlin was the stenographer who read the statement. It was a record of her interrogation by Assistant District Attorney Morgan A. Jones. Sidney R. Lash, the girl's counsel, objected vainly to its introduction. He sought to show that the statement had been made after grilling by five detectives and two policemen. In one part the girl explained that when Templeton, on the night before the shooting, had asked her to marry him, she had replied, "I could never be happy with one man while I was thinking of another." The other man, according to the statement, was "Mickey" Connors. Another part of it was as follows:

"Did you shoot at your father in self-defense?"

"I didn't mean to shoot it."

"Didn't you know what you were doing with the revolver?"

"I was nervous."

"You just shot for no reason at all?"

"I didn't realize what I did."

McLaughlin also read part of a statement obtained from Mrs. Margaret Perkins, mother of the defendant, and her brother, Harold Perkins. The excerpts were introduced to contradict testimony or to fill in gaps.

Juror Questions a Witness.

Richard J. Courtney, another stenographer from the Homicide Bureau, read part of a statement made on Feb. 24 by Connors. Benjamin J. Hickey, a draughtsman, testified as to measurements in the Perkins house. Detective Frank Campbell testified to events immediately after the police were summoned and found Templeton dead.

Harry Brown, a friend of the dead man, was placed on the stand. He was questioned about the accidental killing of a man while Brown was running a locomotive, although holding only a fireman's license. As Brown was about to leave the stand a juror asked him why, as he had testified earlier in the trial, he kept on his overcoat when he visited the Perkins home on the night of the killing. Brown said that he had not intended to remain at the party, but did not know whether that was why he kept his coat on.

"Then you have a gun in your pocket?" asked the juror.

"No, sir."

"Did you take off your coat later?"

"Yes, I took it off myself."

Judge McIntyre yesterday denied the usual motions to dismiss the indictment for failure to make out a case, and he also refused to strike from the record the stenographic statement made by Dorothy to the police. A third motion by counsel for Lash requested that the jury be taken to the Perkins home to see the scene of the crime and thus judge distances in the house for themselves.

When court opened, cross-examination of Dorothy was resumed. When she stepped to the stand her cheeks had a bit of color, but this soon faded as she became tense. She appeared self-possessed, and with folded hands in her lap looked Assistant District Attorney James E. McDonald straight in the eye. Witnesses had testified that the shot which killed Templeton was fired while Dorothy's father, Rudolph Perkins, held her and she struggled. The father did not testify. Mr. McDonald asked her to show how she was held.

"I can't show you," said Dorothy. "I don't remember."

How Her Father Held Her.

The prosecutor persisted and the girl reiterated her inability to remember. Mr. Lash sought to halt this line of examination. He was overruled. A court attendant then stood before Dorothy and she placed his left hand over her right hand and his other hand on her left wrist.

"I think that is the way he held me," she said, her forehead crinkling as she glanced down at the Assistant District Attorney.

Question after question was asked her. Mr. McDonald, skirting phases of the case he had developed in his examination on Monday. The only sign of emotion the girl displayed was in an occasional quaver of her voice, and in constant wetting of her lips. Now and then she would brush back her bobbed red-gold hair with an impatient gesture, and then hunch forward in the chair to gaze steadfastly at the questioner. Emphasis came into her tones as Mr. McDonald asked her if she had not gone to the house where "Mickey" Connors lodged, just before the St. Valentine's party began. Connors is the married man with whom the girl began relations when she was 15 years old and Connors boarded with her parents.

"Isn't it true that you invited Connors to the party," asked Mr. McDonald, "and that when he said he wasn't shaved, you said you would get him a razor?"

"No, it isn't."

Judge McIntyre then questioned the defendant about drinking at the party. She said she had sipped from three or four glasses in response to the invitation, "Come, drink a drink."

"Were you drunk?" said the Court.

"I didn't feel that what I had drunk had any effect on me," said the girl. The State later introduced a statement that she had drunk five glasses of gin and two glasses of Scotch whisky.

"Are you a heavy drinker?" asked Mr. McDonald.

"No, sir," replied Dorothy.

William A. Jones, former Police Department pistol expert, who had testified for the defense, was called by the State when Dorothy was excused. He was questioned about powder marks, and a court attendant donned the blue serge coat worn by Dorothy's father the night of the killing. The bullet that ended Templeton's life passed through the coat. In reply to questions Jones said that the position of the hole indicated that Perkins's left hand had been raised, pulling the coat up and away from his vest, when the pistol was discharged.

This was a telling point for the defense. The jurors seemed to be much interested in this testimony. It is the contention of Dorothy that her father had his hand up to slap her and that the pistol was fired at the moment he made his threatening movement. Several jurors put questions on this point to Captain Jones.

The defense offered no witnesses in rebuttal and at 1 o'clock the trial was adjourned to this morning.

The seller of liquor, whose occupation a Brooklyn Judge has termed not immoral but merely illegal, is susceptible, however, to moral suasion, according to an announcement yesterday by the Salvation Army, naming four young woman cadets who have persuaded more than 100 bootleggers to seek other employment.

These four young women are members of a class of 156 who are to be commissioned as officers of the organization at Carnegie Hall on June 22. They are Vivian Linden of Jamestown, N. Y.; Ivy Martin of New Haven, Conn.; Hazel Swackhamer of Carbondale, Pa., and Lily Hughes of Akron, Ohio, all members of a class which has been training for a year at the Army Training School on Morris Heights, the Bronx. All the cadets were organized into brigades for actual field service, so they could get practice in meeting problems they might face as officers, and these young women, it is stated, chose to work among bootleggers.

Some of their friends, it is also stated, scoffed at their suggestion that bootleggers would attend their meetings, but they went ahead with their plans and held their first meeting at Atlantic City. The event was advertised as a bootleggers' meeting exclusively. Seventy-six persons, all presumably bootleggers, attended. Three persons professed conversion to Christianity and a dozen more declared they "would find something more useful to do." Since then, the announcement continued, "the cadets have held many other similar meetings and have registered similar successes." Some of the bootleggers, it is said, even applied to the Salvation Army for jobs.

Ensign Dorothy Jenkins, leader and instructor of the cadets, said she had faith in the ultimate value of these meetings.

"We always keep in mind," she said, "that a jailed bootlegger is still a bootlegger, but a convertedbootlegger is no longer a bootlegger."

SEES DESPOTISM IN FEDERAL POWER

Deplores Passing of Old View of Local Responsibility — Fears Complete Domination.

In an address over the radio last night from Station WEAF, Governor Albert G. Ritchie of Maryland declared that the Government's gradual assumption of powers which, he maintained, properly belonged to the States, "is complete, arbitrary and despotic." The address was delivered under the auspices of the American Citizenship Committee of the American Bar Association.

Asserting that the States had in the century and a quarter of the life of the Constitution fulfilled all the responsibilities which the Constitution placed on them, Governor Ritchie declared that within the last decade increase in Federal power and decrease in State responsibility had developed "a governmental revolution" sufficient "to wrest from their moorings definite and long-settled principles."

"Consider the revolution which the past twelve years have wrought in the Government's power over the earnings and prosperity of its citizens," he said. "Upon nothing were the men who drew and property of its citizens," he said, that the Federal Government should never exercise the great power of taxation in an arbitrary and despotic manner. So in the Constitution itself they placed clear and exact limitations on the exercise by Congress of its taxing power.

"Under these limitations, for a century and a quarter the Federal Government could levy no direct tax unless it was distributed among the States on the basis of the number of their inhabitants. In 1913 the Sixteenth Amendment was adopted, and this provided that one kind of a direct tax need not depend on political units or States set up for that express purpose.

"One hundred and thirty-six years ago the States began to assume the responsibility placed upon them—the responsibility of dealing with every governmental purpose not national or international in its scope in such manner as their own people willed.

"This view of State responsibility was sound. It is still sound. On no other theory is national unity and national harmony possible. For a century and a quarter this theory was the base rock of our institutions. For a century and a quarter the States fulfilled their responsibility of local self-government within the field reserved to them as their peoples willed.

"There is now no limitation on the Federal Government's power to tax incomes. It can tax them as high as it pleases. It does tax them to the aggregate amount of $1,644,883,676. It can take as much more of the citizens' earnings as it wants. The Government's power is complete, arbitrary and despotic. Nothing like it was ever contemplated. On the contrary, the very thing was denied."

"For 127 years the Government regarded no emergency except war sufficient to justify it in taking any part of the citizen's property upon his death. It released this source of revenue to the exclusive use of the States again as soon as the war was over. But nine years ago the Federal Government adopted an inheritance tax as a permanent, peacetime revenue, and under it takes and therefore destroys as much of the citizens capital as it pleases as soon as he dies."

ISSUES A NEW ATTACK ON SUBWAY TAXATION

Director of Eighth Avenue Association Says Delay Is Preferable to Such an Error.

J. W. Danahy, managing director of the Eighth Avenue Association, declared yesterday that Mayor Hylan's action in postponing until Fall discussion of the association's protest against the proposed method of paying 25 per cent. of the cost of new subways by assessment upon adjoining property, evidently indicated that the city Administration did not intend to build any new subways this Summer, except the Washington Heights route, which is already validated.

"The association would have preferred that the protest which it made, as well as the financial plan itself, had been discussed on its merits, so that actual construction might be speeded," he said. "Nevertheless, it is preferable to delay the work rather than to go ahead on a basis which is economically unsound.

"It is almost a truism to say that the subways should be made to pay for themselves, but it is a truism which not all city officials seem to comprehend. To force the property owners and, in consequence, the rent payers to pay 60 per cent. of the cost of the new subways in order that the non-taxpayers of Connecticut, Jersey and Westchester may ride at less than cost is not only economically unsound but it is probably unconstitutional."

WARNS SMITH MAY DESTROY TAMMANY

'X. M. C.' PLEADS FOR MAYOR

Says Murphy, If Alive, Would Have Given Him Re-nomination, but Political Friends Doubt It.

Governor Smith is charged with an attempt to break down Tammany Hall in his endeavor to bring about the elimination of Mayor Hylan as a candidate for re-election in a circular letter, anonymous except for the initials, "X. M. C.," which appear at the bottom of the document. Copies of the letter, which was in printed form and had been mailed at the City Hall station of the post office, reached newspaper offices and some Democratic leaders last night.

While on its face it is a boost for Mayor Hylan, friends of the Mayor who were questioned last night denied all knowledge of the circular or any connection with its distribution. Tammany Democrats not so closely affiliated with Mayor Hylan politically expressed the view that it had been sent around for the purpose not so much of criticizing Governor Smith as of creating an impression that the late Charles F. Murphy as leader of Tammany Hall was firmly committed to the renomination of Mayor Hylan for a third term.

A person wielding great influence in Tammany Hall, and who was so intimate with the late Tammany chieftain as to be in a position to reflect with unerring accuracy his views with regard to whether Mayor Hylan should be given another term, said last night that there was absolutely no justification for the statement that Mr. Murphy had taken a stand in favor of the Mayor's renomination.

"Mr. Murphy was not in the habit of foreclosing the future so long in advance," this gentleman said last night. "Moreover, the statement can be made truthfully and without fear of contradiction by any one who knew what was in the mind of Mr. Murphy during the last years of his life that he was not inclined to look with favor upon Mr. Hylan as a third-term Mayor."

The question of the close relations between the Mayor and W. R. Hearst, with whom Mr. Murphy had broken completely after the 1922 campaign, were very distasteful to Mr. Murphy. Mayor Hylan's advocacy of Mr. Hearst as a nominee for Governor or for United States Senator in 1922 and his repeated threats to "run out on" the party, had also tended to turn Mr. Murphy against the Mayor, it was stated.

The circular letter is headed: "Will Governor Smith Destroy Tammany Hall?" It is addressed "To the Regular Democrats of New York City." The writer disavows in the opening paragraph any intention to attack Governor Smith, for whom he professes friendship, and declares that his letter is intended as "an endeavor to analyze the present situation as Mr. Murphy would have analyzed it, and to leave to members of the organization to draw their own conclusions."

The circular goes on to say that Mr. Smith owes all his present honors, and depends for the realization of future hopes of political preferment on Tammany Hall.

"Has our friend Al reached the point where he believes that no one but himself is to be allowed a place in the sun?" the writer proceeds to ask.

The letter then states that Tammany never has been so well off as during the eight years Hylan has been Mayor.

"Were Mr. Murphy alive today there would not be one Tammany man of any importance who would even suggest that Mayor Hylan should not be renominated," the circular continues. Murphy, it goes on to say, had lived to regret that he did not renominate Mayor Gaynor in 1913, and Mr. Hylan was closer to Mr. Mrughy than Mayor Gaynor ever was.

"Murphy had the satisfaction," it says, "during the last years of his life of seeing under Mayor Hylan a Tammany administration that was satisfactory to the organization and at the same time free from scandal.

"The Citizens Union, the Municipal Alliance and a number of the newspapers are enumerated as furnishing Governor Smith with the inspiration "to pull down the house in which he was born."

The circular letter which made its appearance last night, and editorials which have appeared in Hearst papers during the last few days, are looked upon among Democrats not aligned with the Mayor as evidence of a growing realization in the Hylan camp that his cause is desperate.

BETHLEN TELLS TRIUMPHS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, June 16.—Premier Count Bethlen has just returned from Geneva with triumphant accounts of his experiences at the League meeting.

In a long speech in Parliament today the Premier announced that the preliminary budget for next year shows a surplus of $4,300,000.

He was applauded by the Government party, but the Opposition press says the most interesting fact of the speech was a total absence of any reference to the Benisky affair.

A report of large agricultural credits from the United States as practically secured causes great satisfaction here, as, despite the success of the reconstruction scheme and the improvement of the State finances, a general economic depression and stagnation in all business is now prevailing, even worse than in Austria.

GOVERNOR'S REPORT IS HELD MISLEADING

SEE EFFORT TO GET HELP

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, June 16.—Figures submitted by Governor Smith in his financial statement published yesterday were questioned in a joint statement issued today by Senator Charles J. Hewitt, Chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, and Eberly Hutchinson, Chairman of the Assembly Ways and Means Committee.

The two lawmakers accuse the Governor of scolding the Legislature "for desiring to meet the present obligations of the State which he by veto put over until next year." They assert that "if the people by their vote this Fall do authorize bond issues, the Governor can go on refusing to pay direct appropriations and can keep the tax rate down by piling upon the State new burdens of debt."

The statement sets forth that Governor Smith vetoed certain items in the appropriation bills, and insists that there was an item of only $162,477.83 for personal service, although the Governor asserted that the amount was $2,240,981.04. The capital outlays vetoed total $946,200, they assert, and in addition the Governor vetoed $1,800,000 for the Poughkeepsie bridge. They charge that he now proposes to list the capital outlays or some of them in the $100,000,000 bond issues.

"It is possible," the statement reads, "that the Governor vetoed these absolutely essential items and delayed work for an indefinite time in order to gain support in the localities affected for his bond issue."

Criticize Smith's Policy.

The statement by Messrs. Hewitt and Hutchinson reads in part:

Under the disguise of a financial statement the Governor attacks the Republican "pay as you go policy" and scolds the Legislature for desiring to meet the present obligations of the State which he by veto has put over until next year. This statement is a characteristic expression of his financial policy, which is never to meet a debt this year which you can put off until next; never pay cash if you can give a note. * * *

Now let us glance at the Governor's numerous and, in some instances, misleading figures. He says that if the Republican leaders had their way about it he could have cost $193,000,000 to run the State. He mistakes there; this figure is $10,000,000 in excess of the proposals for appropriations submitted by the Republicans.

Of the items vetoed in the appropriation bills, which the Governor says totaled $2,240,981.04, and which he says "were made up largely of unnecessary positions and increases in salaries," the facts are these: But $162,477.83 are items of personal service, while the capital outlays vetoed total $946,200, and in addition he vetoed $1,800,000 for the Poughkeepsie bridge. * * *

Let us have a plain statement of facts. Appropriations this year were prepared in strict conformity with the budget method advocated by the Governor. In January the Governor submitted the executive budget prepared by his Board of Estimate and Control. Pending the action on this bill not one appropriation bill was sent to the Governor except the regular annual appropriations to his Department of Public Works and such other bills as were by the Governor himself recommended.

Say Legislature Lowered Budget.

It is true the annual appropriation bill was sent to him in two sections; one embodied the items in his budget and the other contained the items not considered by the Governor's budget maker. This division was made, as it was plainly stated at the time, to conform to the Governor's ideas of budget making, and in order that there might be no possible confusion in the Gubernatorial mind nor any excuse for his past charges that items had been hidden in the appropriation bill over-ingrged in contrary to his recommendation.

To the budget which the Governor submitted he himself recommended additions. His statement to the contrary notwithstanding, the budget submitted by him, including these additional items, was lowered in the amount of approximately $1,000,000 by the Legislature.

The second bill contained items which were in the original departmental requests and had either been refused or not considered by him. This was done to conform to the budget method advocated by the Governor.

When we sent to him the supplemental bill which is always presented at the close of the session we followed the same procedure in separating the items to be brought to his attention. In one bill we placed those items which represented belated department needs or the recommendations of the Governor, and in the other bill only items of the main bill which had been rejected by him and which had been changed in amount to conform with his idea.

If the Governor condemns this procedure, then he condemns in advance the very system of appropriations which in his constitutional budget plan he has been advocating.

The question at issue between the Governor and the Legislature is not the method nor the amount of appropriations. It is more elemental. It is, simply: "Shall we pay cash?" or "Shall we run in debt?" The Legislature prefers to "pay as you go." The Governor says "Go in debt." Which do you prefer?

Smith-Miller Debate After July 4.

ALBANY, N. Y., June 16 (AP).—Governor Smith indicated today that his debate with former Governor Nathan L. Miller over the proposed $100,000,000 bond issue for State construction purposes would not be held until some time after July 4. It will be held in Carnegie Hall, New York City.

The Governor said that at present he was busy in writing the message which will be transmitted to the Legislature when it convenes in extraordinary session next Monday night to consider State parks legislation. Soon after that he will go to Portland, Me., where he is to open the conference of Governors, Jun 29. The conference will be in session two days.

FILE JUDGMENT ON STOKES.

Lawyers Win Suit for Compensation—Similar Action Begins.

A judgment for $5,678 was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday against W. E. D. Stokes in favor of Ives & Keating, attorneys of Danbury, Conn., as a result of a verdict of a jury before Supreme Court Justice Davis. The lawyers sued for $13,051, alleging that in 1922 and 1923 they rendered services to Mr. Stokes in interviewing witnesses and obtaining evidence for use in his divorce suit against his wife. They claimed $15,000 for their services and $751 disbursements, and asserted that only $2,700 was paid. Stokes contended that the lawyers had received full payment for all they did.

Trial of an action for $5,000 alleged to be due for legal services was begun yesterday before Federal Judge Thacher by Mrs. Hallie Louise Ellis, as executrix of the estate of her husband, Daniel B. Ellis of Denver, Col., against W. E. D. Stokes. The complaint states that the late Mr. Ellis was counsel for the defendant when the latter's wife, Mrs. Helen Elwood Stokes, was fighting in the Denver courts for possession of her two children. She won the action, and Mr. Stokes, it is alleged, failed to pay Mr. Ellis for his services.

Greek Fishermen Haul Up Bronze Statue From the Sea

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, June 16.—A bronze statue, being an exceptionally fine example of the best period of Greek art, was raised by fishermen from the bottom of the sea near Marathon, where it had been lying at a depth of 60 fathoms for an unknown period.

Four feet three inches high, the statue portrays a naked boy about 14 years old with his head turned to the left and his right hand raised above his head. The left arm is bent below at a right angle to the face. The body is sturdy and the eyes whited, similar to the style of the Apollo from Antikythera in the National Museum.

Except for a part of one foot, which is missing, the bronze is in good preservation. It weighs 170 pounds, and the fact that it is without pediment and found at a great depth gives rise to the supposition that it was jettisoned from a ship during a storm in the Gulf of Marathon or that it is a relic of a shipwreck. The authorities of the Ministry of Education attach importance to the discovery of the bronze, and have estimated its date to be about 400 B. C. It resembles the work of the Praxitelean school, and is supposed to represent the mythical Hermaphrodite statue now housed in the National Museum.

MILLS TELLS SMITH HE ERRS IN FIGURES

SURPLUS NEAR EXHAUSTION

Declares Bond Policy Is Based on Realization That Inability to Balance Budget Is Near.

In a letter which he sent to Governor Smith and made public yesterday, Representative Ogden L. Mills declared that even a cursory reading of the Governor's financial statement, published in THE NEW YORK TIMES on Monday, made it clear that it contained "substantial inaccuracies."

Analysis of the figures embodied in it, Mr. Mills added, disclosed the fact that the State would not be in a position to balance its budget for the next fiscal year with the revenues at its disposal, owing to the "mistaken" financial policy of the Governor, even with no reduction in the personal income tax.

In his letter Representative Mills said:

I note that under date of June 15 you made public a report purporting to give a correct analysis of the financial operations of the Government during the last session of the Legislature. If the people are to have correct knowledge of the finances of their government, it is essential that public statements of this character should be accurate; yet, a very cursory reading of your statement discloses two substantial inaccuracies.

You say that on January, 1925, the State Controller estimated "the revenue to meet appropriations by the 1925 Legislature to be $179,741,834.59." The fact is that the revenue for the coming fiscal year was estimated at that time at $166,741,835, as appears in your message to the Legislature.

The discrepancy arises from the fact that in your most recent figures you treat as current revenue $17,000,000 of free surplus carried over from previous years. You may say that I am raising a technical objection of an accounting nature, and that as a practical matter it makes very little difference whether the $17,000,000 is received in revenue or taken from surplus. But let me point out to you that the distinction is of very great importance, since your statement would lead the people to believe that the State is balancing its budget next year, and that current revenues are adequate to take care of current expenditures, whereas, the contrary is the case. And why is this of such vital importance? Because if current revenues are not adequate to support current expenditures, it must be evident that as soon as the relief which is afforded by it will be for all practical purposes next year—taxes must inevitably be raised, unless, of course, one of two things occurs: either expenditures are reduced, or some new mode of financing current expenditures be devised.

This, indeed, you yourself cautiously admit, by saying that not a single dollar of increased taxation will be needed "unless the people themselves at the polls this Fall should reject the proposal to bond the State for $10,000,000 a year for ten years." So, the cat is at last out of the bag! The people are to be asked to deprive themselves of the check which they now have on the legislative authority to bond the State, not to finance great public projects whose magnitude forbids their financing from current revenue, but that the Governor and Legislature may be in a position, free from popular control, to borrow $10,000,000 a year to pay for items which have heretofore been paid from current revenue, and so make good the failure of the State Government to balance its budget.

What are the true figures of revenue and appropriation for the next fiscal year? Appropriations, as you state, amount to $169,711,314. The total receipts for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, as recently estimated by the Controller, amount to $164,254,903.67, showing a failure to balance the budget by $5,456,410. But this isn't the whole story. Under date of March 10, 1925, you listed two items of deferred appropriations, $2,000,000 for slaughtered tubercular cattle, and $1,000,000 for the dependents' bonus, which you admitted will have to be made at the next session of the Legislature in the form of deficiency appropriations immediately available and payable during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926. If this amount be added to the figure above given it appears that the total deficit for the next fiscal year amounts to $8,456,410, even with the income tax collected at full rates.

Moreover, it is also fair to point out something which you failed to mention, that during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, under the terms of a bill which you signed, there will be a new item of $9,000,000 for schools, in addition to all amounts heretofore appropriated by the State for school purposes.

There is no doubt, from these figures, that a crisis has been reached. Every thoughtful man must have known that the process of increasing the cost of government and at the same time reducing one of the most fruitful sources of revenue for the sake of a political gesture could not go on indefinitely, even though the burden on real property was steadily increased. The end has come. It is now proposed, to remedy the results of a mistaken financial policy by borrowing. This is the real reason for amending the Constitution so as to deprive the people of their right to pass on bond issues. The figures I have cited, and your own admission, make it entirely clear that the reason for the Constitutional amendment is not inability to finance permanent improvements by bond issues under the present Constitution, but a desire to be freed from Constitutional restrictions in order to use bond money for current deficits.

COMPARES ADVERTISING HERE AND IN ENGLAND

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, June 16.—"The best way to maintain peace is not through the passage of a solemn resolution, but by an agreement between Britain and America to use their economic power to prevent war," said Sir William Veno, one of England's largest advertisers, speaking before the advertising men who went to Houston today for an advertising convention.

Sir William, describing the experiences of the British delegation to America at a luncheon today in their honor, said he did not see how advertising men could help peace by adopting resolutions.

"There is no connection between peace and advertising," he added.

He continued in an amusing strain on the experiences with American customs officials, who put the Englishmen through their formalities very quickly, but charged one member $12 duty on a British flag he was taking to the convention.

New York advertisers protested to President Coolidge without avail, and the newspapers called it disgraceful, but the net result was they were told the money was in Uncle Sam's till and nothing short of an act of Congress could get it out.

Sir William praised American magazine advertising, but he said newspaper advertising needed reorganizing. The enormous size of American newspapers forced advertisers to take huge space in papers as otherwise the advertisements would be lost.

Signboards in America were magnificent, he said, and did not disfigure the countryside, as they did in England, but the Broadway electric signs he thought too crowded and less attractive than London's night signs.

OWNER IS FOUND FOR STOLEN TAPESTRY

Dealer Identifies $15,000 Flemish Specimen Discovered Among Loot of 150 Dresses.

A Flemish tapestry valued at $15,000 found in a basement at 424 East 114th Street Monday, with 150 stolen dresses, was identified last night at the East 104th Street Station by John Robert Herter as the principal article taken from his shop at 441 Madison Avenue by robbers on June 4. He said that other tapestries valued at an additional $15,000 had been taken at the same time.

The identification came as the result of the calling in of art dealers to look at the tapestry. After the detectives found it with the dresses and located the owner of the dresses as Miss Ray Frelich, who said they had been stolen from her shop at 77 East Burnside Road, the Bronx, the same day, they set out to locate the owner of the more valuable piece.

Early last evening they found an art dealer who said that while he recognized the tapestry as the work of a Flemish master, he did not know the owner. When Herter was summoned he identified it at once. He said that it was the work of Van Orley and that it had formerly been the propertyof an Italian Prince and a United States official, whose name he would not reveal. The robbers had broken into his shop, he said, by forcing a rear window.

Several young men were seen carrying bundles into the basement shortly before the goods were found. A watch has been kept there in the hope that the thieves might return, but up to late last night no one had appeared.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., June 16.—Carpets and rugs valued at $1,500, were stolen from an Oriental goods store at 312 Cookman Avenue last night. The burglars entered by breaking open a window and a door at the rear.

SINGER SUES FOR LOSS OF VOICE IN WRECK

Seeks $300,000 From Interborough, Declaring She Is Without Means of Livelihood.

Signorina Giovanna Barbone, opera singer, has filed suit against the Interborough Rapid Transit Company, through her attorneys, Zelenko & Weissman, of 1,133 Broadway, asking $300,000 damages for injuries received in an elevated collision on Jan. 20, as the result of which she says she has lost her voice.

The accident is said to have occurred at the northbound station at Eighth Avenue and 116th Street. A train on which she was riding, her attorneys charge, was entering the station when it crashed into the rear of another train standing there, throwing her to the floor.

They allege that her head was so badly injured that she was forced to spend more than two months in the hospital and that she has never regained her voice since the accident. Moreover, they charge that she was forced to cancel two contracts, covering six years' work, at salaries from $20,000 to $50,000 per year, because of her injuries.

The first of these contracts, they say, was with the Sonora Grand Opera Company, with which she was to have opened in Havana on Feb. 28. The other was with a booking agency and was for four years.

Moreover, they charge that while in the Knickerbocker Hospital from Jan. 20 to 26, and in the Columbus Hospital from Jan. 26 to March 31, she was forced to spend what money she had brought from Italy for medical care and is now destitute and without a means of livelihood.

A motion for preference was granted her attorneys last Monday and the case is scheduled to come up for trial on June 24.

DEALER TO SUE POLICE FOR SELLING HIS HOSE

Stolen Stockings Were Disposed of at Department Auction, He Says.

Jacob R. Gold of Jacob R. Gold & Sons, dealers in knit goods, 476 Broadway, who found that another dealer had bought at a police auction some of $2,500 worth of silk stockings stolen from him last Fall, announced yesterday that he would sue the Police Department for the value of the hosiery.

Gold said he found the police had sold stockings stolen from him when he bought some hosiery from Isadore Barish of 138 Columbia Street, Passaic. These stockings, he said, had his name on both the fabric and the boxes and when he questioned Barish he learned the latter had bought them for $900 from the police.

"So far as I am concerned," he added, "there is no further use to dicker with the police. They have proposed that I accept the $900 or nothing. I tried to confer with Commissioner Enright, but instead was turned over to Charles G. Young, his Secretary. He said he would let me know about it later. That was last week, and that is the last I've heard from him. I intend to go to a court of equity and demand justice."

The police say the stockings were found in a truck apparently abandoned by burglars in Lafayette Street. They were turned over to the Property Custodian and the sale followed, although Mr. Gold said he reported the loss and described the property.

Police Department.

Commissioner Enright sent out two orders yesterday, one concerning trials of department members for offenses of one kind or another; the second, the customary daily routine order:

HYLAN PRAISES AID FOR REPLY TO ARON

Says Low Death Rate Proves the City's Milk Is Safe—Gives Monaghan Credit.

ARON REITERATES CHARGE

Maintains Mayor Dodges Issue and Profits on Skimmed Supply in Day Equal Year's Fines.

Mayor Hylan complimented Health Commissioner Frank J. Monaghan yesterday on his administration of the Health Department and declared his reply to Harold G. Aron's charge of an adulterated milk supply would be "reassuring to the public, particularly the poor mothers with large families, to know that the most noted authorities had pronounced New York City's milk supply the best and safest in the world."

"As you point out," the Mayor continued in a letter to Dr. Monaghan, "the low death rate due to gastro-intestinal diseases of infants during the Summer months is the best proof that the milk supply of the city is safe. The death rate of 11.61 per 1,000 inhabitants last year overshadows the death rate of 14.55 in 1917, the last year of the preceding Administration. In other words, improved health conditions saved the lives of 18,048 more persons last year than would have been the case if the 1917 death rate had prevailed.

"And this remarkable record has been made despite an increase of over 600,000 in population and despite the efforts of the Citizens' Union to prevent you from getting sufficient help to carry on the work of the Health Department with the maximum of efficiency.

Charges Hypocrisy.

"What do you think of the hypocritical pretense of this man Aron of having an interest in the public welfare? Why, do you know that Aron was counsel to the Republican members of the Legislature and aided in drafting many amendments to the Miller transit legislation which was designed to mulct the people of this city of between $800,000,000 and $900,000,000 without giving them a single foot of new subways? Are you surprised that Aron and his Republican publicity committee are now supported by traction funds?

"And are you surprised that he is maliciously attacking the city administration which has prevented the McAneny State Transit Commission created by the Miller transit legislation, from saddling a mass of transit junk of many millions of dollars of fictitious value upon the people and from creating perpetual monopolies for the I. R. T. and B. M. T.?

"Keep up the good work. The people are on to these birds of a feather. The Citizens' Union, the Aron publicity committee and the Miller bill have all been traced to the traction roost. And that's that."

Aron Says Hylan Dodges.

Mr. Aron replied to Mayor Hylan by saying that the Mayor, as usual, dodged the issue, and by declaring that the "milk trust" each day "skimmed" from the city's milk supply 75,000 quarts of cream which is sold for $20,000.

"Mr. Hylan professes sympathy for the poor mothers, but Mr. Hylan says nothing to the mothers of 300,000 a day extracted by the milk trust from the milk of the city's children," Mr. Aron continued.

"Mr. Hylan says the Health Department is doing its duty because it has collected $102,000 in fines from fraudulent milk and cream dealers in five years. Fraudulent milk and cream dealers are swindling the people of the city out of almost this amount every twenty-four hours."

The assertion that New York City milk consumers are getting the highest percentage of guaranteed, non-adulterated milk they have ever known, was made by George W. Slocum, President of the Dairymen's League Cooperative Association. "I can assure New Yorkers that the great bulk of their milk, as furnished by the Dairymen's League, is as pure and carefully guarded as any milk that the city has ever consumed," he said.

GIVES LAND IN ALASKA.

Interior Department Offers 670,510 Acres to Homestead Entry.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).—The opening to homestead entry of 670,510 acres of public land, recently excluded from the Alaskan Chugach National Forest, was announced today by the Interior Department. Former service men will have preference from July 31 to [illegible].

Most of the land is known as the Chickaloon Flats, the lands found more valuable for agricultural than forest purposes, consisting of some 265,680 acres near Anchorage, between the Knik River and Turnagain Arm on the coast, and more than 400,000 acres south of the Turnagain Arm and east of Cook Inlet. Small tracts near Cordova and Latouche are included in the opened area.

At the same time the department announced that more than a million acres have been added to the Tongass National Forest in Southeastern Alaska, the purpose being to improve administration and to add valuable timber resources to the forest.

Dr. O'Hanlon was born in Elmira, N. Y., and was graduated from the Physicians and Surgeons College of Columbia University. He spent eighteen years in the New York State Hospital service. Dr. O'Hanlon is Chairman of the New York State Hospital Conference.

BRESLAU DOGS PROTEST.

5,000 Bear Placards in Demonstration Against 80-Mark Licenses.

BRESLAU, Germany, June 16 (AP).—Five thousand barking, howling, yelping dogs of every size and species, from giant shepherd dogs to diminutive dachshunds and from pedigreed St. Bernards to nondescript mixed breeds, were assembled on the Schlossplatz yesterday.

Each dog was adorned with a placard—"We Protest Against 80-Mark Dog Licenses."

Shoots at South Palestine Governor.

LONDON, June 16 (AP).—A dispatch to The Evening News from Jerusalem today said an unknown person last night fired through the window of the residence of Governor Abramson of the Southern District of Palestine, at Hebron, a town sixteen miles from Jerusalem. It was said a heavy fine would be imposed on the town until the assailant was arrested.

LAX TAXPAYERS GET 1,000-PAGE SUMMONS

Special to The New York Times.

HARRISON, N. Y., June 16.—Five hundred copies of the world's largest summons and complaint are now being served upon delinquent taxpayers of this town by Lorenzo C. Landolfe, Town Attorney.

Each summons is larger than a New York telephone directory and weighs between eleven and fourteen pounds. Three and one-half tons of paper were required for the printing of these summonses, and the printing alone cost $5,000. It required eight weeks to assemble the first six completed copies, and the whole work of preparing and publishing the mhas taken eight months.

A special act of the Legislature known as the Westchester County Tax act was passed last year in order to permit Attorney Landolfe to bring into court all delinquent taxpayers there. In June alone 345 cases of this kind were cleared up. The unpaid taxes for the town of Harrison alone, when Attorney Landolfe took over his office in 1922, totaled more than $500,000 and affected 4,700 parcels of land.

The summons is made out for Frank J. Riley et al., which includes 500 defendants. There are nearly 1,000 pages and 2,936 paragraphs. A copy was served yesterday on George V. MacLaughlin, Superintendent of Banks of the State of New York, in his office at 51 Chambers Street. The action was explained by his jurisdiction over the Excelsior Building and Loan Society in his capacity as Superintendent of Banks. The summons servers make their rounds in express wagons.

OLDS TO AID KELLOGG.

Coolidge Appoints Former Law Partner Assistant to Secretary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, June 16.—The second appointment in Minnesota made by President Coolidge within ten days was announced today in the selection of Robert Edwin Olds of St. Paul, a former law partner of Secretary Kellogg, to be Assistant Secretary of State, succeeding John A. MacMurray, recently appointed Minister to China.

Mr. Olds is in Europe as the American member of the British-American Joint Arbitration Tribunal created under the treaty with Great Britain in 1910. The tribunal has had sessions in London and Washington and another is expected in Washington in the Autumn. Mr. Olds probably will take up his duties about Oct. 1.

Mr. Olds was born in Duluth, Minn., Oct. 22, 1875. He was a graduate of Harvard College in 1897 and of the Harvard Law School in 1900. He has practiced law since then in St. Paul. He was appointed ot represent the American Red Cross in Europe, with headquarters at Paris, during the last year of the war, and from January, 1918, he was head of the Red Cross for about three years.

In addition to his executive duties as Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Olds will be expected to look after special important legal questions arising in connection with our foreign relations and arbitrations.

$3,250,000 IS VOTED FOR HOSPITAL NEEDS

The Board of Estimate appropriated $3,000,000 yesterday for a new outpatient building for Bellevue Hospital, to be located at Twenty-sixth Street and First Avenue, to furnish more adequate quarters for the 1,200 to 1,500 patients who call daily for free treatment at Bellevue and Allied Hospitals.

Another appropriation of $250,000 also was passed to shift the psychopathic ward of Bellevue into quarters on the site of the Municipal Lodging House, 438 East Twenty-fifth Street, which will be completely remodeled and renovated, while other quarters will be found for the lodging house. The present structure is a modern seven-story fireproof building. A new garage for Bellevue ambulances also will be constructed from the appropriation.

Dr. John J. McGrath, President of the Board of Trustees of Bellevue and Allied Hospitals, announced that the contracts for construction of the buildings probably will be made within a few days.

The appropriation voted yesterday makes a total of $10,000,000 for new hospital buildings which have been approved during the last two years.

SHAVER HERE ON BUSINESS.

No Politics on Program, He Says; Denies Resignation Report.

Clem Shaver of West Virginia, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, was in the city yesterday. When interviewed at the Waldorf-Astoria he said that personal business had brought him, that he had held no political conference since his arrival and that there was none of his program.

Mr. Shaver said that he was at a loss to understand how the report that the debt of the Democratic National Committee had been fully liquidated. He said that a plan devised for the gradual wiping out of the balance of this obligation was working well and would prove effective, as that nobody was worrying.

He denied that he had any idea for the present of retiring from the chairmanship of the Democratic National Committee.

"I have certain obligations to meet and I think I fully realize them," he said. "I cannot imagine how the reports that I would get out have originated. I certainly have made no statement that would justify them."

Australia Honors Italian Flier.

MELBOURNE, Australia, June 16 (AP).—The Federal Government today gave a luncheon in honor of Commander de Pinedo, the Italian airman who recently completed a flight from Rome to Australia. Numerous other public as well as private entertainments have been given in Commander de Pinedo's honor previous to the continuation of his flight to Japan. At today's luncheon the speakers expressed their admiration of the Italian's feat, declaring it had strengthened the good relations between Italy and Australia.

Will Spring Lines Be Opened?

Some question exists at the moment as to just how general openings of spring lines of cottons will be in this market following the annual summer meeting of the National Wholesale Dry Goods Association and its subsidiary bodies here next month. This particularly applies to ginghams and kindred fabrics, which, excepting in more or less isolated cases, have not moved any too freely for Fall. Sentiment among the wholesalers is apparently for late openings, it was said yesterday, and the chances of the goods for the most part show little desire to rust things. Quite a good deal will depend, however, upon the course of cotton during the next few weeks, as a steady rise in the market for the staple would presage higher fabric prices and probably put buyers into a more acceptable frame of mind.

Canvassers Versus Retailers.

The attitude of retailers toward canvassers is undergoing considerable change, according to an executive who is closely in touch with retail activities. It is being realized that nothing can be gained by local restrictions placed upon the operations of the canvassers, some of which have been declared illegal by the higher courts. The attempt to curb the spread of the door-to-door business must, in the opinion of this executive, lie in the retailer being a better merchant. This involves, for example, if hosiery is the merchandise featured by the bell ringers, that the retailer must play up his hosiery department in advertising, display and merchandising to the same extent that the canvasser does. The sole strength of the latter, continued this executive, is the more resourceful salesmanship which he employs, and this can only be counteracted by a similar improvement in retail selling and merchandising.

Heavy Cottons Still Dragging.

Practically no change has taken place in the heavier colored cottons this week. Buyers continue to hold aloof, in many cases because they are working on inventories, and even when they do place orders the volume of merchandise called for is not large. Mills are continuing to curtail production as a result, and prospects of a shortage of goods later in the season continue to grow. By early Fall, it was predicted yesterday, buyers will be regretting their unwillingness to lay down orders liberally. Just what will happen in the meantime was too much for even trade veterans to prognosticate.

More Doing in Gray Goods.

Gray goods were more active in this market yesterday, and in some instances better prices were obtained than on Monday. Spot 38½-inch 64-60s sold at 9¼ cents, and well-credited reports of sales of that construction for September shipment at 9 cents were heard. This figure is an eighth higher than was recently paid for the goods. Spot 39-inch 68-72s were sold at 10¼ cents, which was also an advance of an eighth, while for later shipment they brought 10 cents. Trading in 38½-inch 60-48s again took place at 7½ cents. Sheetings sales for the day included 36-inch 56-60, four-yard cloths at 9¾ cents, with 7 and 6¼ cents paid, respectively, for 36-inch 5.50 and 4.15-yard sheetings. For 37-inch 3.95-yard drills buyers paid 9¾ cents, and they also took 39-inch 68-76, four-yard twills at 11¾ cents.

Worsted Yarn Prices Firmer.

While the business being done in worsted yarns is still far from normal, the total of the bookings recently by the spinners is described as most encouraging. The unsettlement caused by lower-priced offerings that have prevailed is growing less and less each week, according to the market letter of Thomas E. Hall. The upward trend of wool prices here, the letter continues, has compelled spinners to cover to some extent. Prices of quarter blood wools from 48s to 50s, it is pointed out, have advanced from the low of 75 cents per pound to 88 cents per pound, clean content, within two to three weeks. The same situation has developed in the finer grades, particularly from 62s to 70s. The actual increased cost, the letter says, of yarns from these wools has increased from 8 to 10 cents per pound over and above the wool basis prices of three weeks ago. Most of the spinners continue to restrict production of yarns for stock.

Novel Powder Puff Pockets.

A novel embroidered powder puff pocket with puff is now being offered by a rubber goods firm here. The pocket is made of soft rubber, which in itself is claimed to have many advantages over the old type of powder puff container, particularly the prevention of the powder from scattering and keeping it free from moisture during the hot weather. In addition, the pocket features a needlepoint lace embroidery in the form of a butterfly or square medallion ingeniously appliqued so that it appears as if the rubber itself was embroidered. The pockets are available in a variety of colors, the velour powder puff coming in the three staple shades of white, pink and peach. The merchandise is packed in a specially constructed box for handy and effective counter display. The pocket wholesale at $1.75 per dozen.

Want Bathing Suits in a Hurry.

Last-minute buying by retailers of bathing suits continues a feature of the knit goods demand. The influence of the hot weather has cut into retail stocks so heavily that buyers have come post haste into the market here to cover their immediate needs. Stocks at wholesale are described as low, some of the leading manufacturers having practically no goods that can be shipped immediately. The situation is taken to presage a healthy condition for the opening of the 1926 lines. The modified one-piece suit with short skirt attached is the leading type wanted, with bright colors stressed notably.

Six Shoe Colors for Fall.

A supplement to the 1925 Fall color card, containing the six shoe and leather colors for Fall, was issued yesterday by the Textile Color Card Association. The colors, which were selected by the Joint Color Committee of the allied shoe and leather associations, harmonize with many of the new silk and wool shades as well as the hosiery colors soon to be issued. The six colors are Autumn blond, India tan, rosewood, national gray, woodland brown and rugby tan. Autumn blond is paralleled on the 1925 Fall card by a wide range of beige tones such as blondine, nougat, bisque, hamadan and mosul in the ensemble silk and wool groups. India tan, a soft brown, and rugby tan, or a golden tint, combine with many of the silk colors, and may be matched to the hosiery colors found on the standard hosiery color card. Woodland brown, resembling Autumn foliage, may be worn with many neutral tones which have the subtle suggestion of purple, such as sarouk and kermanahan. Rosewood is considered one of the most important of the colors, and is in harmony with such shades as sierra, cordova, Korea and sonora. National gray falls in the same group as moonbeam, flint and frost gray.

Leather Goods Picking Up.

The call for luggage and other leather goods in this market is beginning to show the effect of the approaching vacation season, but a good deal of consumer buying of these lines still has to be done before makers of the goods will find themselves busy. One reason for this appears to be that retailers, more especially in the case of luggage, show little disposition to fill in broken lines completely. A factor that is helping the small leather goods situation to some extent is the more active business that is being done by concessionnaires at various amusement parks and beaches throughout the country. This is attributed directly to the hot weather. In some quarters duplicate orders from these buyers are making their appearance.

Men's Fine Shoes Not Active.

Except for the demand reported for sport footwear of one kind or another, "at once" business that is now coming in to local makers of the better grades of men's shoes is not large. The sport stuff, however, is moving quite briskly, with an especially good call reported for the better qualities of crêpe-sole oxfords. Fall business to date shows up very favorably with that of a year ago, and the indications are that the next few weeks will be productive of orders that will bring the new season's volume well over the "top" of 1924. Light-weight custom effects make up a very large part of the business that has been placed, especially in orders calling for shoes meant for men beyond the college age.

JURY UNABLE TO AGREE IN SUIT ON HIRSHFIELD

Deliberates 6 Hours in $50,000 Slander Case—Retrial Is Set for Next October.

After nearly eight hours of deliberation a verdict of "unable to agree" was returned yesterday by the jury which heard the $50,000 slander suit brought by Charles Tiernan against Commissioner of Accounts David Hirshfield. It was said that the jurors stood nine to three for a verdict against Hirshfield when they gave up.

The case went to the jury on Monday afternoon at 2:45 o'clock, and when no decision had been reached at 4:30 Supreme Court Justice Gibbs, who heard the case, ordered the jury to stay out until an agreement had been reached and to return a sealed verdict at 10 o'clock the following morning. At one time it was reported the jury stood eleven to one in favor of Tiernan. Another report had it that one juror held out for a verdict of $25,000 against Hirshfield.

It was shown in the trial that Tiernan, who is an ex-bartender, had been called to testify in connection with the Commissioner's investigation of police graft charges in 1923. Robert McAllister, the "Flying Cop," had also been a witness in the investigation. He had testified that he had raided Tiernan's place on Ninth Avenue on Nov. 24, 1923, and that he had found Tiernan pouring out liquor to two negroes. McAllister had produced as evidence a flask containing whisky. Tiernan had said he had been "framed" and that the liquor had been placed in the flask in the police station. After having heard Tiernan, Commissioner Hirshfield had termed his testimony "perjury." Tiernan had then served the latter with a summons within an hour after leaving the stand. Justice Gibbs said in charging the jury that the only question to be considered was whether or not Tiernan was guilty of perjury.

The case was set on the calendar for re-trial on the second Monday in October.

TELL COURT OF LOANS TO FOOD STORES HEAD

Wholesale Grocer and Brother Out $339,000, They Testify, Because of Failure.

Joseph Reiter, head of the Federal Food Stores, which recently failed for $2,700,000, heard witnesses for the State in his trial for grand larceny yesterday tell how loans were obtained on warehouse receipts on which it is alleged sums had already been borrowed.

It is alleged by the Brooklyn Trust Company that warehouse receipts totaling more than $14,000 in value were fraudulent. Karl Herman, manager of the Trust Company's credit department, testified he examined all loans made to the Federal Food Stores and David H. Lannan, Vice President of the trust company, testified briefly as to the loans he had negotiated.

Samuel Gottlieb, of the wholesale grocery firm of H. Gottlieb & Co., testified that on Feb. 25 he consented to obtain a loan of $20,000 for Reiter from his bank, the Midwood Trust Company. After the loan was negotiated, he said, he cashed the check and gave the money to Reiter and delivered warehouse receipts covering the loan to the bank. Cross-examined by Peter P. Smith, counsel for the defense, Gottlieb said he did not remember at what bank he cashed the check.

Gottlieb admitted that he was paid as high as 18 per cent. on loans he negotiated with banks for Reiter, although he never realized that much because the loans were never outstanding for a year. As a result of the food stores' failure, he stated, he had lost $79,000 in funds borrowed from the bank on his personal notes and on the alleged fraudulent warehouse receipts.

Leo Gottlieb of 1,185 East Ninth Street, Brooklyn, his brother, followed Gottlieb on the stand. He was formerly connected with the Brooklyn Finance Company, and stated that he had negotiated loans totaling about $350,000 for Reiter from that company and other financial concerns. He said as a consequence of the failure he was personally pledged for $260,000 of this amount.

The trial will continue today in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn.

Davis Tries to Settle Plasterers' Trouble—To Meet Friday.

WASHINGTON, June 16 (AP).—Secretary Davis today brought together the three groups involved in the plasterers' strike which was called last week by the Operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers' International Union. He hoped to effect a settlement of his dispute and of differences which have existed between the operative plasters and the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers International Union of America for fourteen years.

Today's conference took up the points at issue and it was agreed upon adjournment to meet again Friday morning. Secretary Davis declined to reveal the progress made at today's meeting further than to say that the disputed questions were freely discussed.

The conference was attended by Hugh L. Kerwin, Director of Conciliation of the Labor Department, and Thomas J. Williams, Conciliation Commissioner, and George T. Thornton, First Vice President; H. C. Bates, Treasurer; John J. Gleeson, Secretary, and Walter V. Price, Vice President of the Bricklayers, Masons and Plasterers Union. E. J. McGovern, President, spoke for the operative Plasterers and Cement Finishers Union. Representatives of the contractors included C. G. Norman, O. M. Eidlitz, T. A. O'Rourke and Robert Whiting of New York and W. J. Lynch of Chicago.

Would End Canada's Viceroyalty.

OTTAWA, June 16 (AP).—Labor members in the House of Commons have started a movement to abolish the office of Governor General of Canada in the interests of democracy and economy. J. S. Woodsworth, Labor Party leader, from the floor last night denounced the proposed $500,000 appropriation for maintenance of the Governor General's office as a waste of money. The Chief Justice of Canada, he said, could discharge the duties of the Governor General. Mr. Woodsworth was supported by the Rev. William Irvine, Labor member for East Calgary. Both disclaimed criticism of Lord Byng, saying he had made it clear he could not remain in Canada for another term. George P. Graham, Liberal, eulogized Lord Byng as a man of the people and a Democrat.

Arrest Two in Bookmaking Raid.

ORANGE, N. J., June 16.—Two men were arrested and a quantity of racing sheets, other records and $350 in currency seized this afternoon when a squad of plain clothes men and detectives from the Essex County Prosecutor's office raided an alleged bookmaking establishment on the top floor of a three-story building at 300 Main Street here. The men arrested were Charles Drew of 128 Summer Street and John Tedesco of 20 Bell Street.

To Broadcast Speech by Alfonso.

MADRID, June 16 (AP).—King Alfonso tomorrow will inaugurate the Union Radio Broadcasting Station at noon (about 6 A. M. Eastern Standard Time). The King will deliver a speech, and if atmospheric conditions are favorable Americans may hear him by tuning in on a 430-meters wave length.

Belgium to Expel Bolshevist Students.

BRUSSELS, June 16 (AP).—The Belgian governmental authorities decided today to expel several foreign students of Liege University who, it is stated, have been engaged in Bolshevist propaganda.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Advance in Stocks, Railway Shares Leading—Further Decline in French Exchange.

Without any increase of business, prices in general were firmer on the Stock Exchange yesterday. Industrial shares moved irregularly, some of them declining, but the trend of the railway shares was distinctly upward, with advances of 1 to 3 points rather numerous. This somewhat emphatic movement of that group may have been partly explainable by the fact that railway stocks have not participated in the program of professional activity during the last few months; that they have, in fact, been rather under a cloud as a result of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul affair, the somewhat disappointing revenues and the uncertainty over the railway merger program.

Now and then in the recent vicissitudes of the stock market, a "diversion" to the railway shares has been rather obviously staged in order to sustain a wavering market for the speculative industrials. Yesterday's market may have been another such instance. But even the talk of the day on Wall Street suggested certain not uninteresting possibilities. The "car-loading statement" was not the essential consideration. It was highly favorable, reaching much the largest total of any week this year. But that is no more than happened in 1923; when, in fact, the traffic thus indicated was considerably larger than that reflected in yesterday's report.

The suggestion that the Interstate Commission may see fit to take action for relief of inadequacies in Western and Northwestern rates, however, was at least a practical possibility. The St. Paul episode itself has necessarily drawn attention to this matter, even though that company's insolvency had other and more immediate causes than non-productive rates. Until this year the relatively bad railway earnings of that section, in the Northwest especially, were plausibly enough explained by the poor crops, the low prices of wheat and the hard times among the farmers. But when, in the first quarter of the present year, with the large and profitable grain crops of 1924 moving to market, net earnings of all Northwestern railways produced only 2½ per cent. of property valuation, and Central Western earnings not much more—this while the Eastern and Southern percentages ranged from 5 to 8%—the contention of insufficient rates is bound at least to get a more thorough hearing.

That both export of cotton and the takings of it by our own mills should have fallen in May to the smallest monthly total of the year, as yesterday's "cotton consumption statement" shows they did, is not unusual. Home and foreign purchasers will always make the greater part of their necessary purchases while supplies on the market are large, and before the approaching end of a season has placed the tactical advantage in the hands of the producers. Yesterday's statement indicates, however, a rather striking difference between last month's attitude of the home and the foreign spinners. Consumption by American mills, although less than in any other month of 1925, was far in excess of almost every month of 1924, and ran far beyond the takings of May in any year since the war except 1923, when the influence of the sudden and short-lived "trade boom" of that season was at its height.

But our cotton export, which in the three months ended last January averaged half a million bales per month above either of the two preceding seasons, is shown to have decreased last month almost to the level of May, 1924, which was itself the smallest of that year to date. Whereas last Autumn's monthly export of cotton surpassed all records in our history, last month's shipments were the smallest made in May of any year but two in the past decade. This is another sidelight on the causes for England's reduced imports and our own reduced exports in foreign trade for May. Apparently it shows that the process of making good deficient stocks in the hands of foreign spinners, the buying for which purpose was a powerful influence in pressing down European exchange rates, has been completed.

MONEY.

TUESDAY, JUNE 16, 1925.

BETTER TIMES SEEN FOR ALL RAILROADS

CHANGE IN WEST EXPECTED

Rumor From Washington Is That the Commerce Commission Favors Increase in Rates.

Wall Street, in the opinion of many who watched the advance in railroad shares yesterday, has interpreted a rumor from Washington that the Interstate Commerce Commission was favorably inclined toward raising the rates of Northwestern railroads as indicating a possibility of greater prosperity for all carriers.

The market gains of the stocks of railroads operating in all sections of the country are shown by the following figures:

Chi. & Northwest.	2½	Norfolk & West.	1½
C., St. P., M. & O.		Northern Pacific.	1½
pf.	1½	Reading	½
Gt. Northern pf.	1½	Southern Railway.	½
Kan. City South.	½	Texas & Pacific.	1½
Lehigh Valley	½	Union Pacific.	1½
M., K. & P. & S.S.M.	2½	Wabash	½
Do pf.	4	Western Pacific.	1½
N. Y. C. & St. L.	½	Wheel & Lake E.	1
Norfolk Southern.	1½	Do pf	2

The restricted earning power of the Northwestern roads has acted as a dragging anchor upon a possible advance in railroad shares since the directors of the St. Paul applied for a receivership on March 14. Railroad men found it difficult to believe that the other Northwestern carriers were operating under conditions radically different from those of the St. Paul and the statistics for the first four and five months of this year confirmed their belief. The figures showed that while all of the carriers of the country were below the 5% per cent. set as a fair return by the Transportation act, the Northwestern railroads were earning only 1.02 per cent. on their property investment, a return so small that it was judged confiscatory.

If the Commerce Commission permitted the Northwestern roads to go under Court direction, many of the pessimists were of the opinion that roads in other sections of the country would suffer, and one rail official expressed the opinion that Government ownership loomed as a possibility.

The problem of raising rates in Northwestern territory without driving away traffic, however, is a difficult one to solve, in the opinion of conservative traffic men, as the shippers in the territory have the alternatives in many instances of using water or motor routes. An increase in grain rates, it is thought, would not be looked upon favorably by President Coolidge or Congressional leaders, who are inclined to side with the farmers in such an issue.

The question of Panama Canal competition is believed by some to offer a way out. If transportation by way of the Canal could be put under the jurisdiction of the Interstate Commerce Commission insofar as it concerned transcontinental traffic, it is believed that the rate structure by water and rail could be adjusted to give the steam carriers more revenue.

Permission from the Interstate Commerce Commission to cut railroad rates to meet Panama Canal competition, it is being pointed out, would undoubtedly result in protest from shippers in the inter-mountain district of Northwestern territory that the long and short haul provisions of the Gooding bill were being violated. This bill provides that the long haul rate shall in no instance be greater than the short haul rate included in the larger distance.

Thus, while railroad men are unanimous in believing that the Northwestern carriers should have an increase in rates they feel that the problems involved are not simple of solution and may demand the attention of many traffic experts before a basis of adjustment is determined.

INTERNATIONAL BUYS INDIANA CEMENT FIRM

New Plant Will Raise Annual Capacity to 10,000,000 Barrels.

The International Cement Corporation yesterday announced that it had acquired the properties of the Indiana Portland Cement Company as part of the expansion program announced a short time ago, when the company asked the stockholders to approve an increase in the authorized preferred stock from $5,000,000 to $15,000,000, the shares being of $100 par value each, and also to increase the authorized common stock from 400,000 to 600,000 shares without par value. A special stockholders' meeting is scheduled to be held on Friday to take action on the stock increase.

The Indiana Portland Cement Company, according to the statement, operates a modern plant located between Indianapolis and Terre Haute with an annual capacity of 1,500,000 barrels. Executives now affiliated with the International organization will manage the Indiana company.

H. Struckmann, President of the International, who becomes President of the Indiana company, said the Indiana company would operate under the policies now followed by the other seven companies in the system.

The new acquisition will give the company an annual capacity of 10,000,000 barrels.

TO DEVELOP VENEZUELA OIL.

New England Refining Co. Offers $1,500,000 Notes to Stockholders.

The New England Oil Refining Company, according to reports in the financial district, is offering holders of the general mortgage bonds and common and preferred stock, subject to authorization, the right to subscribe for $1,500,000 7½-year participating 7 per cent. gold notes of the New England Venezuela Company at 95 and accrued interest. The bonds, it was stated, would be guaranteed by the New England Oil Refining Company.

Many of the general mortgage 8 per cent. bonds of the New England Oil Refining Company, which were originally handled by Peabody, Houghteling & Co., were offered in London, and recently advices were received to the effect that the company was endeavoring to raise additional funds in the British market. These reports, however, could not be confirmed at the local offices of the bankers.

The proceeds from the sale of the new financing, it is understood, will be used to help the company's crude oil supply through the development of the potential oil fields which the company holds in Venezuela.

TO VOTE ON POWER MERGER

Meeting of Maryland Company Stockholders Called for June 29.

A special meeting of stockholders of the Southern Power and Light Company of Maryland has been called for June 29 at Baltimore to vote upon the proposed sale of all, or substantially all, of its property and assets to the Electric Power and Light Corporation.

H. C. Couch, President of the Southern Power and Light Company, in announcing the special meeting, said: "We have accepted this opportunity to merge because we are convinced that this affiliation increases our opportunities to serve the people of our territory in a bigger and better way."

According to John Nickerson & Co., holders of the securities of the various subsidiaries will retain all the advantages they now have, "plus those which accrue as a result of becoming a part of a larger unit."

ORGANIZING FORDHAM BANK.

To Serve Business Near Fordham Road and Jerome Avenue.

The Fordham National Bank, to serve the steadily expanding business of the Fordham district, is being organized, it was learned yesterday. A capital of $200,000 and surplus of $60,000 are planned. Members of the organization committee, which has headquarters at 2,436 Jerome Avenue, said the new bank would open shortly near Fordham Road and Jerome Avenue.

John J. Horan, a member of the organization committee, said that professional men, merchants and other business people in the neighborhood are behind the new project, for which stock subscriptions now are being taken. Efforts will be made, it is said, to distribute the stock in small lots among the business people of the district.

$5,000 ESSAY PRIZE GOES TO CANADIAN

His Article on Electrical Power Adjudged Best in $10,000 Contest.

NEW YORKER IS SECOND

Winners Predict Lower Costs and Customer Ownership—438 Papers Submitted.

Names of the winners of the $10,000 in prizes offered by Bonbright & Co., public utility bankers, for the best power essay written as of 1930 and covering a ten-year period from 1920, were announced yesterday at the National Electric Light Association convention in San Francisco. The details were made public here by Bonbright & Co.

David Cowan, 21 years old, of English birth and now with the Sun Life Assurance Company in Canada, with offices in Montreal, receives the first prize of $5,000, while Robert M. Davis, statistical editor of The Electrical World, a McGraw-Hill weekly publication of New York City, was chosen as the winner of the second prize of $1,000. There were 438 papers submitted.

Milwaukee Contestant Third.

John Dockendorf of Milwaukee, Wis., won the third prize of $500. Other prize-winners, which include collaborators, who will share the $250 awards are Reuben B. Sleight of Minneapolis, Minn.; Arthur R. Stubbs and Charles H? Churchill Jr. of Schenectady, N. Y.; C. E. Neil and Chase Donaldson of New York City; M. L. Sindeband and P. Sporn, New York City; A. K. Baylor, New York City; C. P. Dunn, Portland, Ore.; C. T. Chenery, New York City; Theodore Dwight and Reginald Trautschold, Montclair, N. J.; David Evans Jr., Montclair, N. J.; Marion J. Verdery and Henry Allen Moe, New York City.

Prizes of $100 went to F. E. Pierce and Richard T. Dana, New York City; Merrill E. Skinner, Pittsburgh, Pa.; Paul A. Ryan, Susquehanna, Pa.; Pearson Winslow, New York City; Louis R. Davis, Chicago; Chester M. Clark, Boston; Edgar A. Van Dusen, Poughkeepsie, N. Y.; Professor T. H. Dillon, Harvard University; Theodore H. Brown, Stamford, Conn., and Frank K. Simmons, Woonsocket, R. I.

In addition to the foregoing prizes there remains the cash award of $10,000 to "that contestant whose paper, reviewed again in 1930, shall appear to have most nearly approximated to facts as they eventuate." Thus the winners of the Bonbright award who wrote on five years of past progress in the power industry, and five years of visualized future progress, as well as those whose essays did not take any present awards, have the opportunity of winning a single cash prize of $10,000. The same essays will be rejudged in 1930. The judges are to be the directors of the American Superpower Corporation, who were the judges in the contest just closed.

They found it difficult to decide which of the first two essays was the better, the Canadian contestant winning by a narrow margin. Both men compiled closely with the requirements set up by Bonbright & Co., which stipulated that the articles should comprehend the development of the industry in all its phases, and among other things should treat not only of engineering accomplishments but include also matters affecting public relations, finance, markets, transmission and distribution of electricity, its utilization and its effects on the industrial and social structure of the nation.

Winner Born in London.

Cowan, the winner, was born in London Oct. 16, 1903, went to public school in Canada and was graduated from McGill University with first-class honors in economics, political science and French. Davis, winner of the second prize, was born Feb. 8, 1883, in Chico, Cal., attended Oahu College, Honolulu, H. I., and was graduated in 1907 from the College of Civil Engineering at Cornell University.

An analysis of the six highest papers showed many interesting conclusions, many giving evidence of surprisingly close agreement. Among the forecasts was a general prediction that the cost of electricity would continue to decrease, that customer ownership would play an increasingly important part in the work of financing the development of the industry, and a prediction that there would be a decided increase in domestic refrigeration by means of electrification. Three among the winners of the first six prizes predicted a tremendous growth in the percentage of the industry controlled through holding companies, one stating that by 1930 95 per cent. of the country's generated capacity would be controlled by holding companies.

1,000% STOCK DIVIDEND IN A VARNISH COMPANY

The Keystone of Brooklyn Will Increase Capital From $36,000 to $360,000 on Profits.

While many of the prominent industrial corporations which are popularly known to the rank and file in the Wall Street district are declaring extra dividends of 1 to 5 per cent., payable either in the form of cash or new stock, a small Brooklyn concern known as the Keystone Varnish Company announced yesterday that it had filed application with the Secretary of State to increase its authorized capital stock from $36,000 to $360,000. Back of this announcement, it was learned, is the intention of the Board of Directors to declare a 1,000 per cent. stock dividend.

The stock of the company is closely held among the executives and directors of the company. Earnings have been piling up from year to year, due to the expansion of the company's business, and these earnings, which have not been distributed in dividends during recent years, have accumulated in the company's surplus account.

Because of this, the directors decided it was advisable to distribute at least a part of this large surplus account to stockholders in the form of a stock dividend. Despite the fact that the company is one of the older organizations operating in this district, its stock is not traded on any of the Exchanges or over the counter, and little if any of it ever gets into the hands of the general public.

The officers of the company are D. C. Arnold, President; R. H. Everett, Secretary and Treasurer, and H. F. Foster, Assistant Treasurer.

Net Profit of $226,535 for Year Shown—Deficit After Dividends.

The report of the Todd Shipyards Corporation for the year ended March 31, 1925, shows net earnings of $661,111, against $1,238,517 in the previous year, after all operating expenses. After allowing for interest, depreciation and other charges, the company reported net profit of $226,535, against $713,175 the year before. The net profit for the last fiscal year was equal to $1.07 a share earned on the 210,364 shares of no par value capital stock outstanding, against $3.39 a share in the previous year.

After payments of $1,239,423 in the form of dividends, the company reported a deficit of $1,012,888. Commenting upon the report, William H. Todd, President, said:

"The general depression in the shipping business still continues to a considerable extent and has resulted in a falling off in the earnings of your company. How long this condition may continue is problematical. In view of the foregoing and in order to reduce expenses, your officers have completed arrangements for amalgamating the Todd Oil Burner Engineering Corporation plant with the ship repair yard of the Tebo Yacht Basin Company, and also for the closing of the plant of the Todd Dry Dock and Construction Company at Tacoma, Wash., which was strictly a ship construction plant, and under present conditions is no longer an earning factor."

HIGH PROFITS PUSH BANK SHARES UP

POST-WAR LOSSES AT END

With Them All Written Off the Earnings Are Now Going to Owners and to Surplus.

Declarations of extra dividends by several banks yesterday led to further advances in the prices of bank shares, in which an upward trend has existed for more than a week. Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company stock advanced 15 points, to a new high record, being quoted at $475 bid and $485 asked, and there were advances of $5 to $15 per share in a number of other bank stocks.

Increased earnings have been reported generally by the big New York banks, due to the heavy volume of business transacted, which has offset the low money rates which have prevailed for most of this year. It was declared also that earnings can be better applied now than had been the case in recent years, because of the heavy write-offs of losses that were necessary in the post-war deflation. These write-offs have been completed, and earnings, which have been increasing steadily, now are being applied in larger proportion to dividends and to the surplus and undivided profits account.

The buying of Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company stock yesterday followed the action of the company in increasing its annual dividend rate from $12 to $14, the directors declaring a quarterly payment of $3.50 per share, payable July 1 to stock of record June 19. The increase was accompanied by no comment by the officers or directors. The capital stock of the trust company is $17,500,000, and its surplus is around $11,500,000. Earnings in the year ended March 25 last were reported to be slightly in excess of $18 per share.

Directors of the Empire Trust Company, which is affiliated with the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, declared an extra dividend of 1 per cent. in addition to a regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent. The dividends will be payable on June 29 to stockholders of record June 20.

An extra dividend of 1 per cent. in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. was declared by the American Surety Company, payable June 30 to stockholders of record June 20.

The Title Guaranty and Trust Company declared an extra dividend of 8 per cent., one-half payable June 30 to stock of record June 22 and the remainder payable Sept. 30 to stock of record Sept. 22. This was in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of 3 per cent. payable June 30 to stock of record June 22.

The American Exchange National Bank declared a regular quarterly dividend of 4 per cent., payable July 1 to stockholders of record June 26.

The Excelsior Savings Bank, 221 West Fifty-seventh Street, declared a regular quarterly dividend of 4 per cent., payable on and after July 20.

The Dime Savings Bank of Williamsburgh declared a quarterly dividend of 4½ per cent., payable July 1.

In addition to Irving Bank-Columbia Trust Company stock, higher prices were quoted on the shares of Bank of Commerce and other banks. Stock of the First National Bank held steady at the high levels reached recently following the declaration of a 25 per cent. dividend for the quarter. Despite the higher prices, however, sales were comparatively small, the advance having failed to bring out any considerable offerings of stock.

SMACKOVER OIL TAKES RISE.

Monday's Production Increased 14,987 Barrels Over Sunday's.

Production of heavy crude oil from the deep sands of the Smackover field in Arkansas was estimated at 233,582 barrels on Monday, according to information received in the financial district yesterday. This total represents an increase of 14,987 barrels, compared with the estimated production of 218,595 barrels reported for Sunday. The increased output was brought about by the completion of thirteen new wells. Of the 373 wells completed up to Monday, it is stated, 128 have gone dead, 40 are now on the pump, 90 are flowing by air and 20 are showing 25 per cent. salt water.

The Skelly Oil Company yesterday announced the completion of Well 4, in the Smackover deep sand, flowing at between 12,000 and 15,000 barrels daily. The company claims a production of 40,000 barrels daily at the present time, while in the past two months the daily average ranged between 20,000 and 30,000 barrels.

Galena-Signal Oil Company

(Formerly Petroleum Refining Company)

6% First (Closed) Mortgage Bonds

Dated July 1, 1918 Due July 1, 1939

Authorized and Issued, $3,800,000 Outstanding, $2,800,000

Interest payable at the Fidelity Trust Company of Houston, Texas, or at the United States Mortgage & Trust Company of New York, on April 1 and October 1 of each year. Redeemable on any interest date as a whole or in part at the option of the Company on 20 days' notice at 105 and interest. Coupon Bonds, registerable as to principal, in denominations of $1,000. Interest is payable without deduction for any Federal Income Tax up to 1% per annum. Fidelity Trust Company of Houston, Texas, Trustee.

Business: The Galena-Signal Oil Company of Texas is a fully owned subsidiary of the Galena-Signal Oil Company of Pennsylvania. The latter Company was incorporated in 1901 as a consolidation of the Galena Oil Company and the Signal Oil Company, which have been in operation over 50 years. This Company is one of the original Standard Oil organizations which was segregated from the parent Company in 1911. The Galena-Signal Oil Company of Pennsylvania and its subsidiaries constitute a complete unit in the oil industry, producing, transporting, refining and marketing crude oil and its refined products in the United States, Canada, Europe and South and Central America. The Company is best known as a refiner of the highest grade lubricating oils and greases for railroads, automobiles and stationary plants.

Properties: The Galena-Signal Oil Company owns one of the most modern and best equipped refineries in the United States, having a daily capacity of 30,000 barrels of crude oil and equipped through cracking processes to produce from 25% to 30% gasoline. The refinery is also equipped for the production of high-grade lubricating oils. The plant is located on deep water on the Houston Ship Channel and is served by pipe lines, owned by a subsidiary, from the Company's producing acreage in the Humble Field. The Company also owns a tank farm of 2,500,000 barrels capacity adjacent to the refinery. The Company maintains at all times as a reserve storage in this tank farm an average of over 1,500,000 barrels of crude oil.

Security: These bonds are secured by a first closed mortgage on all the fixed assets of the Company. Of the amount originally issued, $3,800,000, the Company has purchased for sinking fund purposes $1,000,000, leaving a net liability in bonds outstanding of $2,800,000. This compared with net tangible assets of the Company as of December 31, 1924, after deducting large reserves for depletion and depreciation, in the amount of $13,975,743, or about 5 times the net amount of these bonds outstanding. Net current assets on the same date amounted to $6,045,298, or well over twice such net bonded debt.

Earnings: Neither the Galena-Signal Oil Company of Pennsylvania nor its subsidiaries issue statements of earnings. On both classes of preferred stock of the Galena-Signal Oil Company of Pennsylvania now outstanding, in the aggregate amount of $6,000,000 dividends at the rate of 8% per annum have been paid since issuance and dividends have been paid on the common stock of this Company, now outstanding in the amount of $16,000,000 at varying rates, having been regularly at the rate of 4% per annum from January 1, 1923, to the present time.

We are informed by reliable sources that the earnings of the Galena-Signal Oil Company of Texas will be well in excess of $1,750,000 for the year 1925. These earnings available for interest charges on bonds outstanding are more than 10 times the interest requirements on these bonds.

Sinking Fund: Beginning July 1, 1923, the Company is required to pay to the Trustee each year an amount of cash equivalent to 10% of the greatest amount of these bonds at any time outstanding, as a sinking fund for their retirement. This sinking fund is calculated to retire all of the bonds by maturity.

We offer these bonds, subject to prior sale and change in price

Cities Service Company

Common Stock

Liberal Dividend Policy

Cities Service Company has always maintained a consistent dividend policy. The Company last year redeemed at par all scrip dividends heretofore issued on the Common Stock and resumed cash dividends at the rate of 6% per annum and stock dividends at the same rate.

1924 record of Public Utilities Division

The Public Utilities Division of the Cities Service Company operated during 1924, 60 properties in 19 states, serving a population of about 3,000,000 in 600 cities and towns with 43,000,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas and 7,000,000,000 cubic feet of artificial gas and furnished more than 1,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of electrical energy. The total production of petroleum by the oil subsidiaries has virtually been doubled since January to more than 57,000 barrels daily.

1924 Review of Earnings

Net earnings of Cities Service Company during 1924 showed a satisfactory increase over 1923. With oil prices now advancing and indications pointing to increased earnings in the oil trade it is reasonable to expect that these earnings will be greatly augmented by additional profits from the Oil Division of the company. Since 1920, the company's earnings from the Utility Division have increased from $4,609,912 to last year's figure of $11,559,318. In 1924, the company reported net to common stock and reserves of $9,736,077. For the 12 months ending April 30, 1925 such earnings were about $2.80 per share, and for the first four months of 1925 were at the annual rate of about $3.66.

Electrical Refrigeration

Phenomenal Growth

ALL over the country, under the active direction of the Electric Light and Power Companies, the old-fashioned ice boxes in homes, drug stores, ice cream stores, butcher shops, grocery stores, florists, etc., are being replaced by ELECTRICALLY OPERATED REFRIGERATORS. The field for expansion is unlimited. 14,000,000 homes in the United States are wired for electricity and half a million more are being wired each year. The future growth of this industry seems inevitably assured.

It merely becomes a question as to what company will benefit most from this remarkable situation

The Serv-el Corporation

The electric refrigerators of this Leader in the Industry, sold under the trade name Serv-el, are distributed throughout the country by the electric light and power companies.

We believe Serv-el to be the first completely automatic, electrically operated refrigerating machine placed on the market using a harmless gas. Its complete line is priced within the reach of all. The Corporation is in a strong financial position. Notwithstanding that the output has been greatly increased during the past few months orders are booked for six months ahead.

In our opinion the present market price of the stock in no way discounts the future.

EXTRA DIVIDENDS DECLARED FOR JULY

Dollar a Share in Island Creek Coal and One Per Cent. in Mountain & Gulf Oil.

AMERICAN GAS QUARTERLY

Payment of 75 Cents Per $50 Share Is on Same Basis as Paid New Jersey Holders Before Merger.

Directors of the American Gas Company of Pennsylvania declared an initial dividend yesterday of 75 cents quarterly on the $50 par value stock. The dividend is payable July 15, to stockholders of record June 30. This dividend is at the same rate as paid to the stockholders of the old New Jersey company prior to the merger with the United Gas and Improvement Company, the terms of which were on the basis of one share of stock of the New Jersey company for two shares of the Pennsylvania company.

An extra dividend of $1 a share besides the regular quarterly dividend of $2 a share was declared on the common stock of the Island Creek Coal Company. Both dividends are payable July 1, to stockholders of record June 20.

Directors of the Mountain and Gulf Oil Company declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2 per cent. on the capital stock, and an extra dividend of 1 per cent. Both dividends are payable July 15, to stockholders of record July 1.

Crucible Steel Company directors, meeting yesterday, declared the regular quarterly dividend of 1 per cent. on the common stock, payable July 20, to stockholders of record July 15.

The American Smelting and Refining Company announced yesterday the regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the common stock and $1.75 a share on the preferred stock. The common dividend is payable Aug. 1, to stockholders of record July 10, and the preferred dividend is payable Sept. 1, to stockholders of record Aug. 7. Recently rumors were circulated in the financial district that the dividend on the common stock might be increased.

Directors of the William Wrigley Jr. Company, according to advices received in the financial district, declared five regular monthly dividends of 25 cents each on the capital stock, payable Aug. 1, Sept. 1, Oct. 1, Nov. 1 and Dec. 1, to stockholders of record on the 20th of each preceding month. Directors of the company, according to the information, approved the acquisition of properties in Germany, and the formation of a German subsidiary.

RUBBER MARKET DOWN; BLAME SPECULATORS

Decline Not Due to Increased Production, Brokers Say—London Prices Off.

The crude rubber market showed a sharp decline yesterday, spot prices dropping about 2 cents per pound, and other positions fell proportionately. Brokers attributed the reaction to heaviness in London, which was off ⅛d at 35⅛d. Another explanation offered was manipulation. Reports were current that there was a big demand for the staple at Singapore, and that this was in the nature of a covering operation by the speculative fraternity.

Brokers and dealers were not willing to ascribe the weakness of the last few days to the increased production during the present quarter, saying that this amounted to little over 8,000 tons, too little by far to keep pace with the demand by American tire manufacturers. In this connection it was said that two prominent American tire makers were heavy purchasers in the London market.

Spot ribbed smoked sheets were quoted at 71@72 cents per pound, which also prevailed for June, the July delivery being quoted at 69@70 cents. Brown crepe thin, spot, was quoted at 62 cents, this price also going for near positions. First latex crepe, amber No. 3 and fine up-river Para enjoyed a fair demand, but even in these grades there was a reaction from Monday's levels.

JAPAN FOR ECONOMY POLICY

Mission Here Told of New Program Involving Four Points.

A policy of strict governmental economy has been adopted by the Japanese Cabinet for the fiscal year beginning April 1, 1926, according to a cablegram received by the Japanese Financial Mission in New York. The following four points were mentioned as part of the policy:

"The estimate of expenditures shall be drawn so as to conform with the policy of rigid economy exercised in framing those for the previous year; no new demand shall be recognized, except those for urgent need; the demand for 20,000,000 yen to be charged to the national Treasury for the purpose of paying part of the salary of local grammar school teachers shall be recognized in preference to any other demands; any demand which may result in restoring an expenditure cut in the previous year's budget shall not be recognized."

DUZ CO. APRIL SALES JUMP.

The voting power of the corporation is now vested in the founders' shares, which are held under a voting trust.

HEAT AIDS HARDWARE.

Trade Journal Sees Increase in Sale of Spring Lines.

Several hardware markets have a decidedly better tone, which the warm weather has helped to bring about, according to Hardware Age. In summing up conditions in the industry the journal of the trade says:

"Hardware prices are very firm. Staple items are selling in moderate quantities, and various Spring lines, such as electric fans, garden hose, lawn mowers and steel goods, are particularly active in all parts of the country. The demand for Spring merchandise has been so heavy during the last two weeks that wholesale stocks have been depleted in the larger cities."

Charles J. Brand, consulting specialist in marketing of the United States Department of Agriculture, who has been giving special attention to economic problems incident to the operation of the packers and stockyards and grain futures administration, has been selected by the new National Fertilizer Association as Executive Secretary and Treasurer. He will supervise such activities of the association as soil improvement work, cost accounting, traffic activities, improved trade practice, standardization and public relations.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE.

Franc and Lira Lower—Weakness Follows Legitimate Requirements and Speculation—Sterling Up.

Mixed selling of Italian and French exchanges, some of it to cover the legitimate requirements of the former country, whose need for our foodstuffs is great, and speculative pressure against the French bill as a result of the political and financial condition of France, yesterday accounted for sharp declines in both the lira and the franc. The Italian unit dropped 7½ points, to 3.80⅛ cents, a new low for the year, while the French franc sagged 6⅝ points to 4.74 cents, which is about 8⅛ points above the low touched early in the month.

Support seemed to be nowhere in sight for either bill, and the selling which originated abroad made easy headway. Pressure against the franc was particularly heavy, one prominent brokerage house selling francs for Friday and Saturday delivery from one-half to three-quarters of a point under the market. The Belgian franc was also weak, dropping 1¾ points to 4.71 cents.

Sterling was again in good demand, as on Monday, finishing at a gain of ¼ cent, at $4.86⅝. Holland, Spanish, Swiss and the Scandinavians were quiet and firm. The Chinese currencies were strong on the sharp rise in silver prices. Hongkong, Pekin and Shanghai remittances selling higher. Japanese yen reacted slightly. South Americans were dull.

BRITISH GOLD SITUATION.

No Bullion Movements Reported Yesterday by Bank of England.

LONDON, June 16 (AP).—No bullion movements were announced today by the Bank of England.

The course of gold imports and exports, however, since the gold standard was restored, leaving a good balance on the import side, seems, in the opinion of the money market, to justify the prediction in the House of Commons some time ago of Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill that there would be no immediate necessity on the part of the Bank of England to increase its discount rate in order to prevent an outflow of gold.

Speculation with regard to the £2,000,000 gold arriving from Holland recently continued today. Apparently the most likely explanation yet offered is that the gold comes direct from the Bank of the Netherlands, and is an indication of the close cooperation between the two State banks in connection with the resumption almost simultaneously by Great Britain and Holland of the gold standard; that it is in fact similar cooperation such as already existed between America and England, and that it means that the Bank of the Netherlands is ready to place its surplus gold at the disposal of the Bank of England.

COTTON 1-2 CENT UP ON BAD CROP NEWS

SHORT COVERING IS GENERAL

Liverpool Market Follows Lead of New York and New Orleans in Price Movements.

The upward movement in cotton continued yesterday and under the heaviest and most general covering in several weeks prices gained half a cent, ending at a net gain of 27 to 43 points. With twenty-two stations in Texas 100 to 107 degrees and private advices reflecting increased weevil propagation in Atlantic sections as a result of recent daily moisture in some districts, the market opened higher and went into new high ground before the close. Absence of needed rainfall in drought sections of the Southwest and another private midmonthly report indicating a loss of 2.4 to 74.7 per cent. influenced sentiment.

The regular monthly census report showed domestic consumption of 531,000 bales during May, compared with 597,000 in April and 413,000 in May last year. This brought the total for ten months of the current season to 5,200,000 bales, lint cotton, against 4,983,000 for the corresponding period last year. Inclusive of linters and exclusive of foreign cotton, American consumption exceeds 5,450,000, compared with 5,100,000 for the corresponding ten months last year. The report showed mill stocks on June 1 of 1,348,000, compared with 1,157,000 a year ago.

As has been the case for some time past, foreign cotton interests appeared to be leaving the making of prices to American markets. Almost without exception recent changes have been initiated on this side, with Liverpool merely following the lead of New York and New Orleans. There was little change in foreign quotations throughout the day, though an early advance here carried October in Liverpool to the highest figures reached in several weeks. The feature of local trading was the absence of selling pressure and the comparative scarcity of contracts for distant deliveries.

After selling around 23.25 for October for several hours, poor crop accounts in Texas and exports of 40,000 bales for the day developed commission house covering on an extensive scale. Execution of several 5,000 and 10,000 bale buying orders advanced the list nearly $2 a bale before attracting a sufficient supply of contracts to stem the advance. When December sold above 23¼ cents and went to new high levels since the decline the early part of May, buying broadened the last hour, with December touching 23¾ cents and all months closing above the 23-cent level.

JUDGE GARY AT WORK AFTER REST IN SOUTH

Steel Corporation Chairman Deeply Impressed by Progress Around Birmingham.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, returned to his desk at the company's office, 71 Broadway, yesterday, after spending several weeks in Birmingham, Ala. Judge Gary's visit to Birmingham was partly a business trip and partly for the purpose of visiting friends and relatives in the South, as was announced at the time of his departure with Mrs. Gary. While in Birmingham, however, Judge Gary attended the company's hospital in that district for the purpose of taking a diet treatment.

Upon his return yesterday, however, Judge Gary had little to say for publication other than that he was deeply impressed with the progress made in the South, especially in the vicinity of Birmingham, where the plants of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad Company, one of the company's larger subsidiaries, are located. In his remarks to the Chamber of Commerce at Birmingham, Judge Gary intimated that the corporation contemplated further expansion in that territory. It is expected that Judge Gary will make another visit to the Southern city soon.

Hungarian Rubber Man Seeks Use of American Producing Methods.

Bela Rechtnitz, Vice Chairman of the Hungarian Rubber Works and Chairman of the Hungarian Chamber of Commerce, has arrived in New York to negotiate with American rubber interests for the use of new processes which he says will greatly reduce the cost of rubber manufacture.

Mr. Rechtnitz commented yesterday on the outlook for Hungarian banking institutions, which he said, were doing a good business. Hungarian agriculture is on a prosperous basis, he added, while the steel industry is in a position comparable to that previous to the war, due to the elimination of foreign competition by a tariff.

Park & Tilford Plan Subsidiary.

According to reports in the financial district Park & Tilford, Inc., is contemplating the formation of a new company to take over and operate the properties acquired through the recent purchase of the Overholt distillery in Pittsburgh. It is understood that stockholders will have the privilege of subscribing for the stock of the new company.

Dunlop Tire and Rubber to Call Bonds.

The Dunlop Tire and Rubber Corporation, it was announced yesterday, will call its entire issue of first mortgage and collateral trust 7 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds for retirement at 105 and interest. Notice of the redemption date, it was said, will be issued shortly.

FAMOUS PLAYERS TO SELL NEW STOCK

Zukor Outlines Corporation's Plan to Increase Common Shares by Sale to Holders.

Common stockholders of the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation will receive today a leter from Adolph Zukor, President, announcing the offer of additional capital stock to stockholders. Stockholders of record July 8 will be given the right to subscribe for one new share for each two shares of stock now held. Subscriptions must be filed on or before July 24.

The offering will amount to 121,715 shares of common stock, which will increase the company's outstanding common issue from 243,431 to 364,146 shares. The proceeds from the sale, it is stated, will be used for expansion, and to provide additional working capital. New properties recently have been acquired, both in this country and abroad, and several new theatres and combination theatres and office buildings are now being constructed. The company has increased its common capital stock only by a small amount during the past five years, and much of the recent expansion has been provided for out of earnings to the extent of about $3,000,000 annually.

In the letter to stockholders it is stated that payment for the new stock subscribed by stockholders may be made either in full or in two equal instalments, the first being due at the time of the filing of the subscription and the second on or before Oct. 1, 1925. It is further stated that the stock subscribed for will be issued as of Oct. 1, and the new shares will be entitled to all dividends declared on the common stock of record on that date. The company is now paying dividends at the rate of $8 a share, or $2 quarterly on the common issue.

Mr. Zuckor states that earnings for the first half of the current year, with second quarter figures partly estimated, show a substantial increase compared with the earnings reported for the corresponding period last year.

The official announcement states that fractional warrants aggregating in amount one or more full shares may be exchanged for a subscription warrant. As the corporation will not sell or purchase fractional warrants stockholders desiring to complete a full share or dispose of fractional warrants must do so in the open market. The Empire Trust Company will receive subscriptions up to and including July 24, accompanied by payment in full, $88.62 per share, or by payment of a first instalment of $45 a share. In this case the second instalment will be $44.31, and must be paid on Oct. 1. The concessions for payment in full are due to the fact that the company will allow interest at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum from July 24 to Oct. 1, 1925, on all sums paid on or before July 24.

Arrangements have been made for the underwriting of the offering by a syndicate composed of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Hallgarten & Co. and E. F. Hutton & Co. Application will be made to list the additional common stock on the New York Stock Exchange.

Unexpected Discoveries

DR. RUSSELL H. CONWELL tells an interesting story of an ancient Persian, Al Hafed, whose life was spent in a vain, world-wide search for diamonds. When he was dead and buried, it was found that the search should have commenced and ended on Al Hafed's farm. For, as the story tells, this spot became the location of the famous Golconda diamond mine, from which came the marvelous Kohinoor and other diamonds which have decorated the crowns of Europe and have been sold for fabulous sums.

This story is told in the sincere belief that many easily-overlooked discoveries can be made in the familiar things that appear commonplace or humdrum. Particularly, we believe that most people do not realize how many kinds of valuable assistance they can secure from a bank that is geared to meet the modern requirements of business and individuals.

We suggest you check up the use you make of your bank against this list of services you can secure at the Seaboard. There are many customers who have found this bank a veritable mine for service, whether they do business with the enlarged bank of the Seaboard uptown at 24 East 45th Street or with either of the Seaboard banks downtown.

How to make Liquid Investments
The Seaboard is very active in helping its depositors keep funds working profitably for temporary periods, through liquid investments such as Bankers' acceptances and commercial paper.

Bankers' acceptances, in view of their short maturities, are considered an immediate purchase, whereas commercial paper usually carries an option of from seven to ten days for the purpose of credit investigation. This affords depositors an opportunity to conduct an independent enquiry if they wish, and to return the paper within the option period should it not meet with their approval.

The usual custom is for the customer to instruct the Seaboard how much to purchase. We then select for him Bankers' acceptances or commercial paper of the same character we purchase for our own investments.

Unbiased advice on all Investments
The Seaboard gives prompt and efficient service in carrying out orders, the purchase or sale of stocks and bonds for customers. We have no securities of our own for sale to the public and our suggestions are entirely free from self-interest. We have special facilities which give us a close insight on the value and movement of securities.

A Statistical Department constantly studies securities and, upon the request of customers, will review their bond investments and give them information on other securities in which they are interested.

Commercial Banking
Meeting the financial requirements of sound individuals and commercial houses is the principal business of the Seaboard. The Seaboard is facilitating commerce all over the United States with an especially trained organization of its own and a country-wide net work of leading banks—its correspondents.

Exceptional Reports on Credit
The Seaboard's Credit Department is especially well equipped and its investigations are most thorough. Seaboard customers constantly make use of this service for checking security back of commercial paper, and for other special information of a credit nature. This service covers both foreign and domestic concerns.

Prompt Collections
The Seaboard pays very close attention to the collection of coupons, notes, sight drafts and documentary items drawn on corporations, firms and individuals. Bill of lading items are handled by a separate unit and with special regard for the protection of goods in transit. Telegraphing the arrival of cars, payment or non-payment of drafts, together with reasons for non-payment, are very carefully attended to in accordance with instructions received from our clients. Exchange charges on collections are made where the New York Clearing House Rules require.

Foreign Banking Facilities
The Seaboard has built up an organization trained and skilled in every ramification of foreign banking.

Daily we facilitate commerce between America and all parts of the world. We assist those who wish to expand their business abroad or to make investments in the foreign field, and we smooth the way for our customers and their representatives who are traveling in foreign lands.

Trust Services for Corporations
With the most scrupulous regard for accuracy, the Seaboard handles for corporations work which may well be classed among the most difficult of bookkeeping operations. Errors are tabooed in such services as stock transfers and, through letting the Seaboard handle them, a corporation is assured of absolute accuracy, and at the same time may save tidy annual sums. Here is a list of Seaboard corporate trust services:

Trustee for bond issues.
Transfer Agent or Registrar for issuing, countersigning or registering stock certificates or bonds.
Depositary for corporations under protective, reorganization or readjustment agreements.
Coupon paying agent.
Custodian for the care of securities or property embodying the collection and remittance of income.
Agent to hold papers, securities or cash in escrow.

7 Ways to Protect your Family and Property
Under this title, a guide-chart and booklet has recently been issued by the Seaboard which simplifies the entire subject of estate protection. All the workable, fundamental principles of safeguarding money during life and after death, which we recommend after years of experience, have been grouped and simplified into these seven plans. This chart at once points out a sure method of conserving your estate and providing for your dependents. You can secure a copy by writing or by calling at the Seaboard uptown or downtown.

Unusual Services of a Personal Nature
The Seaboard is often called upon to render personal services to depositors and friends when they visit the city and to help make arrangements for traveling. This service includes the securing of hotel reservations, steamship and railroad tickets, visaing of passports, sending of flowers, securing of theatre tickets and other details of a personal nature.

RAILROAD SHOPMEN BACK EMPLOYE PLAN

Workers and Executives of the Pennsylvania Call Cooperation a Success.

18,000 ARE REPRESENTED

Four years of operation of a system of employe representation among the shop craftsmen of the Pennsylvania Railroad have satisfied both workers and management that it is highly successful, it was announced yesterday at the opening sessions of the fifth annual meeting in the Pennsylvania Station Y. M. C. A. of the Shopcrafts' Association of the road's Eastern Region. The association is the employes' organization under the system.

General W. W. Atterbury, Vice President of the Pennsylvania System, who originated and instituted the plan, and Elisha Lee, Vice President in charge of operations, expressed the management's attitude, and leaders of the employes' association told of the success of the plan from the workers' point of view. General acclamation from the delegates, who represent 18,000 shopmen, showed that the sentiments voiced by their leaders and the spokesmen for the management were also theirs.

Appeals for the elimination of waste as a means of increasing efficiency and lowering operating costs also marked addresses by Vice Presidents Atterbury and Lee and by members of the association. General Atterbury told of the better conditions existing in this country than are to be found among the railroad workers in Europe and urged the shop workers to strive to avoid unnecessary waste as a means of insuring the welfare of the railroad and themselves. The employe representation system having been proved feasible and beyond the experimental stage, he said, the workers should go on with it thoughtfully and carfully, and the management would be with them to the end.

Theodore H. Davis, a delegate from the Boilermakers' local in Camden, who was re-elected General Chairman of the association, praised the sincerity of the management as manifested in conferences between representatives of the road and the association. Mr. Davis has headed the association since its organization, and as its Chairman has been its chief representative in negotiations with the management.

In nominating Mr. Davis for re-election George H. Sharpe, a representative of the machinists in the Trenton shop, said that his constituents are unanimously in favor of the plan. "They believe in its cleanly conducted elections under a secret ballot. They want to see it given a fair try-out.

"They believe the present Transportation act is the most constructive and progressive piece of legislation ever passed by Congress," he said. "They want to see it protected from repeal or weakening amendments and are ready to enter a fight to that end. They are particularly opposed to the passage of anything like the Howell-Bardley bill or to any radical changes in the railroad laws in such a period as the present."

The Regional General Committee reported a total of 153 cases taken up between the employes' organization and the management since the institution of the system, of which eighty-five, or 55 per cent., were won by the employes; twenty-six, or 17 per cent., by the management; seventeen, or 11 per cent., being compromised, and twenty-five, or 16 per cent., being withdrawn.

Tribute to the achievements and character of Warren S. Stone, late head of the International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, was paid by Chairman Davis, whose proposal to send a letter of condolence to Mrs. Stone was adopted.

PRICES OF WHEAT CONTINUE TO DROP

OTHER GRAINS AFFECTED

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, June 16.—Belated liquidation developed in the grain markets today after a fair showing of strength early, and all deliveries of wheat dropped below $1.50 per bushel, and at the low point showed 19½@20½ cents under the high point of last Wednesday. Stop loss orders were uncovered on the way down, and support was decidedly lacking toward the last, many of the early buyers selling out on the way down. Prices had a range of 4¾@5½ cents for the day, with the finish about the bottom and net losses of 3¼@3¾ cents.

The bearish influences were the continued favorable crop reports from the American and Canadian Northwest, with high estimates made as to yields in the three Canadian Provinces. Bryant's report on Alberta suggested a yield of 125,000,000 bushels, which, with the 250,000,000 bushels for Saskatchewan, suggested well over 400,000,000 bushels for the three Provinces after allowing for Manitoba. There was some buying early on disappointing threshing returns from Kansas.

Despite the bearish crop reports from Canada, Winnipeg October closed only 1⅞ cents lower for the day. Number 1 red Winter on spot here sold at 32 cents over July, the best premium on the crop.

Primary arrivals today were 887,000 bushels; week ago, 738,000; last year, 520,000. Shipments were 439,000 bushels, week ago, 979,000; last year, 520,000.

Continued dry and hot weather has adversely affected the Texas and Oklahoma corn crop, and considerable damage has already resulted in parts of Texas.

The trade paid more attention to Southwestern conditions during the day and bought December, but the market flattened out toward the last on belated liquidation and the close was 1@1⅞ cents lower.

Oats dropped 1¼@1⅝ cents, with numerous stop loss orders uncovered on the way down.

Eastern distributors took advantage of the decline to buy 408,000 bushels of cash corn and 250,000 of oats, the best day's business in some time. Rains came too late to help oats in many sections.

Rye closed 2⅛@3 cents lower with wheat.

Primary arrivals of corn today were 445,000 bushels; weeks ago, 733,000; last year, 823,000, and shipments, 585,000 bushels; week ago, 477,000; last year, 700,000.

ARMOUR GIVES STOCK BONUS

Employe Holders to Receive $2 in Addition to Dividends.

Armour & Co. yesterday announced their intention of giving a bonus of $2 per share per annum to their employe stockholders. The plan will take effect next Jan. 1, and the bonus will be paid semi-annually, at the rate of $1 per share, on Jan. 1 and July 1 of each year. The bonus will be in addition to the dividends paid on the stock. A letter to employes by George M. Willetts, Vice President, in charge of personnel of Armour & Co., said in part: "Our experience in the past several years has demonstrated the desirability of having our employes interested in the company in the capacity of stockholders and we are greatly pleased by the large number who have subscribed for stock in accordance with the terms of our partial payment plan. Thousands of them have thus taken on the dual rôle of employe and stockohlder, and the company has benefited through the fact that the employe in this dual rôle gives an improved service and greater efficiency to the business.

"In recognition of this fact, Armour & Co. have decided to pay an employe stockholders' bonus of $2 per share per year, for a period of five years, on Armour & Co. of Delaware preferred stock, purchased and held by employes of Armour & Co. and its subsidiary and affiliated companies, under the plan provided."

POSTAL CLERK ARRESTED.

Special to The New York Times.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 16.—Federal detectives are reported to have uncovered an alleged theft of Government money from the Mamaroneck postoffice. James H. Turner, an employe, has been arrested and released on $1,000 bail pending a hearin before the Federal Court.

The amount of money that is missing has not been given out. Turner is alleged to have taken $100 on two occasions from the money order drawer and other sums from the stamp drawers. Postmaster H. R. Foshay declared last night that Turner had worked at both stamp and money order windows. Turner's fellow-employes were surprised at the arrest. One of them said Turner had been married secretly recently. The arrested employe served on the U. S. S. Nevada in the World War and he and his family are widely known about Mamaroneck.

Opposition to the St. Paul's Reorganization Plan Unconfirmed.

The complete plan of Roosevelt & Son, who are leading the opposition, was not ready for publication yesterday as had been anticipated. It may be released today, an officer of the investment house said, although there is a possibility that it will not be in shape before Thursday.

BOSTON, June 16 (AP).—Suit for $600,000 was brought in the Federal court today by John M. Pringle of Jamaica against present and former members of the firm of Lee, Higginson & Co., of this city, bankers and brokers. Pringle alleges that in February, 1920, he invested $150,000 on advice of the firm and later added additional sums, bringing the total to $400,000. LONDON June 16.—A further increase of 43,000 to the workless population of Great Britain was reported today for the week ending June 9. With last week's 80,000 the total now is 1,291,200.

As a result of the situation, the Parliamentary Labor Party had asked the Government for an early opportunity of bringing up in the House of Commons the "whole question of the Government's failure to deal with the problem."

Figures show an increase of 263,685 over last year. The labor movement will hold demonstrations throughout Britain next Sunday calling for immediate action.

Miller Wins Market Site Victory.

Borough President Julius Miller scored a victory in the Committee of the Whole of the Board of Estimate yesterday, when the board approved the site for the $10,000,000 Manhattan Municipal Terminal Market without embracing near-by tenement property that would have forced 3,000 persons to be driven from their homes. Under the modified site adopted the area is less than originally recommended by Market Commissioner Edwin J. O'Malley. The market will be located on the North River water front in the vicinity of West Twelfth and West Street. It will be built in four units.

LANDLORD ASSAILED BY HYLAN FINED $250

Nathan Glassheim, a house and sign painter of 44 Greenwich Avenue, and landlord of four tenement houses in West Twenty-sixth Street, was fined $250 in Municipal Term Court yesterday by Magistrate Jesse I. Silberman, for violating the sanitary code, by cutting off water supplies after failing to persuade tenants to pay increased rents.

Sixty-four tenants of the four houses, from 331 to 337 West Twenty-sixth Street, made a personal appeal to Mayor John F. Hylan on June 3 against eviction proceedings which had been started by Glassheim.

On May 27, after they had refused to pay increased rents, they said, Glassheim obtained an order from the Department of Tenements for all tenants to vacate the premises, on the ground that the houses were no longer habitable because of the cutting off of that part of the water supply which served the lavatories and flush tanks.

Mayor Hylan was so inclined over these reports that he left his desk an hour earlier on June 3 and went in person to examine the condition of the tenements. He was accompanied on his tour of inspection by former Assemblyman Fred S. Burr, now chief of the special service squad of the Health Department, who was assigned by Health Commissioner Monaghan at the Mayor's own request.

After the tour of inspection Mayor Hylan declared that the condition of the houses was deplorable. He countermanded the order to vacate the tenements, sent a special Health Department squad to clean up the premises, and ordered that department to prosecute the landlord.

Glassheim pleaded not guilty yesterday. He told the Court that the Department of Tenements had ordered him to do away with all outside lavatories and install new ones inside the tenement houses. In order to do this, he said, it was necessary to shut off the water supply.

Assistant Corporation Counsel William A. Leonard urged that Glassheim receive the maximum penalty. He pointed out the danger of disease epidemics being started in such surroundings and said that these tenements not only menaced the health of their occupants but the health of the entire city as well.

Glassheim was given his choice of a $250 fine or thirty days in jail. He paid the fine.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 16.—Jules E. Mastbaum of Philadelphia, President of the Stanley Company of America, representative Isaac Bachrach and Harry Casseman, named as directors of the Parkview Beach Front Company, today completed the purchase of the beach front on which stands the Brighton Casino, considered to be the finest piece of Boardwalk fronting area in Atlantic City. The purchase was made from the estate of the late Frederick Helmsley, owner of the Hotel Brighton, and includes 200 feet fronting on the Boardwalk, with a depth of 600 feet. Although the exact price paid for the property has not been disclosed it is estimated that $15,000 per front foot is the figure, making the total price about $3,000,000, the largest single property transfer recorded in Atlantic City's history.

The new owners have not announced their plans for use of the tract, which now is occupied by the Brighton Casino and a number of fine Boardwalk shops, next to the Hotel Traymore. The property has been in the possession of the Helmsley family for over forty years, being retained when the Hotel Brighton, immediately behind, was sold to Frank E. Ott.

Confirmation of the sale of the site of the former Hotel Windsor, fronting on the Boardwalk and Illinois Avenue, directly across the street from the Hotel Traymore, was made here today. The purchasers are a syndicate headed by County Treasurer Enoch L. Johnson, and the price paid for the tract, 150-foot Boardwalk frontage and 600 feet on Illinois Avenue, is given at $2,000,000, or at the rate of $13,500 a front foot. No announcement is made of the use to which the site is to be put.

The Hotel Windsor, razed several years ago, was known to visitors from New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and other society centres as the gathering place of the followers of sports from all over America and the world. Reginald Vanderbilt made the Windsor his headquarters when he drove his coach and four, from the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, to Atlantic City for the Atlantic City Horse Show, then a famous institution.

The Finest Plan on Park Ave.

WHEN you consider that this building was erected before the war when labor and materials were a fraction of what they are now you will readily understand why we can offer rooms that are larger, ceilings that are higher, and closets that cannot be duplicated elsewhere, at rentals no higher than those asked for other accommodations.

As an added feature the garden around which the building is erected assures you of perfect light and cross ventilation as well as a charming outlook.

Floors that deaden noise—

"Noisy, nerve-wracking clatter has been barred out from this and many other modern hospitals by restful, resilient Bonded Floors. But noiselessness alone would not be sufficient to account for the popularity of Bonded Floors for buildings of every description.

In clubs, homes, exclusive shops and restaurants, the harmonious and artistic designs which can be secured in Bonded Floors are considered their chief advantage. For public buildings and offices, it is their economy, ease of maintenance and durability—backed by a Surety Bond against repair expense, issued by the U. S. Fidelity and Guaranty Co.

Our organization supplies various types of resilient floors—solid-colored floors of Gold Seal Battleship Linoleum, or artistic, colorful tiles of Treadlite Tile, a resilient cork composition, or pure natural cork.

Read the authentic story of Mitchell —President of Electric Bond and Share

Here is a tale of rare interest—of the early days of electric light and power—when the incandescent light was declared a "toy," and the public was skeptical of its practicability.

It is the life story of Sidney Z. Mitchell, and of the Electric Bond and Share Company, which he guides—a unique force of specialists who have worked wonders in the progress of light and power facilities for American people.

One of the greatest factors in building up the huge electric light and power industry as we know it today—Electric Bond and Share has proved a benefactor to every section of our country, and has created millions of dollars of sound investments in this important field.

There are plenty of thrills in the experience of Sidney Z. Mitchell, physical giant and genius for organization. How obstacles almost unbelievable were mastered—feats of courage and skill in finance, engineering and the handling of people—these are set forth in interesting detail by a masterful writer—B. C. Forbes.

Every man interested in the development of his career and business should read this. In addition, the June 15th issue of Forbes contains other informative articles of extreme importance to every public utility man. Some of these are:

How to make Tea

1. Put in one teaspoonful for each cup of tea.
2. Be sure the water is poured into the Teapot the moment it boils. Allow to stand for 4 or 5 minutes to infuse.
3. Put a little milk or cream into each Cup before serving the Tea—it improves the taste.
4. Add sugar to taste.
5. Be sure you use—

INDIA TEA

or Blends containing India Tea

* For iced INDIA TEA substitute hot and lemon for milk or cream.

INDIA TEA is the most delicious and stimulating drink you can take, either hot or cold. No other drink is quite comparable with it, but be sure and make it properly. Your dealer can get you India Tea (if he has not already got it in stock), and as every dealer is anxious to please his customers, you will have no difficulty in getting it. Drink it for a while, and you will drink it regularly, but be sure and make it right, and in accordance with the directions given above.
